Senate vote on natural gas a defeat for Carter

WASHINGTON (AP) — The cost of cooking and heating with gas is going up, whatever a congressional conference committee decides on the controversial issue of federal price controls over the fuel.

The Senate broke a lengthy impasse on Tuesday and voted 50-46 in favor of deregulation of natural gas prices. The overall bill then passed on a voice vote.

It was the most serious setback to date for Jimmy Carter's energy program, and the President immediately labeled the measure unacceptable.

"I will not sign an unfair bill," he said.

Despite the defeat for Carter, the President's congressional supporters predicted that negotiations in a House-Senate conference committee will produce continued controls at a higher price.

The conference committee is expected to begin work next week on what could be a long, bitter struggle.

Sponsored by Sens. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, and James Pearson, R-Kan., the Senate plan would set the price at $2.48 for two years, then allow the marketplace to determine what producers can charge for new gas.

The price ceiling for natural gas now is $1.46 per thousand cubic feet.

Controls, first imposed 23 years ago, would remain on offshore new gas for five years.

The House, in a close vote of its own, went along earlier with Carter's plan to continue natural gas price controls. It adopted the President's suggested ceiling of $1.75 per thousand cubic feet of newly discovered gas.

The President, speaking through Press Secretary Jody Powell, termed the industry-supported Senate plan "an injustice to the working people of this country."

In New York to address the United Nations General Assembly, Carter said he expects the conference committee will approve "legislation that provides adequate production incentives while protecting the interests of American consumers."

To offset charges that the bill amounted to a consumer ripoff, Pearson and Bentsen included a provision to give residential users priority over older and cheaper natural gas reserves until they run out.

But energy specialists say the cheaper gas will be exhausted in about four years, when all customers will pay higher deregulated prices.

Supporters of deregulation say heating bills would rise only slightly, with one conservative estimate suggesting an increase of only $1.80 to $3.60 annually.

Administration gambling on peace parley push with Russ?

WASHINGTON (AP) — The unprecedented decision by the United States to join the Soviet Union in promoting a Geneva peace conference based on Palestinians' "legitimate rights" represents a gamble by the Carter administration. It may not pay off.

What the President and his closest advisers are betting is that Israel, having no big ally other than the United States, will sit down against its better judgment and negotiate a homeland for the Palestinians.

The invective directed at Israel during the current U.N. General Assembly session in New York by the Communist and Arab blocs and the socalled Third World dramatizes the loneliness of the Jewish state on the world scene.

But despite its unique military and economic reliance on this country, Israel remains a sovereign state. It could decide that disagreement with the United States is less of a risk than a Soviet-backed Palestinian state run by the Palestine Liberation Organization on its border.

If Israel chooses to buck Jimmy Carter, as its initial negative response to the U.S.-Soviet formula suggests it may, then the President's strategy urged on him by proponents of an "even-handed policy" in the Middle East will have backfired.

Carter might have his Geneva conference by Christmas but without substantive negotiations.

If the pressure tactics work, however, the President will be hailed in much of the world for overcoming Israeli resistance and viewed at home as a determined leader who achieved a break-through in the Middle East.

There was little reason to suspect as Carter campaigned for the White House that he would be so tough on Israel or that so many differences would develop between the two countries. He needled Gerald Ford and the Republican adminstration for delaying arms shipments and for making Israel the 'scapegoat" of U.S. Middle East policy.

Once on the job, however, Carter adopted the view of Arab specialists in the State Department and a key White House adviser that Palestinians posed not only a refugee problem but were an indentifiable people who deserved a homeland carved out of Israeli-held territory.

Carter also became convinced that Egypt, Jordan and Syria as well as their banker, Saudi Arabia, were finally resolved after four wars to a Jewish state in a Moslem world provided Israel returned virtually all the territory the Arabs lost in 1967.

The onus was put on Israel to relinquish the land, though there was no peace before 1967 when it was in Arab hands.

The Israeli government is prepared to test the theory that its neighbors want peace by negotiating treaties with them at Geneva. The alternative is a continued state of war debilitating to the Israeli and Egyptian economies. But Israel says it will not negotiate with the PLO, the sponsor of terrorist raids against Israeli civilians.

Carter's Middle East policy rests on the idea that peace in the area depends on a Palestinian homeland. Israel's backers are convinced that the opposite is true, that the PLO will find in U.S. acceptance the strength to renew its determination to dismantle the Jewish state.

The PLO remains committed in its charter to that goal. Promises of recognition by the United States for implicitly recognizing Israel have not worked their seductive charm.

San Dimas egg rancher wins housefly case against city

Judge says statute unconstitutional, dismisses charge

By CONRAD CASLER
PB Staff Writer

At least three city and county agencies were meeting today in an effort to wipe out a question mark in the health code book after a Pomona Municipal Court special judge declared the county's and San Dimas' fly control statute unconstitutional.

Siskiyou County Justice Court Judge Howard E. Jones Tuesday afternoon issued his judicial ruling after two days of testimony in the case of San Dimas egg rancher Neil Sheehan, charged with harboring and breeding flies on his Okaway-Ghent area ranch.

The judge declared the county statute vague and unenforceable since the average man with average intelligence could not determine what he was allowed to do and not to do under the regulations.

Under the statute, no one is allowed to have any flies, nor allow any flies to breed on his property.

Noting this is an impossibility and the fact the statute did not outline what a reasonable number of flies would be, Jones handed down his decision.

At Tuesday night's San Dimas City Council meeting, City Administrator Bob Poff said he and his staff will confer with officials of the county Health Department Thursday afternoon in an effort to determine if a new county statute should be written or San Dimas should write one of its own.

San Dimas' ordinance was declared unconstitutional, along with the county's. It was word for word the same health code law.

Meanwhile, Deputy Dist. Atty. Cliff Garrott, who attempted to uphold validity of the ordinance during the two day of trial, said he will turn the decision over to his superiors to determine if the case will be appealed by the district attorney. Until a Superior Court Appellate Division upholds and publishes Jones' decision, it will not become a precedent and other judges can ignore it, Garrott said.

Jones' decision effectively blocked any prosecution of Sheehan who faced a maximum fine of $500 and/or six months in jail. The judge said Sheehan's right to due process of law had been violated and dismissed the case before it could go to trial on its merits.

Sheehan was cited three months ago on complaints of a neighbor during a long-standing neighborhood dispute. He said after walking out of court free of charges, the same neighbor earlier turned him into Los Angeles County Fire Department for maintaining a fire hazard in the form of 3,000 6-foot tall pine trees he planted on his property to beautify the 2.8-acre ranch.

"The fire department did not cite me and declared the complaint ridiculous," Sheehan said.

The same neighbors are expected to appear on opposite sides at next Tuesday's 7:30 p.m. San Dimas City Council meeting when councilmen tackle the horse trails ordinance which has split the Oakway-Ghent area into two opposing camps again.

TV STUNT LOOKS REAL

Special effects men of the TV series "Emergency" staged this $45,000 explosion for the movie cameras Tuesday as they simulated an airliner hitting a row of houses during filming of an episode for the show. Prop men placed the fuselage of an old DC8 amid the wreckage of some homes that were being demolished for a future development. Dynamite and 210 gallons of gasoline provided this scene and two additional explosions.

Ribicoff says Carter should redraft plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter's energy plan is in such deep trouble in the Senate that it should be withdrawn and redrafted, a senior Democrat on the Senate Finance Committee said today.

Sen. Abraham Ribicoff, speaking in the wake of a major administration defeat on natural gas pricing and a continued impasse on energy taxes, said Congress should still try to pass the energy bill this year.

But he said, "Shouldn't the President admit his energy plan is in a shambles ... and that it's just not going to fly?"

"The administration should go back to the drawing boards and come up with a new program," said Ribicoff, D-Conn.

Morris Dam transfer rescinded

For a couple of hours Tuesday, the giant Morris Dam and reservoir was the property of Los Angeles County — but then Supervisor Kenneth Hahn gave it back to the Metropolitan Water District, at least for the time being.

At 10 a.m., the supervisors voted, with Baxter Ward dissenting, to accept the dam from the MWD free of charge. The water district claims it no longer needs the seven-billion gallon reservoir 12 miles northwest of Pomona.

Hahn, who believes the transfer would cost the county too much money, surprisingly voted for acceptance without any comment.

At noon he became aware of what he had done and called for reconsideration.

"My mind must have been somewhere else," he admitted. "I can't let an important issue like this go by without debate. I still want some answers before I can approve the transfer."

The board, as a courtesy to Hahn, then rescinded its approval and reset action for next Tuesday.

Hostage expert claims Japanese have given terrorists 'tremendous uplift'

LOS ANGELES (AP) — By acceding to the demands of leftist hijackers, the Japanese government has "reversed what happened at Entebbe" and given terrorists a "tremendous uplift," says an expert on hostage negotiations.

While the $6 million ransom paid to the Japanese Red Army members may be retrieved, the encouragement of future terrorism "is something you don't get back, and this is the really frightening loss," said H. Anthony Cooper, professor of criminal justice at American University.

"This (loss) is something for which we have not found the answer," Cooper told the 48th annual convention of the International Association of Chiefs of Police.

Solutions must be found by law enforcement officials themselves, he told several hundred police chiefs at a workshop. "One of the problems is to think that someone in Washington is busy working away on the problem ... ladies and gentlemen, there ain't no such beast," Cooper declared.

Cooper appeared at the meeting along with Irving Goldaber, a Brooklyn College sociologist. The two are consultants to the IACP, training heads of law enforcement agencies in dealing with hostage-takers.

Cooper did not agree with a statement that the Japanese government had advertised its willingness to pay terrorists large ransoms.

"They have done what anyone schooled in the martial arts would do—they have chosen to bow with the wind rather than break," he said. But he said this was not necessarily a precedent, adding, "I feel that the Japanese government will act with far greater freedom in the future."

Cooper remarked that the conference was being held at a "disappointing time" because of successful terrorist operations since the Israeli raid that freed hostages at Uganda's Entebbe Airport.

"We had appeared at the time to have gained a mastery over those who were challenging the power of the legitimate forces of law and order throughout the world," he said.

Califano asks federal drug law overhaul

WASHINGTON (AP) — HEW Secretary Joseph A. Califano Jr., today called for a "top-to-bottom, thorough overhaul" of the federal drug law to lift the secrecy from government proceedings and streamline the process for getting new drugs on the market and taking dangerous ones off.

In a speech prepared for Ralph Nader's Public Citizen Forum, the secretary of health, education and welfare criticized physicians for writing too many wasteful and unnecessary prescriptions. And he said the Food and Drug Administration should help educate consumers about the drugs they take and their potential hazards.

"The major problems that confront us in drug regulation lie in the basic, 40-year-old statute under which the FDA operates and in the resources available to the FDA to perform increasingly difficult tasks," Califano said.

He criticized the present law for perpetuating "time-consuming, repetitive processes that are closed to effective public review" and said the system unnecessarily increases the price of drugs and keeps consumers from knowing what they are taking.

Carter, Dayan agree on peace parley formula

NEW YORK (AP) — Israeli Foreign Minister Moshe Dayan, sidestepping a controversial American-Soviet declaration, announced today he and President Carter have agreed on a tentative formula for holding a Middle East peace conference in Geneva.

Dayan, facing reporters in the early hours of the morning following marathon talks with Carter, emphasized the formula must be accepted by his government and by Israel's Arab neighbors. He said it might well be amended in the process.

The surprise announcement was coupled with the reading by White House spokesman Jody Powell of a joint statement that pushed into the background last Saturday's American-Soviet declaration of principles intended as a guide for a Geneva conference.

A TRAGIC END

The high speed police chase is a necessary part of law enforcement, says experts, but it scenes like this — a Los Angeles police car wrapped around a telephone pole — that makes it essential that great care and discretion be used whenever a pursuit occurs.

Desert nuclear plant still in the study stage

SACRAMENTO (AP) — The proposal to build the Sundesert nuclear power plant in southeastern California should get the go-ahead to take it halfway through a three-year state review, the Energy Commission staff says.

The staff report Tuesday recommended approval — with conditions — of San Diego Gas & Electric Co.'s proposal to build the two-reactor complex near Blythe.

Approval of the notice of intent would not OK construction of the $2.3-billion plant on Palo Verdes Mesa. It would trigger another 18-month study before a final decision.

But acceptance of the staff report means acceptance of SDG&E's proposal that the energy from the plant is needed. A decision by a committee of the commission is due Nov. 3, and a full commission decision is due Dec. 21.

Then, unless alternatives like coal, oil or geothermal are feasible, a recently passed law would allow the Legislature to give the final go-ahead next spring.

The staff concluded that the electricity from the 1,950-megawatt complex is needed in Southern California in the mid-1980s and "The proposed plant will be generally safe and reliable."

But Loyd Forrest, commission executive director, said:

"The staff recommendation...is neither clear cut nor beyond dispute due to the complexity of the matter. We have conditioned it by further study and the fact the application for the certification phase of the approval process will give the public the opportunity to further explore questions about the plant."

The staff recommendation would approve SDG&E's primary site, 16 miles southwest of Blythe in Riverside County. Alternative sites were Palo Verde in Riverside County and Milpitas Wash in Imperial County. A fourth proposed site, outside Energy Commission authority, is Parker Valley, Ariz.

The staff also recommended that:

—The Commission examine whether participants in the project, including Los Angeles Department of Water and Power and a number of other Southern California agencies, have considered solar power and conservation measures to lessen the energy requirements.

—SDG&E reduce its share of the plant from 50 per cent to 33 per cent. SDG&E's capability of financing such a large project has been questioned at hearings.

—Further environmental studies be done on proposed transmission line routes.

—The commission further study nuclear safety and reliability issues as required by state law.

The staff opposed a proposed transmission route across Imperial County because of its environmental impact.

It found acceptable, with some exceptions, SDG&E's preferred northern corridor and Devers-to-Rainbow corridor for two 500-kilowatt transmission lines.

SDG&E, which submitted its notice of intent on Sundesert in June 1976, proposes to begin operating the first reactor in 1984.

Sundesert is the first nuclear plant proposed since 1974 legislation created the Energy Commission with sole authority over power plants in the state.

But that authority could be short-circuited by the Legislature because last year's nuclear regulatory laws have clamped a de-facto moratorium on future nuclear plants.

California's nuclear regulatory laws of 1976 ban new construction unless the Legislature accepts Energy Commission findings that spent fuel can be reprocessed and radioactive wastes can be stored.

But President Carter's reluctance to proceed with reprocessing has made a moratorium out of the state's laws.

Under the recent law backed by SDG&E, the Legislature could approve construction of Sundesert if the commission finds, in a Jan. 16 report, that the energy is needed and there are no alternatives. The staff report noted that the commission will continue to study oil, coal and geothermal as alternatives to nuclear at Blythe.

Police chase: necessary, but always dangerous

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Thrilling police chases with tires squealing and red lights flashing might be fun in movies and on television, but in real life they can end tragically.

In two Los Angeles incidents within four days' time, children were struck and killed by vehicles fleeing patrol cars.

"It's tragic, but this sort of thing happens so rarely that it's not enough to necessitate any change in our policy," said Asst. Police Chief Daryl Gates following the two deaths.

The policy, drawn up in 1971 and revised several times since, states:

"A pursuit shall be discontinued when there is a clear danger to the public or to the pursuing officers. A clear danger exists when speed dangerously exceeds the normal flow of traffic, or when pedestrian or vehicular traffic necessitates unsafe maneuvering of the vehicle."

Most chases, Gates stressed, end without incident. Out of 786 pursuits in Los Angeles last year, only 37 accidents resulted, a rate of less than four percent, he said.

A study done for the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration found that, out of an estimated 250,000 police pursuits each year, between 6,000 and 8,000 result in crashes, killing 300 to 400 persons and injuring 2,500 to 5,000.

"You've got to remember that it isn't the police that initiate the pursuits," Gates said. "The pursuits are initiated by those who want to escape. Typically, this is an individual who really doesn't have any regard for other drivers or for pedestrians."

According to the NHTSA study, men under 24 with poor driving records are the most likely to flee police. Furthermore, 15 percent of those involved in chases were driving without a valid license, and more than half had had their licenses revoked or suspended.

Critics of chase policies say persons wanted for misdemeanors such as minor traffic violations should not be pursued if the chase would endanger innocent lives.

"Obviously, if a guy is just double-parked for a couple of minutes, it isn't worth risking anybody's life over," commented Fred Okrand of the Los Angeles chapter of the American Civil Liberties Union.

In one of the chases, Hajah Faraidy, the 12-year-old daughter of a Saudi Arabian diplomat, died Sept. 24 in a three-car crash on the Santa Monica Freeway. The auto in which she was riding was rammed from behind by one being chased by police.

The other child who died was 8-year-old Joe Mena, who was waiting for his mother, Erolinda Carranza, outside a San Fernando Valley supermarket Sept. 27 when a pursued car careened across the parking lot and struck him.

"I really don't believe you can have a policy that will eliminate those kinds of accidents," Cypress Police Capt. Jerry Shumart commented after another chase in his suburban jurisdiction left two innocent motorists dead and two injured.

Gates also noted that the hair-raising police chases and roadblocks depicted in such films as "The French Connection" rarely occur.

He pointed out a section of the policy that states: "There shall be no attempts by police units to stop pursued suspects by 'boxing in,' 'heading off,' or driving alongside the pursued vehicle."

Also, the policy says officers generally must not chase a car the wrong way on a freeway and no multi-unit "caravans" of patrol cars shall chase a fleeing suspect. Chases are limited to a primary unit and one back-up unit.

The California Highway Patrol, whose chase procedures are similar to those of Los Angeles police, also discourages caravans. "We attempt to limit the numbers of units as part of our policy," Lt. Ken Rude said.

However, he said, the CHP will use their cars in roadblocks in some instances.

"If the pursued vehicle is going at a low speed, blocking is okay," he explaned. But no attempt is made to stop a rushing vehicle capable of sending expensive patrol cars flying like matchsticks.

Despite the restrictions, chases can be exciting, and some officers will admit they might be reluctant to give up such a chase.

"Once you get involved in these things," CHP Commissioner Glen Craig confided, "the pitch of the siren, the involvement of the chase . . . the flow of adrenalin is so high and people get so keyed up that it's sometimes very difficult to make the decision that says 'Hey, I've gone far enough.' "

Changing standards could hurt minorities

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Proposed University of California admissions standards increasing the weight given to test scores would have disqualified a substantial number of minorities, the university says.

If the standards had been in effect in 1976, 23 blacks, or 8.8 per cent of the total number of blacks admitted, and 25 Mexican-Americans, or 6.7 per cent, would have been ineligible for regular admission, says a UC study revealed Tuesday.

For the entire first-year class, 265 students, or 1.9 per cent, would have been ineligible.

But a top UC official says the figures don't mean minority enrollment will drop if the standards are adopted, in part because they will make some minorities eligible who weren't before.

However, protest from minority groups is expected when the regents consider the standards Oct. 20-21 in San Francisco.

Eligibility is now based almost solely on high school grades. But high schools have been criticized for "grade inflation," an increase in averages while scores on standardized tests decline.

So the UC Academic Senate has proposed placing greater reliance on standardized test scores for applicants at the lower range of eligibility, starting in 1979.

The effect would be to require high school students with a B average — 3.0 to 3.03 on a 4-point scale — to get a higher score on the Scholastic Aptitude Test of English and mathematics than they now need to qualify for admission.

At the same time, students with slightly lower averages, in the 2.85 or 2.9 range, could qualify with high SAT scores, an avenue that isn't open to them now.

Civil rights case lawyers may collect public reward

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The state Supreme Court has ruled that lawyers who successfully try cases that have wide benefits to citizens may be awarded reasonable legal fees by California courts.

The high court ruled Tuesday that a lawyer acting as a "private attorney general" may receive attorney fees from the state.

The 5-2 decision upheld a Los Angeles Superior Court ruling that awarded $800,000 to law firms which represented John Serrano Jr. and others in the Serrano versus Priest public school financing litigation.

That 1968 lawsuit led to the 1976 California Supreme Court decision which found the state's public school financing system invalid.

The Supreme Court said the attorneys' efforts resulted in the protection of constitutional rights which benefited a large number of people.

The trial court had awarded $400,000 to Public Advocates Inc. and $400,000 to the Western Center on Law and Poverty, two groups receiving public or tax-exempt charitable funding.

A dissent by Justice William Clark said courts are neither equipped nor empowered to award attorney fees in such a situation.

John McDermott, Western Center on Law and Poverty, hailed the decision as "the single biggest boon to public interest law that has ever taken place in California."

The 1976 Serrano-Priest decision affirmed the 1974 Superior Court ruling the school financing system was invalid because it violated equal protection under the state constitution. It also ordered school finance reform within six years.

State briefs

Influenza vaccine

SACRAMENTO (AP) — The state Health Department says influenza vaccine is to be distributed to county health departments this month.

Health Director Jerome Lackner said Tuesday the shipments will amount to 200,000 doses, which are recommended for high-risk persons, mainly chronically ill adults and children, and persons over 55 who are not allergic to the shots.

This year's vaccine contains A-Victoria-75 and B-Hong Kong-72 viruses, the prevailing strains this flu season, which generally runs from November through March.

He said that before being vaccinated, patients must read and sign statements explaining the benefits as well as the risks.

Immunizations also are available from private doctors.

Black's Beach

SAN DIEGO (AP) - A vote on banning nudity at Black's Beach was delayed until later today by the City Council after hearing a barrage of arguments from supporters.

A ballot proposition to prohibit all nudity on city beaches was approved by San Diego voters two weeks ago. Council members, as a result, were expected to rescind their 1974 resolution setting aside Black's as "swimsuit optional."

Civil defense study

LONG BEACH (AP) — The National Security Council has ordered a study of the nation's civil defense because survival rates in a nuclear attack could become a factor in U.S.-Soviet arms negotiations, says an aide to President Carter.

Greg Schneiders said Tuesday that civil defense could be a significant point in the Strategic Arms Limitations Talks. "We may offer to slow our civil defense developments, for example, if they will cool theirs," he said.

"What we don't want to develop is a situation where one nation can go underground and safely push a button," he added.

Schneiders' remarks came during a break in the annual convention of the United States Civil Defense Council. He and Bardyl R. Tirana, director of civil preparedness for the Department of Defense, addressed the meeting.

Eyeglass advertising

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The 2nd District Court of Appeal has ruled that California's law forbidding advertising of eyeglasses is unconstitutional.

The ruling, issued last Sept. 15 and made public Tuesday, comes in the wake of two federal court decisions overturning similar advertising bans.

The appellate court ruled that Terminal-Hudson Electronics of California was correct in challenging the advertising prohibitions.

The ruling reversed a decision handed down by Superior Court Judge Charles Phillips in April 1976 and ordered Phillips to formally declare the advertising law unconstitutional.

Police investigation

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Board of Police Commissioners has launched an investigation into the use of on-duty Los Angeles officers during this week's International Association of Chiefs of Police convention.

Asst. Police Chief Daryl Gates told the commission Tuesday he would have a report ready in two weeks.

Learning to love men with a badge

REDWOOD CITY (AP) — The offbeat course is called "I Love a Cop" and it's designed to help wives and girlfriends of policemen do just that.

Offered for the first time at Canada College, the class has become an instant hit with policemen's mates from the San Francisco area and has gained the support of several police agencies.

It took just a few days after the class was advertised to fill its roster and the waiting list for next semester is already long.

"I Love a Cop" is popular simply because cops are so hard to love, says Ellen Anderson, the 38-year-old psychotherapist who runs the class.

"When a rookie cop graduates from the police academy," she says, "his wife or girlfriend may get a corsage — but that's often the last time anyone in the department pays any attention to her."

And like the fictional cops in Joseph Wambaugh's "The Choir Boys," police wives need to have soul searching sessions — choir practices — to air their own special problems.

Mrs. Anderson, the wife of a police psychologist, says the aim of "I Love a Cop" is to fill that void of silence, to give the wives a "room, chairs to sit on — and the emotional space to share their experiences in an atmosphere of trust and support."

She says cops balk at hashing out their job-related tensions and frustrations with their wives because they don't want to "contaminate the little woman."

As a result, says Mrs. Anderson, police wives often must cope in "desperation and isolation" with family troubles spawned by their husband's own cop hang-ups.

"Policemen are always running into their own bad sides out there in the streets," she says. "...and that can lead to destructive behavior against loved ones unless it is resolved.

"Officers are never off-duty and the pressures of that situation affect everyone in the family."

Teamster convicted

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Edward Grady Partin, the powerful business manager of a Louisiana Teamsters local whose testimony helped convict former Teamsters boss James Hoffa, has been convicted of three counts of conspiracy to obstruct justice.

Partin was charged with hiding two witnesses against him in a 1972 obstruction of justice trial in Houston, Texas. Partin was acquitted in that case, which dealt with an alleged threat against former Teamster official Wade McClanahan in 1970.

The two witnesses — Richard Baker and Claude Roberson — had earlier told a federal grand jury in New Orleans that they had overheard the threat.

Testimony in the trial, which resulted in Tuesday's conviction, indicated Baker stayed at a hunting camp in south Louisiana with one teamster and that Roberson stayed out of sight at a motel and horse ranch in southern Oklahoma during October 1972.

Partin was the principal government witness in the jury-tampering trial of James Hoffa in the 1960s.

Partin faces a maximum eight-year sentence imposed in an earlier trial in Alexandria, La., by federal Judge Nauman Scott. That conviction was overturned by the U.S. Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals in New Orleans.

Dog bite victim looking for help

A Pomona woman bitten by three dogs in Weber Street Park Sept. 29 is searching for the animals to determine her need for a rabies inoculation.

Loretta Puster, 1230 Pavilion St., Pomona was walking her two small dogs in the park when the dogs attacked her smaller animals. In breaking up the fight, Mrs. Puster was bitten by one of the attacking animals.

The dogs were described as two boxers and a pit bull, all of which may have come from the same litter. The boxers were said to be smaller and of a lighter color than the normal boxer. The pit bull was said to be a brindle color. One of the dogs had had its ears cropped.

Mrs. Puster's husband, Otto, said the three dogs were spotted on the corner of Weber and Orange Grove Avenue Saturday about 7 a.m.

If the dogs are not found, Mrs. Puster will have to begin the series of rabies shots on Friday.

Sirica ends tenure with compassionate act

Reduces sentences of Erlichman, Haldeman, Mitchell

WASHINGTON (AP) — Judge John J. Sirica, once known as "Maximum John," ended his Watergate tenure with a compassionate act, making it possible for the Big Three of the cover-up to leave prison after serving only one year.

"I guess you can now call me Minimum John," Sirica quipped Tuesday after he reduced the 2½-8 year sentences of John N. Mitchell, John D. Ehrlichman and H.R. Haldeman to 1-4 years. "I'm glad it's the last major decision I'll have rendered in this case."

For Sirica, the ruling was the last of many in the five years since his involvement began in Watergate and its many tangled offshoots. He was known as "Maximum John" by courthouse habitues because of his tough sentences.

No more Watergate criminal cases are pending and the 73-year-old judge is considering taking senior status with a reduced workload.

Sirica announced his decision after listening to impassioned pleas by the three men and their attorneys. Ironically, in a courtroom where so much of the drama has concerned tape recordings, the voices of Mitchell, Haldeman and Ehrlichman were on tape.

The judge had sent a probation officer to question the men inside prison and the playing of the tape was a dramatic surprise.

Ehrlichman becomes eligible for parole on Oct. 28 if federal judge Gerhard A. Gesell, who sentenced him in the Ellsberg psychiatrist break-in case, reduces that sentence also, as is expected.

If not, Ehrlichman's parole eligibility begins next June, along with that of Haldeman and Mitchell.

Ehrlichman, domestic counselor to Richard Nixon when he was president, elected to begin serving his sentence before his appeal to the Supreme Court was decided and entered prison eight months before his co-defendants in the cover-up trial.

He works in the power house at the federal prison camp at Safford, Ariz., and his lawyer, Stuart Stiller, told Sirica: "He went from sitting in the Oval Office and now he sits in the power house."

Mitchell, the 64-year-old former attorney general, suffers from an arthritic right hip that needs replacement — an operation that his lawyer, William G. Hundley, says cannot be performed while he is a prisoner at Maxwell Air Force Base in Alabama.

And Haldeman, the Nixon chief of staff who will be 51 later in the month, is "in charge of the chemistry at the sewer plant" at the federal facility in Lompoc, Calif., his lawyer, John W. Wilson said.

Their release from prison will not be automatic. When their eligibility date nears, each man will be interviewed by parole officers whose recommendation must then be approved by the U.S. Parole Commission.

Without Sirica's action — or intervention by President Carter, which had not been requested — Ehrlichman would not have been eligible for parole until April 1979 and Haldeman and Mitchell not until December 1979.

In the tape interviews, each man spoke of his remorse about the acts that brought his conviction for conspiring to cover-up White House involvement in the Watergate break-in.

"I had an exaggerated sense of obligation to do what I was bidden," Ehrlichman said. "There were all kinds of red flags. I abdicated my moral judgments and turned them over to somebody else. If I had any advice for my kids it would be 'never, ever, assign your moral judgments to anybody.'"

Mitchell said that since the coverup trial in late 1974, he has had considerable remorse and regret that he acted as he had.

"No set of circumstances, whatever they might be, would ever again cause me to perform such actions or lead me to commit such deeds," the former attorney general said.

Haldeman's statement to Sirica was low key, but his lawyer waxed eloquent.

"Society has had its retribution," Wilson told Sirica. "Four and a half years of uncertainty and anxiety as the outcome of an evil act has paid his debt to society...Bob Haldeman has already suffered a lifetime of punishment in the nearly four months that he has been at Lompoc."

MIGRANTS ARRESTED

U.S. Border Patrol agents Tuesday arrested 11 of about 200 illegal migrant workers on strike against a ranch here in Phoenix owned by Goldmar Inc., a partnership firm owned by Robert Goldwater, brother of Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., and others.

Deny link in arrest of illegal migrants, Goldwater strike

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — U.S. Border Patrol officials deny that a raid on the Arrowhead, owned in part by Sen. Barry Goldwater's brother, ranch had anything to do with a strike by about 200 illegal migrant workers.

Agents arrested 11 illegal aliens at the ranch Tuesday and bused them across the border.

The field hands at the ranch in suburban Glendale went on strike Monday for higher wages, more sanitary and better working conditions.

The ranch is owned by Goldmar Inc., owned by Robert Goldwater and the Arthur Martori family of Scottsdale, Ariz. Robert Goldwater is president of the large agriculture and land development firm, but the Martori family reportedly runs the ranch.

The Maricopa County Organizing Project, which spearheaded the strike, accused the Border Patrol of helping Goldmar in the dispute. Patrol officials denied the charge.

There was no comment from Goldmar officials concerning the arrests.

The striking workers said they are seeking $3 an hour, instead of their current $2.20 an hour wage, shelter and sanitation facilities.

Police say illegal aliens fled their open air camps in the ranch's citrus groves Tuesday when four Patrol agents arrived.

The outcome in Atlanta, Cleveland, Albuquerque elections for mayor

By Associated Press

Maynard Jackson, Atlanta's first black mayor, praised the Southern city's race relations as "far superior to any city its size or bigger" after he captured more than 60 per cent of the vote to win a second term.

Cleveland Mayor Ralph Perk, seeking a fourth term, said his defeat was due to tough decisions "I knew would hurt me politically."

In another mayoral race Tuesday, David Rusk, son of former U.S. Secretary of State Dean Rusk, defeated incumbent Albuquerque, N.M. Mayor Harry Kinney, winning more than 40 per cent of the vote as required to avoid a runoff.

Rusk, 37, had come to Albuquerque in 1971 from Washington, D.C., on loan to the city as a federal manpower executive. He resigned from that job in 1973 to go to work directly for the city and most recently had served in the state House of Representatives.

And in Albany, Ga., incumbent Mayor James H. Gray Sr. and City Commissioner Mary Young battled each other into an Oct. 18 runoff in the first election since a federal judge ordered the city's voting districts redrawn to correct alleged racial discriminaton.

Mrs. Young, a 34-year-old black attorney, had filed the discrimination suit three years ago. Gray is white.

Jackson, 39, who was first won office in 1973 in a close election, predicted final results would show he won more than 90 per cent of the black vote in Atlanta, which is 55 per cent black.

He conceded he got only slightly more than 25 per cent of the white vote. He called this "disappointing but very regular as long as we have a nation as it is."

In Cleveland's nonpartisan primary, Perk, 63, a Republican who succeeded the city's only black mayor, Carl Stokes, in 1971, was defeated by two young Democrats who roughly split the city's white and black vote.

The top finishers who will face each other in the Nov. 8 general election are Edward Feighan, a 29-year-old state representative, and Dennis Kucinich, a 30-year-old Municipal Court clerk.

The two Democrats had concentrated on issues of deteriorating neighborhoods, crime, inner-city housing and Perk's support of tax abatements to stimulate downtown development his decision to sell the city-owned Municipal Light Co.

Perk, who once ran for the U.S. Senate and was county auditor for 10 years, said he would like to stay in public service. "Perhaps I have a new role as a civic leader," he said.

An unofficial final count showed Kucinich with 40,134 votes, to Feighan's 39,699 and Perk's 36,260.

Atlanta's Jackson spent an estimated $200,000, 10 times more than any of six opponents, although his campaign never showed signs of weakness.

Political opponents and some union representatives who backed Jackson in 1973 criticized him for firing 1,000 city workers to break a garbage strike this year. Most of the workers were rehired later.

Emma Darnell, the mayoral candidate who hit that issue hardest, came in a poor fourth in the balloting behind businessman Harold Dye and Fulton County Commissioner Milton Farris.

Besides the "strike-busting" issue, several candidates tried to tarnish Jackson's image by frequent reference to cheating on promotion tests in the police department.

With 98 per cent of the precincts reported, Jackson had 52,838 votes, Dye 14,842, Farris 11,736 and Miss Darnell 3,460.

Meanwhile, in New Orleans, a review of voting machines from last Saturday's mayoral primary determined that City Councilman Joseph V. DiRosa defeated state Sen. Nat Kiefer by a mere 265 votes for a place in the Nov. 12 runoff with state Appeals Court Judge Ernest N. "Dutch" Morial.

Morial is the first black to emerge as a serious candidate for mayor in New Orleans' history.

7 jailed in beating over domino game

Pomona police this morning held seven persons, one a woman, in connection with the beating of a man, reportedly following an earlier fight over a $1 bet on a domino game.

The victim, Robert H. Shehee Jr., 23, suffered facial injuries and possibly broken ribs when he was beaten to the ground and kicked after being dragged from his apartment at 1111 E. Seventh St. early Tuesday, said police. He was treated at Pomona Valley Community Hospital.

Police later arrested the suspects and booked them on suspicion of kidnaping, burglary and assault with a deadly weapon. They were stopped as they sped away from the area of the incident in a car being driven without lights.

Police found Shehee lying in the front yard at 1096 Eighth St., severly beaten. They were told that when he refused to see several persons at the apartment, the door was kicked in and he was dragged away.

Two of those arrested were 17-year-old Inglewood and Los Angeles youths. The rest were Pomonans.

Auto slams into tree; pair injured

Two men were injured early Wednesday when the driver reportedly failed to stop for a stop sign at Philadelphia and Pipe Line avenues near Chino and his vehicle crashed into a tree.

The driver, Edgar Asa Neher, 26, 141 Princeton Ave., Claremont, was taken to Kaiser Foundation Hospital in Fontana where his condition is listed as stable. A passenger, Robert Bernard Burke, 27, 780 N. Spruce Ave., Upland, was treated at Chino General Hospital and released.

Highway patrolmen said the car was reported going at a high rate of speed south on Pipe Line. The driver slammed on his brakes at the intersection and the vehicle skidded 94 feet before crashing into the tree, they added.

Man claims locked in van, vehicle set afire

Los Angeles County sheriff's deputies today were investigating a young Los Angeles man's story that he was kidnaped, driven to the San Gabriel Mountains and locked inside his van by a trio who then set the vehicle afire.

The victim, Robert Preciado, 19, was found near his burning, brand-new $7,000 custom van on Glendora Mountain Road, six miles north of Sierra Madre Avenue north of Azusa.

Deputies said that Preciado told them he was kidnaped at knife-point from a dance in the east Pasadena area early today by two men and a woman. En route to the mountains, he said, the trio stopped and bought a can of gasoline. When they reached mountains they locked Preciado inside the van and set it on fire, he said. He managed to free himself.

Boy with martial arts weapon jailed

A 14-year-old Pomona boy was arrested late Tuesday afternoon by police who charged that he possessed an illegal Asian martial arts weapon.

The youth, who was held briefly and then released to his parents, was arrested in the 1000 block of E. Phillips Blvd., Pomona. Police said there was a confrontation there of approximately 30 teen-agers.

The weapon, consisting of a pair of wooden handles connected by a length of chain, was confiscated by police.

Man stabbed in Alta Loma street brawl

An Alta Loma man was stabbed Tuesday night during a fight involving eight to 10 other men near Helman Avenue and La Ronda Street, Alta Loma, said sheriff's deputies.

Timothy Allan Curtis, 20, suffered stab wounds in the stomach and arm. He was treated at San Antonio Community Hospital and transferred to San Bernardino County Hospital.

A companion with him was not injured.

Curtis told sheriff's deputies he and his friend were driving east on La Ronda Street when the persons crossed in front of his car.

An argument began, and Curtis stopped his vehicle. A fight was then started, said deputies.

Carter takes tour of blighted Bronx area

NEW YORK (AP) — President Carter, accompanied by his housing secretary and New York Mayor Abraham D. Beame, made an unscheduled visit today to the South Bronx, an area as bleak as any blighted neighborhood in the nation.

Carter, who came to New York on Tuesday to address the United Nations General Assembly, made the morning auto tour of the area devastated by arson and crime with the mayor and Patricia Harris, secretary of housing and urban development, at his side.

The officials emerged from the presidential limousine twice. At the second stop, Carter stood in the rubble of what once were tenements and ordered that a study be made as to what in the South Bronx "ought to be salvaged and what ought to be torn down."

He told Mrs. Harris to "get a map of the whole area and show me what should be done."

Ontario gas station robbed

A nervous bandit armed with a handgun robbed a service station at 1155 N. Grove Ave., Ontario of a small amount of cash Tuesday.

The robber entered the station office as the attendant was putting money in a safe. The attendant said the robber stood there shaking as he demanded the cash.

The gunman was described as a Latin, 16 to 18 years old, 5 feet 7, skinny, with long, black hair. He had tattoos on both arms and wore a white T-shirt and blue jeans.

Americans willing to pay more for national health care

CHICAGO (AP) — A slight majority of the American public is willing to pay higher taxes for some kind of national health care system, says a former campaign pollster for President Carter.

Fifty-one per cent of a 2,500 persons polled recently expressed a willingness to pay more taxes even "in view of the anti-Washington, anti-government, anti-tax mood," Patrick H. Caddell said in a speech Tuesday at a symposium on National Health Care sponsored by Blue Cross and Blue Shield.

Caddell, now president of Cambridge Survey Research, Inc., and an unofficial Carter adviser, said he expects the President will use data from the survey to develop a plan to expand the government's role in health care and insurance.

Numerous health insurance bills are pending in Congress and Health, Education and Welfare Secretary Joseph Califano has promised to present an administration plan to Carter by early next year.

Cadell says 43 per cent of the public is opposed to increased taxes while four per cent is undecided.

He said that 16 per cent of those polled wanted to keep the current health care system, 26 per cent wanted the federal government to pay insurance premiums for the poor, 34 per cent wanted a national health care program that guarantees medical treatment for all and 18 per cent favored a totally nationalized medical system. Another six per cent was undecided.

Old, old wine

In the Tuscany hills of Italy where the Cianti wine grape is grown, paleontologists have discovered a million-year-old fossil grape vine they think may be an ancestor of the same "Vitis vinifera" cultivated there today.

Landscape class offered in Chino

Classes in landscaping and the psychology of everyday living are being offered by the Chino Community Adult School, starting this week.

The landscaping class will be held on Mondays from 7 to 10 p.m. at Chino High School. Instructor will be Richard Johnson.

Starting Thursday, the psychology of everyday living class will be held in the recreation building from 9 to noon. Penny Dapello is the instructor.

Further information is available by calling the adult school office at 628-1201, ext. 345, between 8 a.m. and 4 p.m. daily.

Back-to-school night at Yorba elementary

Yorba Elementary School, Pomona, will host its back-to-school night Thursday at 7:30 p.m. in the auditorium.

Parents and friends are invited to visit the classrooms and meet the teachers. Yorba PTA will provide refreshments.

Aleda Weikel heads the Yorba PTA slate of officers as president for 1977-78. Other officers are Debbie Davis, first vice president; Sylvia Osborn, second vice president; Anna O'Brien, third vice president; Marsha Pflugrath, fourth vice president; Janet Beech, secretary; Sandy Baughn, treasurer; Jackie Cascio, historian; Tomas Lester, auditor; Judy Slagle, parliamentarian; Harland Donahue, advisor.

Committee chairmen are Shirley Brooks, publicity; Jan Beech, newsette; Diane Armstrong, telephone; Judy Noble, courtesy and hospitality; Karen McNeill, records; Shawna Lyman, tutors; Sue Jennings, welfare.

Political arena

Eighteen of 36 city council candidates running for five seats on Rancho Cucamonga council will appear at a Cucamonga Chamber of Commerce question and answer lunch Oct. 12.

Site of the luncheon is Magic Lamp Inn at 8189 Foothill Blvd. in Cucamonga.

Each candidate will be allowed a brief statement of his reasons for running and qualifications.

Last month, 15 of 18 other candidates appeared at a similar luncheon.

Voters in Alta Loma, Cucamonga and Etiwanda will vote Nov. 8 on whether to incorporate as a city. At the same time they will vote for five city councilmen. But if the incorporation measure fails, council elections will be voided automatically.

Legislation by SEN. WILLIAM CAMPBELL, R-33rd Dist., Whittier, creating a small claims court hearing procedure for complaints involving disputed utility charges of $750 or less has been signed into law by GOVERNOR BROWN.

"This legislation will greatly benefit those Californians who are overbilled or who otherwise have legitimate complaints against utilities by allowing them to present their claims to the Public Utilities Commission through this expedited hearing procedure," said Campbell.

"Initiated S.B. 266 when a constituent of mine with 14 years of overcharges by a telephone company was faced with the possibility of retaining legal counsel in order to obtain her money.

"The enactment of this legislation will provide a greatly simplified alternative for consumers in California."

S. B. 266 takes effect in January.

The state general fund ended the 1976-77 fiscal year June 30 with an unrestricted surplus of $1.71 billion, a growth of almost a billion dollars in one year, STATE CONTROLLER KENNETH CORY reported.

The general fund unrestricted surplus was $982 million higher than for the prior year and was in addition to $242 million of federal revenue sharing monies deposited in a special fund until appropriated for use, Cory said.

The total general fund surplus was $1.84 billion from which was deducted $115.3 million as reserve for continuing appropriations, and $11.3 million as reserve for special accounts. The balance of $1.71 billion constituted the unrestricted surplus available for appropriation.

"This unprecedented surplus condition is the product of a year of inflation and economic growth in the state which far outstripped attempts to predict general fund revenues and expenditures," said Cory.

"The surplus gives the general fund a healthy head start in the current fiscal year but we cannot forget that a changeable economic climate carries no guarantee that such a surplus can be maintained."

Cory said a substantial surplus from the prior year allowed the general fund to operate through 1976-77 without internal borrowing to meet cash needs. It was the fifth consecutive year without such borrowing.

"Despite a phenomenal flow of revenues throughout the year, there still were five months when the cumulative cash disbursements exceeded the cumulative cash receipts," said Cory.

"This indicated the potential for cash flow problems still exists if revenues falter or expenditures increase in the future.

The surplus figure was part of Cory's annual preliminary financial statement for the general fund and all other governmental cost funds. Any subsequent changes will be reflected in the complete annual report of the state controller which will contain detailed accounting of all state funds.

Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. has given approval to ASSEMBLYMAN BILL McVITTIE'S efforts to protect property buyers from unscrupulous land sellers.

Signed by the governor was the Assembly Bill 815, which requires people selling land to disclose whether it has been divided in conformity with the Subdivision Map Act. The bill takes effect Jan. 1, 1978.

McVittie, D-65th Dist., Upland, said people purchasing some undeveloped land in California "are being taken for a ride."

"During legislative hearings on the bill, we heard case after case where people spent their life savings on property intending to build a retirement home or vacation retreat, and were then notified of their land's noncompliance with the Map Act.

"In order to bring about compliance, buyers are forced to locate additional money to pay for any required improvements such as drainage and roads," McVittie said.

The new law provides stiff penalties for people caught selling illegally divided land. The purchaser will be entitled to recover from the seller all costs of bringing the land into compliance, or have the sale voided and recover damages. In additon, any seller who violates the new land can be fined $1.000 and jailed for six months.

Spider: move over Miss Muffet

SEATTLE (AP) — Move over, Miss Muffet. It's getting crowded.

The spider population of King County seems to be on the rise, and cooler weather soon will force the crawly, eight-legged creatures indoors, says George Pinyuh of the County Extension Service.

"I have no scientific proof, but this long summer has made more insects so the spiders have a lot more to eat," he said.

Pinyuh says spiders are beneficial, but he's aware of the creature's public relations problem.

The Pinyuh Spider Prevention Plan is simple: "If it bothers you, step on it."

Grand Showing the ALL NEW

1978 BUICK AND OLDSMOBILE

1978 Oldsmobile

Can we build one for you?

CUTLASS CRUISER

It rides much like a Cutlass sedan, works like a wagon, and offers impressive gas mileage.

Open a door and you'll see how easy it is to get in and out. Slip into the comfort of the full-foam seats and you're aware that we've increased front headroom and legroom, front and rear, over its '77 counterpart.

CUTLASS CALAIS

In the cockpit-where it all comes together. You, snug in that reclining bucket seat. Your hands easy on the custom-sport wheel. Full instrumentation tells you what's going on: Tachometer, engine temperature, oil pressure, voltage. All controls within reach. Now find a winding stretch of road. That's where you unmask the imposters and discover the real thing.

DELTA 88 ROYALE COUPE

Designed from the ground up to be one beautiful driving car. The shortened turning radius and taut wheelbase contributed to impressive maneuverability in city traffic. Positive caster in the front suspension was increased. Power steering, power brakes and automatic transmission are all standard, of course. And that first drive was an unforgettable experience. What you felt on the road was an exciting, beautiful sense of control. Which may be exactly what attracted so many new buyers in '77.

Diesel V8 power

Oldsmobile offers a whole new kind of engine that combines the basic economy of a diesel with performance you wouldn't expect from a diesel.

It runs on money saving diesel fuel, yet it offers surprising acceleration and a liveliness the most powerful diesel foreign cars in America never had.

TURBOCHARGED V-6

Perhaps the biggest engine story since the V-6 itself, has to be the new 3.8 litre turbocharged V-6.

While somewhat unique to production automobiles, turbocharging is a tried and proven method of gaining added power from a given engine displacement. The turbocharger is designed to harness exhaust gases just as they leave the engine. These gases drive a turbine, thus the word "turbo," which in turn drives a compressor that forces an increased air/fuel charge" into the combustion chambers. As a result, this highly pressurized charge of fuel and air delivers more power per piston stroke. Hence the added punch when you put your foot down.

BUICK

A TRADITION FOR 75 YEARS

IF YOUR GOING TO PAY THE PRICE OF A BUICK WHY NOT OWN ONE?

REGAL

This is the 1978 Regal, a beautiful example of how we've employed science to meet the needs of the times. And, at the same time, maintained the magic of Buick's famed luxury ride. Regal for 1978. We've lavished it with science to improve its roadability. And we've touched it with magic to make it luxurious and fun to drive.

CENTURY SEDAN

There are three new Century Sedans: Special, Custom and Limited. These new Sedans also feature fixed, second-seat windows and swingout rear vent windows that provide ventilation for rear-seat passengers. Operation is manual, with a power option available. And if you're used to a smaller car, Century is a great way to get interior room, Buick ride, and still have a car that's a joy to drive.

ELECTRA 225 COUPE

Inside the new Electra, function and opulence coexist happily.

Here there is spacious seating for six. And what beautiful seating it is. Depending on the model you desire, your fabric choice takes in a broad range of materials and colors. Everything from textures vinyl to buttoned-and-tufted crushed velour. The seats themselves feature full-foam construction for comfort.

Your feet rest on deep, cut-pile carpeting. Overhead, the ceiling is covered in elegant fabric.

Master plan is subject of tri-communities tour

Tours of Alta Loma, Cucamonga and Etiwanda areas of San Bernardino County's West End will be conducted by county planning commissioners Thursday followed by a citizens' seminar to discuss the area's growth and general plan.

Purpose of the 7 p.m. meeting with residents of the tri-community neighborhood is to acquaint citizens with the county's overall environmental and growth plan for the region, according to county planning intern Maryann Cordova.

Work on the tri-community general plan began last January, well before citizens of the area filed for an election next month to determine if residents want the area incorporated into the city of Rancho Cucamonga. If voters turn down the incorporation bid Nov. 8, the plan will be adopted subject to county supervisors' approval and amendments.

If Rancho Cucamonga is voted into existence, the newly formed city council can either adopt the county's general plan for the area, portions of it or scrap it altogether and start from scratch, Miss Cordova said.

A building moratorium ended Aug. 1, allowing subdividers to proceed with large developments held in limbo several months. But new restrictions have been enacted effective Aug. 3 which makes winning subdivision approval much more difficult to obtain, Miss Cordova said.

Thursday night's meeting at Alta Loma Elementary School, open to all residents of the tri-community area, will deal with overall generalities and not specifics, Miss Cordova said.

MSAC band in Arizona

The Mt. San Antonio College musical band will appear in the annual London Bridge Days parade Saturday at Lake Havasu City, Ariz.

The parade traditionally inaugurates the climax day of Lake Havasu City's festival which this year celebrates the sixth anniversary of the opening of the London Bridge at this resort city on the Colorado River.

Recycling center goes to market

Offering a more convenient recycling location to serve residents of several communities, Reynolds Aluminum Recycling Co. has moved its mobile collection unit from San Dimas to become a part of Vons Grocery Co.'s environmental program in La Verne.

Each Tuesday from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m., the unit is at the Vons supermarket, 1475 Foothill Blvd. Reynolds pays 17 cents a pound for aluminum cans and other clean household aluminum.

Jim Nutter, Reynolds plant manager, said the new location is less than three miles from the discontinued San Dimas site at 1039 W. Arrow Highway. "We certainly thank San Dimas residents for their support and hope they will continue to recycle at the new location," he said.

Vons, in cooperation with Reynolds, has aluminum recycling collections at participating supermarkets throughout Southern California. Reynolds operates more than 800 outlets.

Montclair gives approval to federal grant projects

By MAE TATE
PB Staff Writer

The Montclair City Council approved Monday a tentative project and appropriations list for the expenditure of $248,572 in Community Development Block Grant Act funds for 1978-79.

The council accepted the recommendations from its Community Participation Advisory Committee, giving the biggest chunk of the available dollars — $150,000 — to housing improvement projects.

The number one priority for housing improvement includes rehabilitation loans and grants and repair service grants.

Housing coordinator Lee McDougal detailed the other project allocations as code enforcement, $40,000; park improvements, $17,000; public improvements, including street and handicapped curb ramp improvements, $23,000; and contingency/local option account, $18,572.

McDougal noted that the total $248,572 is not an exact figure and said the actual allocation may differ 10 per cent one way or the other. He recommended that any decrease or increase in the allocation be channeled from or into the contingency account.

In another CDA issue, McDougal recommended that the council rechannel $64,500 into four other projects because of a previous council decision to pay consulting fees for a redevelopment feasibility study from 1976-77 funds. That study by Urban Projects Inc. had previously been scheduled to be paid for out of community development dollars in the 1977-78 budget.

"Because UPI is being compensated with funds from previous years' grant allocations, it is not necessary to budget 1977-78 CDA funds for this purpose. Therefore, staff is recommending the surplus appropriation of $64,500 be transferred to other ongoing eligible CDA projects," McDougal read from his written report.

The reappropriations are the Central Avenue development program, $12,500; repair service program, $20,000; park improvements, $20,000; and street improvements, $12,000.

Homecoming court for Walnut named

By NORMA ORTIZ
Walnut Correspondent

The senior class of Walnut High School has voted on the 1977 homecoming court. The nominees for homecoming queen and king were announced on Sept. 23. They are princesses Patty Batista, Charise Galbraith, Shelly Hillseth, Karen Motcshall, Jackie Paulson, Cindy Pearson, Sandy Renne, Wendy Saviola, Kim Snyder and Julie Valdez, and princes Andy Crowe, Pat Flaherty, Mario Flores, Steve Green, Brad Hurst, Bill McMillan, Jim Morey, Tony Rossi, Bill Sapulding, and Doug Vind.

The crowning of the queen and king will take place on Friday, after voting by the student body.

TV violence study concludes changes should be demanded

A report on television violence and juvenile crime presented to the Los Angeles County Board of Education concludes that there is "good reason for demanding changes" in television programming.

Presented by Chief Deputy Supt. E. Maylon Drake, the seven-page report summarizes the reasons the Los Angeles County Superintendent of Schools office has taken the position that prevailing concentration of violence on television is detrimental to school-age children.

"One of the major concerns of those involved in television violence research is the blase, unfeeling attitude many children develop toward violent acts, due to the number of such acts they are exposed to on television," the report states.

It further notes "the typical child, upon high school graduation, will have witnessed over 100,000 violent acts, 13,000 of which will be fatal shootings, knifings, beatings, poisonings, etc."

The report, "Television Violence and Its Relationship to Aggressive Behavior," was prepared by the county school office staff in response to a July 12 motion of the county Board of Supervisors that the impact of television violence upon children should be reviewed by the County Superintendent of Schools, Richard M. Clowes.

In a letter to the county supervisor, Clowes wrote: "It is the position of this office that continued emphasis on violence in television programming is detrimental to children, to the educational process, and the development of responsible citizenship in a free society."

Clowes noted that in one evening of standard television fare, a viewer witnesses more violence than the average person sees in a lifetime. Although a casual relationship between this violence and juvenile crime cannot be scientifically established, he added, studies indicate that television violence stimulates aggressive behavior in children.

The report, presented to the county board of education, concludes that a passive attitude toward television programming is not acceptable. Quoting from a 1975 study of the problem, "Television Violence and the Child," by Douglass Cater and Stephen Strickland, the report closes with the warning: ". . . to do nothing is to do something."

O-M schools have parent night

Two schools in the Ontario-Montclair School District have scheduled back-to-school nights for parents on Thursday and Oct. 13.

Cypress Orthopedic School will hold its back-to-school program Thursday at 6 p.m. There will be a potluck dinner.

Vineyard School will have its back-to-school event on Oct. 13 from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. The school's event is being called an open house and ice cream social.

Parents' class offered

A parent effectiveness training program will begin Thursday at 7:30 p.m. at 586 N. Main St., suite 102, Pomona.

The program, sponsored by the Pomona First Baptist Church, teaches skills and methods of relating between the parents and children.

Carol Reinberger, the instructor, worked last summer with Lyman Coleman (Faith at Work) and uses the program in her work with parents in the Ontario-Montclair School District.

The cost will be $100 per couple, or $65 per person. The first session is open to the public at no cost. Classes will meet from 7:30 to 10:30 p.m. Thursdays for nine weeks. For more information, persons may phone the church's Creative Counseling Center at 622-0038.

Underwater films shown

Dr. Alan Menkes, Claremont physician, will show films taken during underwater exploration at the Thursday noon meeting of the Claremont Kiwanis Club at Griswold's.

Dr. Menkes dives into the fascinating world beneath the sea and records what he finds. The films cover trips to Hawaii and Tahiti.

The physician graduated from the Philadelphia College of Osteopathic Medicine and practiced in Michigan and Florida before moving to California in 1976.

What's going on around here

Camera Club

The Pomona Valley Camera Club will feature Jo Ann Fitzgibbons of Upland Thursday at 7:30 p.m. at the First Christian Church, Pomona.

She will speak on the fashion field as to its place in photography, with emphasis on color harmony, proper clothes and skin make up that matches the individual.

Club members have won recognition at the Los Angeles County Fair in the field of photography. Elaine Jeche received "honorable mention" in nature division; John Reed, an acceptance in the same division, and Pete Petersen, three awards in the print color division.

The meeting is open to the public and there is no charge.

Language survey

During the week of Oct. 10, Walnut Valley Unified School District will conduct its survey on primary languages spoken in the home.

This survey is required by California law. The same survey will be used by all districts in the state. It was developed by the State Department of Education.

The survey will be sent home with students. Parents are urged to respond to the simple questionnaire promptly so the district can meet the state requirements.

Princess program

The fathers and daughters of the Indian Nation of Y-Indian Princesses of the Diamond Bar-Walnut YMCA will be camping out this weekend at McGrath State Park in Oxnard.

This is a twice a year function of the father-daughter organization. It provides a chance for each father and daughter to share in many rewarding experiences.

For further information about the Y-Indian Princesses, persons may contact the Diamond Bar-Walnut YMCA at 595-5015.

Trailblazers program

The Trailblazers of the Diamond Bar-Walnut YMCA will camp at Aquatic Park in Carlsbad Oct. 15 and 16.

The Trailblazers is an organization of fathers and children, grades four through eight which meets through the guidance of the YMCA.

For further information regarding the Trailblazers, persons may contact the Diamond Bar-Walnut YMCA at 595-5015.

Bilingual program

Pomona Unified School District's Bilingual Education Program recently began operation of its bilingual preschool classes at Lexington, Madison and Philadelphia elementary schools.

The program is accepting applications for enrollment of children three and four years old who do not already participate in another preschool or day care program. No income criteria is involved. For additional information, persons may call the Bilingual Resource Center, located at Roosevelt Elementary School at 623-8997.

Halloween party

The Toddlers, a preschool program of the Diamond Bar-Walnut YMCA, will hold their annual Halloween party Oct. 27 and 28.

This year the Toddler board mothers will also sponsor a free carnival for the students of the preschool where toddlers can pit their talents against the games.

The entire preschool will be converted into haunted mansions and carnival fairways for this event.

Graphic arts class

A class in reprographics (graphic arts) is being offered at the San Dimas High School on Wednesday evenings. Instructor Don Siechert said the class is designed primarily for the working craftsman who wishes to expand or improve skills, particularly in the preparation phase of layout, darkroom work, stripping and platemaking.

Experience on presses and bindery equipment will also be available. The non-refundable tuition fee of $3 is payable at the first or second meeting of the class.

Persons may call the school district at 599-6787 for further information.

Criminal law conference set

Four hundred members of the criminal justice system and lay-citizen counterparts in business, industry, civic and service organizations will join in a two-day conference Oct. 13 and 14 at the Los Angeles Hilton Hotel.

The meeting is sponsored by the Citizens for Law Enforcement Needs, a non-profit, non-partisan Los Angeles organization.

State Atty. Gen. Evelle J. Younger, a founding advisor for the group, will be the featured speaker at the Oct. 13 luncheon.

The purpose of the conference is to study problem areas of the justice system with the hope of finding solutions.

Trucks-buses

In 1974, there were 1,085,399 trucks and 75,170 buses with diesel engines registered in the United States.

DAR has 12 'Madonna' statues

Chapters of the National Society of Daughters of the American Revolution (DAR) are responsible for 12 identical "The Madonna of the Trail" statues across the country, including one at Euclid Avenue and Foothill Boulevard in Upland.

A recent article in the Progress Bulletin explained that Mrs. Marie Kappan of La Verne is the daughter of the baby depicted in the statue.

An article in the October 1969 DAR magazine by Helen Bartlett explains how it all happened.

In 1909, a group of Missouri women decided the Sante Fe Trail should be marked by statues honoring pioneer women. The National Old Trail Road Association was formed.

German sculptor August Leimbach, who had arrived in St. Louis, Mo., in 1910, was retained. Mrs. John T. Moss of St. Louis, National DAR Commission chairman, made some sketches of what the women wanted.

Leimbach, using Amanda Kermott and her two children, Frank, 6, and tiny Maude, as models created the statues from Missouri granite.

He charged the DAR $1,000 per statue. They also had to pay shipping and foundation costs. Each statue is 10 feet tall and weighs five tons. It sits on a 6-foot-high base weighing 12 tons and is mounted on a buried foundation. The statues were erected in 1928-1929.

In addition to the one in Upland, other copies of the statue may be seen in Bethesda, Md., Washington, Pa., Wheeling, W. Va., Springfield, Ohio, Richmond, Ind., Vandalia, Ill., Lexington, Mo., Council Grove, Kan., Lamar, Colo., Albuquerque, N.M., and Springerville, Ariz.

The "Madonna," quoted Mrs. Bartlett in her magazine article, "is a sturdy, work-hardened woman showing fortitude and perserverance, peering into the future."

Tri-community goals aired

Goals for the tri-communities area encompassing Alta Loma, Cucamonga and Etiwanda will be discussed between citizens and San Bernardino County planning commissioners Thursday.

Set for 7 p.m. at Alta Loma Elementary School, commissioners and citizens will hear reports from planning department staff members outlining growth and a new general

Planning department members drafted a new general plan to incorporate solutions to problems brought about by rapid recent growth in the West End communities.

Plans were drafted to be used if the area incorporates in an election set Nov. 8.

All residents of the area may attend the public meeting.

Smithsonian Institution

The Smithsonian Institution was established by an Act of Congress in 1846 as a result of a bequest by British scholar-scientist James Smithson who requested the United States to found at Washington "an establishment for the increase and diffusion of knowledge among men." The Smithsonian has become a major center for basic scientific research and has the largest museum-gallery complex in the world.

Chino library to offer films

A series of vintage film comedies will be shown at the Chino library starting Thursday at 7:30 p.m.

The films include: "Sons of the Desert" with Laurel and Hardy, Thursday; "Girl Shy" with Harold Lloyd, Oct. 13; "Nothing Sacred" with Frederick March and Carol Lombard, Oct. 20; and "Gold Rush" with Charles Chaplin, Oct. 27.

Mother's little yelpers

By Karen Blaker, Ph.D.

DEAR DR. BLAKER — I absolutely cannot get my children to pitch in with chores around the house. I come home from work exhausted and try to convince them to help. They object, complain and even cry. Over the years, to tell you the truth, I have found that it actually takes less energy just to do everything myself. They are 10 and 12 years old. Shouldn't they be old enough to understand since their father and I were divorced, and I've had to go to work myself, it just isn't like the good old days? Why do they keep making my life so unbearable?

DEAR READER — I imagine that in the "good old days" you DID all the household work. Instead of punishing yourself for the changed circumstances however, you need to ask yourself whether or not the "good old days" way was in fact the best approach for raising your children. I believe that when children adapt to doing certain household chores, they are preparing themselves for the repetitive, sometimes boring, but necessary tasks of adulthood.

Surely you wouldn't want them to turn out like a former patient of mine who never had to take responsibilities at home. He grew up believing instead, in the "infinite variety of life's experiences." But he encountered severe problems in his job as a carpenter. While he loved carving the first leg of a chair, he could not bring himself to finish the other three. It went against his grain, so to speak.

If in the past you have been able to influence your children not to play with knives, or not to take rides with strangers, or not to cheat on exams, you CAN influence them to help you around the house, You can, if you really want help.

It may be that you are more doubtful of your children's love since the divorce and need to continue the "old" kinds of mothering tasks to reassure yourself that you are still a lovable mother. You ask their help but they sense that you are not serious.

A solution: Hold a family meeting. Make a list of the chores. Divide them up. A matter-of-fact approach is the most helpful. Expect them to follow through faithfully and have certain consequences ready for the times they will test you, — as they most certainly will. The less ambivalent you are, the less struggle you will encounter from them. And believe it or not, you will be loved more than before.

A martyred mother clutters a household with guilt, pain and anger. Her anger is a major obstacle to freely exchanged love. Even if your children don't provide you with a spotless house (remember they are not yet adults), the change will have a cleansing effect — emotionally. Good luck.

Write to Dr. Blaker in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 489, Radio City Station, New York NY 10019. Due to volume of mail she cannot reply personally, but questions of general interest will be discussed in future columns.

Hammock use is still popular

WASHINGTON (AP) — About 10,000 hammocks will be sold in the United States in 1977, according to a National Geographic Society survey of the $5-million-a-year industry.

The society says Christopher Columbus and his men were the first Europeans to see a hammock, which was used by the Arawak Indians. They called it a "hamaca." They soon found that the highly portable sleeping device was ideal for island living as well as sea travel.

British sailing tars were allowed 14 inches of width in which to sling their tough canvas hammocks in the heyday of English naval power. Petty officers were given two feet. The U.S. Navy did not give up using hammocks until World War II.

'American Graffiti' alive

Saturday night in Medford for the young

By MURRAY OLDERMAN

MEDFORD, Ore. (NEA) — Saturday night in this southern Oregon lumber center should convince anyone that the whole world is aged 15 to 25.

Or at least that's the way it looks on Central Avenue once dusk settles over the Rogue River country and the neon lights go on to announce beauty shops, vacuum cleaners, hardware and pizza.

By 8 p.m., the traffic is bumper to bumper where Main crosses Central. It has been going on like this for five years, the guy at the Shell Station tells me. And maybe you can blame George Lucas and the film "American Graffiti" — for that signalled the revival of cruising in Medford and Modesto and Walla Walla and maybe 1,000 other small cities in America.

The kids really get brazen, too. Even a middle-aged intruder in nondescript slacks and sneakers is flattered when the blonde in the Camaro shouts as she zips by, "Hey, you're good looking."

In the corner window of Monte's Shoe Store, facing the intersection of Central and Main, Jerry Allen, a local disk jockey for station KYCZ is winding down toward the final hours of a muscular dystrophy marathon broadcast. He's gone without sleep for four straight days, and a young brunette standing behind him massages his shoulders to ease the fatigue.

Half a block down the street, at the Craterion Theater, "Star Wars" is the feature attraction and, miracle of miracles, the line doesn't even extend around the corner. For city folks, it's a perfect time to catch Lucas' latest cinema opus. And, while standing in the modest line for the 9 o'clock show, still watch the motorized parade down Central Avenue.

There's a steady var-r-r-oom of four-wheel drive pickups, jeeps, Camaros, Mustangs, Darts and even one big Mack truck — without the van. They're piloted by boys and girls in flowing hair (both boys and girls). There's no mingling. Boys are with boys as passengers; girls are with girls.

This makes us question Patty and Joannie, who are standing behind us in line, about the phenomenon of unisex. Patty and Joannie are high school freshmen (freshpersons?). Patty confesses that she has seen the movie four times so far because "it's neat."

How come they don't have dates? Where are the guys?

"The guys aren't here," shrugs Joannie, "because they're somewhere else making out."

In front of us are a couple of husky, handsome high school seniors who are also standing in line for the show. Why aren't they cruising?

"Plenty of time for that," scoffs Hank. "It doesn't really get heavy till after the movie lets out. We don't start till midnight."

Thirteen miles down the road from Medford is picturesque Ashland, where a Shakespeare festival reigns all summer and where there isn't a single motel room available.

Patty and Joannie know all about it, but they've never been. "That's for tourists," says Patty. "By the way, what are you guys doing here?"

No motel reservation, it is explained. And no ticket to the Shakespeare Theater. So we had to track all the way to the big city of Medford (population, 28,000) to bunk down at the Red Lion Motel, which had a sunken tub in the room at the princely price of 30 bucks a night and a terrific buffet in the restaurant for dinner — roast beef, fried chicken, spare ribs, with salad bar and dessert, all you can eat, for $5.75 a head.

It's only a short walk to all the action at the intersection of Central and Main. There's only one disconcerting note on this Saturday night in Oregon.

While all the young people are chasing frenetically up and down the boulevards, across the street from where Jerry Allen is broadcasting in the shoe store, in the United Bank building, on the second floor, there's a light on in the office.

A young guy in his 20s, sleeves rolled up, is at a desk. You can see him clearly through the open window. His head doesn't raise once as the little world around him cruises by in that strange, aimless pattern of kids passing time.

The young guy is actually working.

Discharge review ends

WASHINGTON (AP) — Time has run out in the Pentagon's six-month campaign to review less than honorable Vietnam-era discharges.

There will be no more special toll-free numbers, no more operators standing by in St. Louis to handle the calls.

The Pentagon says some 16,227 discharges were upgraded through the end of last week.

Army, Navy, Marine and Air Force discharge review boards still face 8,600 cases pending under the program, announced in April as the second part of President Carter's effort to heal the divisiveness of the Vietnam War.

But beginning today all discharge reviews "will be processed under normal Department of Defense procedures using written application procedures."

Despite the small percentage taking part of almost half a million eligible ex-servicemen, the Pentagon feels the program has been a success.

The possibility of review was open to an estimated 420,000 one-time servicemen who received general or dishonorable discharges between Aug. 4, 1964 and March 28, 1973. Of them, about 60,000 decided to call 800-325-4040, where operators were at work near a military records center in Missouri.

Spokesman John Becher said Monday the Pentagon's most recent figures show undesirable discharges received by 11,364 Vietnam-era veterans were upgraded to general status. He said 1,682 undesirable discharges were reclassified as honorable.

Becher also said 3,181 former GIs had their general discharges upgraded to honorable.

In addition, 1,065 Vietnam-era deserters — out of an estimated 4,560 — inquired about discharges. Of the total, 784 "returned to military control" and received discharges, mostly undesirable, officials said.

"We feel the program is a success from the number of undesirables participating," Becher said, especially because "this is a program whereby the individual had to take the initiative to participate."

One of those who decided against taking the initiative was Jack Carter, the 29-year-old son of the President.

The young Carter received a general discharge in late 1970 after he and 53 classmates were caught smoking marijuana at the Navy Nuclear Power School in Idaho Falls, Idaho.

The President's son said in April he would not seek a review of his case.

Search on for a new county tax assessor

By BOB NAGEY
PB Staff Writer

The Los Angeles County Board of Supervisors began a search today for a successor to county Assessor Philip E. Watson.

Watson is resigning his $49,500 a year job in December.

The county retirement board began consideration of his claim for disability. Watson contends his recent heart ailment was caused by the pressure of his job. If the retirement board agrees, he will be paid $25,000 a year, tax free, for the rest of his life.

The supervisors, who have been conducting a running battle with Watson for the past 1½ years, Tuesday set the format for finding someone to succeed the county assessor.

They agreed to a plan where each would nominate four possible candidates for the position, and then the 20 aspirants would be interviewed publicly. The deadline for submitting applications to the board is Oct. 18.

The supervisors urged all persons interested in the job to submit applications to individual members as soon as possible.

Although the 20 finalists would represent the best of the applicants, some supervisors believe there aren't that many qualified candidates seeking the job.

Supervisor Kenneth Hahn said that although there is "no other office in California that has so much power to affect the taxes, the political plum has turned into a prune that few people want."

The reference was to the scrutiny which the assessor's office has been undergoing in the past years.

Supervisor Peter Scabarum agreed "nobody wants to put his head on the chopping block at this time."

"If nobody wants the job, we may have to draft an assessor," Hahn answered. The supervisors were unanimous in their beliefs that they did not want a "caretaker" until the term expires a year from now.

They defined as a "caretaker" someone from the assessor's office who would serve as a temporary assessor until the next election.

Supervisor Ed Edelman said the assessor's office has had no leadership for the past year or two.

"We need to restore leadership to this important office," he declared.

Pomona teachers' group blasts district leadership

By DAN NIEBRUGGE
PB Staff Writer

Angered over the overcrowding situation in district schools as well as a letter termed "threatening and intimidating" sent to several district teachers, the Associated Pomona Teachers sharply criticized the Pomona school board and administration Tuesday evening.

In separate presentations to the board, APT Executive Secretary Del Pfeifer and APT President Steve Enoch accused the district of administrative incompetence in both areas.

Pfeifer told trustees that several district teachers had received letters from the personnel office informing them that they had not met the district requirements for special training in minority awareness. Pfeifer said that in many instances the letters were completely incorrect and that letters of a "threatening and intimidating" nature had been sent to teachers who had completely met the district requirements and, in some cases, gone far beyond district requirements.

In some cases, Pfeifer alleged, letters had been sent to teachers who had helped develop and certify the programs themselves.

Pfeifer said the teachers had been told they would be reevaluated for their performances last year because they had not met the requirment and the new evaluation would be an unsatisfactory one.

Such a retroactive evaluation, he said, was in violation of the contract between the APT and the district.

The letter gave teachers until Feb. 1, 1978 to come into compliance with the regulations, even though many had already done so, said Pfeifer. He added that the letters had also been placed unjustly in the personnel files of the teachers involved.

"There has been no coordination between the site school, Intergroup or the personnel office in sending out these letters," said Pfeifer.

Enoch was less kind in presenting his complaints about the overcrowded conditions in the schools.

He told trustees of cases where psychologists in the district were working in seven-foot square kiln rooms without windows, heating or air conditioning; that English classes were being taught in long, narrow trailers with inadequate supplies and that an art class was being taught in a cafeteria with no supplies at all, not even a chalk board.

Sole response on the board came from trustee Eugene Whitlock who asked Pfeifer whether he had brought his concern regarding the letter through channels.

Pfeifer said he had and that he wished to also inform the board of the situation in public.

"I'm interested in seeing that nobody tries an end run," said Whitlock.

Central district special vote set

A special election will be held Jan. 17 to fill a seat on the Central school board in Cucamonga left vacant by the recent resignation of Richard Clements.

Petitions filed by residents have been validated by the county registrar of voters, paving the way for the election.

A group of citizens headed by Charles Miller of 7781 Valle Vista Drive, Cucamonga, reportedly is angered by the board's recent appointment of former trustee Patton Lewis to fill the vacancy.

By filing the petitions containing at least 5 per cent of the registered voters who cast ballots in the last election, the citizens have successfully challenged the Lewis appointment. They have forced the special election.

A spokesman for the registrar said prospective candidates may begin filing their papers on Oct. 20. The filing deadline will be Nov. 10 at 5 p.m.

Paint sale protest

Chino amends spray can law

By BOB SWETNAM JR.
PB Staff Writer

The Chino City Council Tuesday night amended a recently passed anti-graffiti ordinance that regulates the sale and distribution of aerosal spray paint cans in the city.

Police Chief Gerald Doyle reported local merchants had objected to an ordinance section that prohibited the sale of spray paint cans from self-help and self-service counters.

The ordinance had also prohibited the sale of spray paint to minors and made possession of such cans by juveniles a criminal act.

Merchants who testified Tuesday night did not object to the section which prohibits the sale and possession by minors. They were concerned that city officials would force them to put spray paint cans under lock and key. They claimed this would be expensive.

The council, on a 3-2 vote, agreed to amend the ordinance to allow spray paint to continue to be sold from self-service counters provided the counters are under direct supervision of store employees.

Doyle said he was opposed to amending the ordinance because it would "water it down to the point of making it ineffective."

He said police were concerned that once the sale of spray paint to minors becomes illegal in Chino the incidence of shoplifting will increase.

"It could become a problem. Kids may try and shoplift the stuff. In some circles, it would even be like a merit badge to steal spray paint," Doyle commented.

Merchants, however, disagreed with the police chief's analysis. They said shoplifting of spray paint had never before been a problem and that merchants could self-police themselves to prevent it. They said present shoplifting laws were adequate to control the situation.

"We find that the anti-graffiti ordinance goes too far," said merchant Barry Johnson. He supported the prohibition of minors possessing spray paint, but said he would be forced to sell his stock of spray paint if anamendment were not passed.

Johnson said that a series of rewards should be offered to help in the apprehension of graffiti offenders.

The idea of rewards, however, did not meet approval by Council member Eileen Carter.

"Rewards haven't caught cold-blooded murderers in this town," she said, alluding to huge rewards offered after two church workers in Chino were slain by unidentified gunmen in 1976.

Mrs. Carter, who strongly opposed amending the ordinance, also had some harsh words for some area merchants. "Some of them are chronic complainers," she said.

The councilwoman said she was disappointed that area businessmen had not taken the lead in trying to prevent graffiti in the city and claimed merchants could not prevent shoplifting as they claimed they could.

Councilman Angel Martinez also opposed the anti-graffiti amendment, but for different reasons. He sympathized with the concerns of merchants and said adopting the ordinance in the first place may have been a mistake.

"I'm not very happy with this (ordinance)," he said. "I'm a big believer in people governing themselves."

Councilmen Pete Garcia and Leonard Frketich joined with Mayor Bob McLeod in supporting the anti-graffiti ordinance amendment.

The new wording will allow Chino merchants to sell spray paint from unlocked displays, but makes it unlawful to sell the paint from any self-service or self-help counter "that is not constantly supervised by store personnel."

Mayor Bob McLeod recommended Doyle investigate the effect of the ordinance and report back to the City Council at a later date.

If the amendment is unsuccessful, McLeod indicated the council might make the law more stringent.

San Dimas council condemns statewide insurance proposal

By CONRAD CASLER
PB Staff Writer

Condemnation of Los Angeles County Supervisor Kenny Hahn's statewide standardized auto insurance plan was passed in a resolution by San Dimas city councilmen Tuesday night.

City Administrator Bob Poff said Hahn's measure now is being readied for submission to the state Legislature.

Hahn is attempting to standardize auto insurance rates across the state rather than maintaining the present system in which residents of inner cities where more accidents occur pay more for auto insurance than suburbanites.

Councilman Phil Wax blasted Hahn's plan as unfair, citing figures of from 15 to 35 per cent hikes in auto insurance costs for valley residents if Hahn's measure were passed by the Legislature. Suburban drivers now have better driving records with fewer accidents than inner city dwellers. This is reflected in rates paid annually, with outlying metropolitan residents paying substantially lower rates.

"It's totally unfair for good drivers to subsidize insurance for bad drivers," Wax said. He added that Hahn has attempted to force suburbanites to pay for inner city needs for years. "I'm tired of it," Wax said.

The council agreed unanimously to write official city letters to Supervisor Pete Schabarum, who represents the valley, local state assemblymen and senators urging defeat of Hahn's proposed legislation.

In other action, councilmen agreed to set up a joint commission to study sign ordinances on the request of merchants in San Dimas Canyon shopping center. Several merchants charged the city operates a dual standard — one for outlying businessmen and another for downtown merchants in the Early California development district. They charged discrimination in the number and size of signs allowed.

To be formed is a committee composed of members of the planning department staff, one or more city councilmen and members of the Chamber of Commerce.

County investigates judge's actions on drunken driving

The actions of a recently retired Covina judge who dismissed 38 drunk driving convictions on constitutional grounds before he left office Sept. 16 have come under fire by the Los Angeles County Board of Supervisors.

Supervisors approved a full investigation by County Counsel John Larson into what went on in the closed chambers of Citrus Municipal Court Judge William M. Martin in the late afternoon hours after court sessions.

According to Supervisor Kenneth Hahn, who says he is not sure himself, Judge Martin reversed his own decisions as well as the decisions of six other Citrus judges on drunk driving convistions which were two to three years old.

All of the clients reportedly were represented by the same West Covina attorney.

Martin's reconsiderations already have been appealed by Dist. Atty. John Van de Kamp. Deputy Atty. Gen. Jack T. Kerry has confirmed reports that his office is looking into the district attorney's allegations.

But Hahn was not satisfied with those developments.

"I want more than just an appeal," he declared Tuesday. "Appeals are easily forgotten. These are very serious charges, and they should be brought before the public."

Hahn said that if the charges are not true, the judge should be publicly exonerated.

However, if they are true, they represent a "flagrant miscarriage of justice, which deserves a full investigation."

The supervisors concurred.

Tri-community bond hearing tonight

A citizens committee recommendation that a bond measure be sought to build a second high school in the Alta Loma-Cucamonga-Etiwanda area will be the subject of a public hearing tonight.

The hearing, conducted by the Chaffey school board, will be held at 7 p.m. in Merton Hill Auditorium, 211 W. Fifth St., Ontario.

The Advisory Committee to Investigate Ongoing Needs (ACTION) recently presented its report to school trustees, recommending a March, 1978 bond election be called.

Already overcrowded Alta Loma High School could experience an enrollment increase of 1,200 to 1,800 students by the end of 1978, the committee states in its report.

Children's program

Children from three to five years old are invited to a series of stories, finger plays and games at the Chino library, starting Thursday at 10:30 a.m.

Mrs. Carol Christy will be the story teller. The programs will be held each week through Oct. 27. For more information, persons may phone 628-1604.

Coasting into fall

He stood in a trout stream, the cold, clear water running over his rubber boots, convinced that the fish would not bite. But it was Sunday and he was coasting. There was no driving need to bring fish home to eat or even to complete the ceremony of the hunt.

The fish kept their promise and did not bite.

No matter. It was good enough to stand there in the sight of granite mountains on the edge of Rocky Mountain National Park and be alone in the cool air, under a hot sun, with the thick fly line shooting back and forth over his head. He had enough to do with one hand on the rod, the other holding line and his feet trying for balance on the slippery rocks below the water.

The fishing was a few weeks ago. Now those days of ease have left us, slipping away all too quickly. Even September is a ghost, now. The time for coasting is gone.

It is time to get organized. It's time to set the alarm clock a bit early. It's time to get up in the morning, make a list of things to do, eat a quick breakfast and say good words to the kids to cheer them as they go off to the hassle of school.

It's time to confront the piles of things that are not done, the unkept promises that nag and nag, the messages that were never delivered.

But there is still too much of July and August in some. They can be seen in their cars, slipping the gears into neutral as they coast down hills, listening to sweet music on their radios as the other cars zip by. For them, Bert Lance, the SALT talks, slums, the search for manganese nodules on the sea bottom — all mean nothing.

They await the surge of energy that comes at the changing of a season — the brisk crack of heels on sidewalks, the sense of mission and drive that the cooler weather brings in.

Should he wait here for that sense of mission to arrive? On this street corner? In this room? Where's the line to stand in? Or should he force the matter to a crisis, grab hold and hurl himself into it?

Some of the young are angry at us for not forcing them in some direction, for not telling them to be doctors or to play the piano or to order them into college and law school.

"Why am I here?" they ask, as we asked ourselves at a similar age. "If someone would only aim me in some direction . . ."

But wise adults don't interfere. They tell the children to make the choice themselves.

After all, there is only one way. It is up to each of us to decide what to do. It is the burden and the blessing of a free man that he must do it all himself, take hold of his own life and move it, if it is ever to move at all. It is something we try to tell our children, but the words are so hard to say.

But all of us must sadly leave the days of summer coasting behind. We must do it ourselves.

The real pros start early

A study by the Rand Corp. has drawn one of the most useful profiles of the criminal personality we've seen. Paradoxically, there's little chance of putting this information to constructive use.

In a case study of 49 convicted armed robbers in California, the researchers found that there are two types of offenders: "intensive" or hardcore professional criminals and "intermittent" or amateur criminals.

It is the hardcore variety society has to worry about and the majority of the habitual felons in the study said nothing could have stopped them from taking up a life of crime — not the certainty of being caught, not longer sentences, not harsher prison treatment.

The differences between intensive and intermittent criminals show up in childhood, say the researchers. Both types, however, tend to become less criminally active as they grow older.

Thus the study's suggestion that if we could identify intensive criminals early in life and lock them up during their most active years, this might do more to reduce crime than any rehabilitation or prevention efforts.

Although the study used only a very tiny sampling of the nation's prison population, its authors believe their findings are significant and warrant further investigation.

We think so, too, because we certainly can't see society adopting its major recommendation at this time.

For one thing, there is the problem of identifying the budding hardcore criminal. As the study itself points out, the professional is five times less likely than the amateur to be arrested and "a meager arrest record often disguises a very active and dangerous criminal."

And even if we could distinguish between the pros and the amateurs in youth or early childhood, the idea of meting out long sentences to young offenders not only flies in the face of the time-honored penal practice but raises serious constitutional questions.

Age discrimination

Dear Editor:

The new law against mandatory retirement is of little meaning to people who have reached the age of 40 or 45 without a job. Chances are they will never again have a job.

The state and federal laws are so constantly flouted that almost every employer is a criminal, or should be. We have the unique situation whereby anyone who steals food to sustain his life can be jailed, but those who deny him the chance to work are never touched.

This habitual discrimination includes also such public employers as the city of Pomona. The job in question is an entry level position at minimum pay. And I did not so much as get an interview, even though my education and experience are far superior to any they might have in the preferred age bracket.

I have had three full years of graduate training in the field of administration. Anything more would amount to a Ph.D. to become an administrative assistant!

I have had more than 20 years administrative experience, some of it in major corporations. But we have the situation wherein 5 years experience is great, 10 years is less great, and 20 years has a negative value because no public administrator wants his assistant to have more education and experience than he has.

But, if so many public administrators openly violate our laws, why should anyone obey these laws?

We help Soviet spies

WASHINGTON — Not long ago, the General Services Administration cheerfully supplied the Soviet embassy with an "Inventory and Summary" of some of the Pentagon's most sensitive computer locations.

The obliging GSA volunteered, in the spirit of detente, that its staff would be "happy to assist you if there are any questions." No doubt the Soviets are curious about the secret computers, which track ship movements on the high seas and provide the Joint Chiefs with critical information about major weapons systems.

Some experts fear that the computer sites lack adequate controls and that top-secret messages might be intercepted. As early as 1974, the Systems Development Corporation warned that the computers "contain security deficiencies" and that "the entire system is vulnerable."

Our investigation has established, in fact, that various federal agencies furnish the Soviets with a massive volume of technical information. This amounts to over-the-counter espionage, with the cordial cooperation of the U.S. government.

Through this mass espionage effort, the Soviets dredge up tons of raw information. "I would guess 90 percent of it is worthless," one U.S. official told us. "But it's the remaining 10 percent that worries us."

Here's how it works: The two governments have agreed to exchange "official" publications. Each year, the United States delivers between 10,000 and 12,000 government documents to the Lenin State Library in Moscow. The Soviet Union, in turn, sends a similar shipment of Russian periodicals to the Library of Congress in Washington.

In quality if not quantity, the Soviets benefit the most from the exchange. These are documents, however, that neither side regards as sensitive. But the Soviets also receive from Washington a monthly master list of all nonclassified documents that the federal government publishes. Some contain details that would be classified in any other country, such as the location of the computer terminals.

The master list is indexed so the Soviets can easily determine which additional publications might contain valuable information. Soviet agents may purchase these directly or use surrogates to allay suspicion. Here are a few incidents we have uncovered:

— Two Soviet officials made separate approaches recently to the Office of Technology Assessment for a report on nuclear proliferation. They also asked to be put on the mailing list. Now all this office's reports are delivered to the Soviet embassy by the mailman.

— Czechoslovakia and Hungary quietly signed up for 10,000 selective reports each year from the National Technical Information Service. The two countries are completely under Soviet domination; both were put on the mailing list.

— Soviet representatives arranged with the Geological Survey Office to send detailed maps, surveys, geological data and other information to "academies" and "institutes" in Moscow. The agency happily complied.

— The Soviets receive the official Patent Gazette, a weekly publication, which lists all the new patents granted by the government. Agents can pick up the specific patents that interest them.

The locations of the computer sites were listed in an obscure publication entitled "Inventory and Summary of Federal ADP Activities." But the document wasn't so obscure that the Soviets missed it. The General Services Administration received a polite letter from the Soviet embassy.

"I shall appreciate it very much," wrote an embassy official, "if you can spare a copy of your recent publication, 'Inventory and Summary of Federal ADP Activities.' Thanking you in advance for your cooperation." The sensitive document was mailed to the embassy, with an accompanying "happy to assist" letter.

The General Accounting Office, meanwhile, warned the Pentagon in 1975 and again in 1976 that the security of this computer system was inadequate. This caused Reps. John Moss, D-Calif., and Charles Rose, D-N.C., to question the Pentagon about the security problems.

Canal balancing act

By MARTHA ANGLE
and ROBERT WALTERS

WASHINGTON (NEA) — A lot could change over the next few months, but right now it looks as though President Carter has only two chances of steering his Panama Canal treaties through the Senate intact: slim and none.

This is not a prediction that the Senate, come January or February, will refuse to consent to ratification of the twin pacts hammered out by Carter's representatives and the Panamanians after 13 years of on-and-off negotiations.

But it seems increasingly probable that a swing bloc of uncommitted senators will demand some modifications of the new treaties before they will provide the votes needed for approval by two-thirds of the Senate.

Administration officials have known from the outset that the domestic political fight over the new treaties might prove even more difficult than the negotiations with Panama. And their worst fears have been amply realized.

Even without prompting, public opinion has been running heavily against the new treaties. A coalition of conservative groups is now doing its best to deepen citizen opposition and focus it directly on the 30 or so senators who are undecided about ratification.

If they were acting in a vacuum, many of those senators might well be swayed by the detailed, cogently argued case for the new treaties which the State Department, Joint Chiefs of Staff and other administration witnesses began outlining to the Senate Foreign Relations Committee on Sept. 26.

But senators do not act in a vacuum. They read their mail — or at least count the letters "for" and "against." They watch the polls. They stew about the next election.

And that is why they are looking for a way to save face, politically, before they will risk their necks with an unpoular vote in support of the treaties.

Carter and his advisers understand the situation. At the opening day of the Foreign Relations Committee hearings, Secretary of State Cyrus Vance carefully avoided slamming the door on the possibility of modifications to the treaties.

But what the administration is desperately anxious to discourage are any changes by the Senate that could require U.S. and Panamanian negotiators to return to the bargaining table.

There are essentially four ways of modifying the treaties which have already been signed by the U.S. and Panama — two which are acceptable to Carter, and two which are not.

The Foreign Relations Committee and-or the Senate could vote for the treaties as drafted but adopt a separate report detailing the U.S. interpretation of crucial but ambiguous sections of the pacts, such as those guaranteeing the canal's permanent neutrality. Such a step would be acceptable to Carter but would have no legally binding impact on Panama.

Alternately, the Senate could attach to the treaties themselves certain "understandings" that likewise spell out the U.S. interpretation of cloudy points. Under international law, these "understandings" would in effect become part of the treaties themselves unless specifically rejected by Panama.

Vance hinted the administration would not object to the attachment of "understandings," but he left no doubt that Carter will vehemently oppose the other two options: "reservations" or "amendments."

With the first of these, the Senate would vote to ratify the treaty except for certain enumerated sections. Under the second approach, the Senate would actually amend the treaty language. Either technique would require the concurrence of Panama — which is precisely-what the administration fears.

These canal treaties are nearly as controversial in Panama as they are in the United States, and citizens of that nation will vote on the pacts Oct. 23 in a national plebiscite.

Carter is trapped in an extremely tricky dilemma. On the one hand, he will probably have to accept substantial modifications in the treaties to win enough votes for Senate ratification. But if the changes go too far, they may well be rejected by Panama.

It's going to be the neatest balancing act in town.

Just in jest

All I know is what I read in my newspaper; and the more I read the more convinced I become that we Americans are probably the most fortunate people in the world. For one thing, thanks to our high standards of living and fabulous pay scales, many status minded American gourmets think nothing of paying $51 for a 2-ounce dormouse fried in butter. Furthermore, life in these United States is far less subject to censure for females than it is in other parts of the world. Think how underprivileged women are in Malaysia where only a few days ago a woman was sentenced to serve two months in jail for living out of wedlock with a man — a 117 year old man at that. And in this enlightened land even college seniors have it made. A recent poll showed that a surprisingly large number of them think Tongsun Park is a government-operated wilderness area. However, that in no way has interfered with their ability to graduate. One smart student, who no doubt went on to graduate summum cum laude, later explained he had meant to answer, government operated "bewilderment" area.

Legislative challenge

By EARL G. WATERS

Some recent vetoes of Gov. Jerry Brown may spur the efforts, as well as add to the numbers, of those solons who are seeking to recapture the legislative powers which have gradually been eroded over the years.

For, in several instances, Brown rejected legislative authority to determine the laws on the grounds that administrators are better able to make such decisions.

That was the case with SB 474 by Sen. John Foran. The measure related to length of notice insurance companies must give to insured when declining to renew auto insurance.

Said Brown in his veto "The ambiguities addressed by this measure can best be corrected by the Department of Insurance through the regulatory process."

Even more challenging to legislative authority was his veto of SB 282 by Sen. Robert Beverly which also related to insurance regulations.

In that veto Brown really tossed the gauntlet declaring: "This bill would reverse a regulation of the Department of Insurance which the Commissioner believes to be in the public interest."

The effect of such vetoes is to make the administrative agencies superior to the Legislature in the matter of lawmaking in complete contradiction of the constitution which clearly vests all power to make laws in the legislature.

Notwithstanding the explicit proviso of the constitution that legislative and executive powers shall be separate and neither shall exercise that of the other, Brown would make the administrator supreme.

His statement that he vetoed the Beverly bill because it reversed a ruling of the Insurance Commissioner is a flat out declaration that the administrator, not the legislature, shall make the laws.

This disposition to take lawmaking away from the 120 elected representatives of the people and place it in the hands of one man, an appointee not responsible to the electorate, illustrates the degree to which bureaucratic power threatens.

It is the difficulty in overturning administrative regulations adopted contrary to legislative policy which led Sen. George Zenovich and Assemblyman Willie Brown to commence a movement to make all administrative regulations subject to ratification by the legislature. They have been joined by numerous other solons in the efforts to control bureaucracy.

As it stands, through powers delegated to the administrative agencies by earlier legislatures, a commissioner or other bureaucrat may adopt regulations without the approval, and often without the knowledge, of the legislature. In some instances these are contrary to legislative desires and even to existing law.

Yet, such regulations have the same force and effect as statutory laws. And, as evidenced by Brown's veto, often cannot be reversed by the legislature.

While Zenovich's measure, as well as others to curb administrative rule making powers, is still pending, it can be expected that such actions as Brown's veto of the Beverly bill will bolster the solons' determination to regain control of their constitutional powers.

Pooch OK'd for wilderness area

DEAR DR. MILLER: Shortly we will be heading into a U.S. Wilderness Area and hope to take our pooch along. Will he be legal there? — A.Y.

DEAR A.Y.: Yes, but he must be on leash in campgrounds and under constant control on the trails. A rabies vaccination is not required but is certainly advisable.

DEAR DR. MILLER: Ever since I was pregnant the first time three years ago, my husband's insisted on cleaning and changing the cats' box every other day. It's a bit of a bore. I think he's being overly fastidious, don't you? — D.N.

DEAR D.N.: Not really. This makes considerable sanitary sense since it breaks up the cycle of feline parasites potentially transmissible to humans. Feline parasites are seldom a threat to adult humans, but yet-unborn and children are most susceptible groups. This simple expedient of frequent cat box changes is by far the most effective method of eliminating any such hazard.

DEAR DR. MILLER: Mama Mia, my little mouse, has done it again! She just had another litter. That makes a litter a month for the last year. Is this some kind of record? — L.R.

DEAR L.R.: Certainly it is for Mama — but not for other mousy mothers, since some have produced as many as 17 litters in a year's time. Even so, Mama has done magnificently and deserves a rest from here on.

DECISION TIME FOR THE BIRDS

Some birds are deciding about now whether to head into normal migratory flight or hang around here where they have been getting daily handouts. It can be a life or death decision for some of them. If you have been feeding birds to the point where they are now dependent on you, you must now make a quick decision to follow through from now until spring or to quit immediately while the migratory birds may still have a choice. Chopping off the chow line now could be tough on the birds but far less so than carrying them through until they are committed to staying for the winter and then leaving that feeder empty. You can't in good conscience feed birds now without planning to continue feeding them through the long tough months which lie ahead. (The dangers of a migratory flight are less for the bird than hanging around here for handouts which may be forgotten at a critical time.)

What people say

"There's always us gals and widows having coffee clutches, and I know that people complain about the price of coffee, but, heavens, they buy liquor, which is expensive, without complaint!"

Astrographs

By Bernice Bede Osol
For Thursday, Oct. 6, 1977
Your Birthday, Oct. 6, 1977

Don't be afraid to be a dreamer this coming year. Dreams can become wishes, wishes can become ambitions and ambitions can become goals that can be attained.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Fresh new projects are favored for you today, especially if they're in the early stages. Lay a solid foundation. They'll produce. Having trouble selecting a career? Send for your copy of Astro-Graph Letter. Mail 50 cents for each and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Astro-Graph, P.O. Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify your birth sign.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Insights or hunches regarding your career or financial matters are reliable today. They can put you a step or two ahead of the pack.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Your strength lies in your philosophical approach today. You see things as a part of the whole, not in their limited and narrow scope.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Be alert today as to the possibility of embarking on a venture with a person in tune with your thinking. A chance remark could spark it.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Even if you have to modify your opinion, it's vital that you maintain harmonious relations today with those important to you.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Conditions look very promising today in matters affecting your career and income. Be ready to move on situations that could be beneficial.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Associate today with people who are of a creative bent. You'll find you'll come up with some very bright ideas yourself.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Take time to think things out very carefully today. The more you dwell on a subject, the more you'll be aware of all its ramifications.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) People find you're fun to be around today. You can show them the lighter side of things they find serious or worrisome.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) In commercial or business dealings today, you're very imaginative. The profit picture you see in your mind's eye could be even better in reality.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You have a natural flair for the dramatic, and today that quality is even more pronounced. This will help you most in selling or public speaking.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Be patient today, particularly if you're waiting for something to hatch that involves material gain. Ships come in over calm seas.

Ann Landers

A wide range of tolerance

Dear Ann Landers: Will you tell me what is wrong with a man who comes home dead drunk at least twice a week? He makes it to the door, then collapses and is unable to walk or talk. I know he is an alcoholic. What I can't figure out is how in the world he can get into such a state of drunkenness on three eight-ounce glasses of BEER!

How is it possible for such a small amount of alcohol to change an intelligent, good-looking, 50-year-old man into an immobilized, drooling, mindless wreck? I'd appreciate an answer. — His Wife

Dear Wife: Some people can get bent out of shape on less than what your husband drinks, while others can put away a fifth of bourbon and scarcely show it. It all depends on the individual's threshold of tolerance — and obviously, your husband's is very low.

Dear Ann: My wife and I have been married for 12 years. I have a good job, we have a nice home and three lovely children.

Trudy is a wonderful woman — a full-time homemaker and mother. I work nights. I came home early a couple of times last week (didn't feel well) and found a man in my house. When I asked Trudy what he was doing there, she said he was just driving by and stopped in to say hello. When I asked her how long this had been going on, she replied, "About six years."

Trudy says the reason she didn't tell me about his visits was because she didn't want to upset me. Now that I know, I am deeply hurt that she lived with this secret for so long. The man involved is a friend we used to spend weekends with. He is also married.

I'd like your opinion on this matter. — New Discovery

Dear New: Now that Trudy knows you don't approve of her entertaining a man while you are at work, that should be the end of it. If she doesn't go along, some joint counseling is in order. (Maybe HIS wife should be included.)

Dear Ann Landers: You said, "Show me a person who is repeatedly taken advantage of and I will show you someone who allows people to kick him around."

Yes, Ann, we do allow inconsiderate clods to kick us around. We are so concerned with being nice and friendly and polite — treating folks the way we'd like to be treated — that we are incapable of protecting ourselves against the heavies.

I am 31 years of age. When I was 20 I hated myself for letting people walk all over me. I tried to improve and, thankfully, I did. Some — but not enough.

You say we allow ourselves to be taken advantage of. You are right. But we already know that. Tell us how not to let it happen. How can we be tactful, say what we are thinking without hurting anyone's feelings — even though they may have insulted us? If you can solve this problem you will have done a lot of good for many. — N.C.

Dear N.C.: The meek may inherit the earth, but they sure get dumped on a lot. Why do you feel you must be tactful when people insult you? I suggest counseling. (Yes — again.) Find out who you are and then you will learn how to deal with others. And don't tell me you can't afford a psychiatrist. There are mental health clinics all over to help you get your head together. Look in the phone book.

How to — and how much? Find out with Ann Landers' booklet, "How, What, and When to Tell Your Child About Sex." For your copy, send 50 cents in coin along with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11995, Chicago, Illinois 60611.

A date to meet a mate

On a recent Sunday morning as I sat amid a welter of toast crusts and shredded football pool cards, my eye was caught by a newspaper advertisement that brought me up sharp. "The next few minutes could be the most important in your life," it said. "You can make a decision which will change the very course of your days — and nights."

Good grief! And I hadn't even shaved yet. There I was, wrapped in a faded bathrobe and gloom, slightly hungover, and the next few minutes were going to be the most important of my life! I dropped the newspaper and fled upstairs, expecting the telephone or doorbell to ring at any moment. I shaved and showered, combed my hair (such as it is) and donned my best suit (such as it is). I was ready.

Back in my private quagmire of spilled orange juice and egg shells, I resumed reading the ad and noted a massive equation: "Boy Plus Intramatics Plus Girl Equals Fun." Something new had been added to the old equation while I was dozing through a quarter of a century of married life. In my hey-hey day it was "Boy Plus Girl Equals Fun." Of all the equations that I was convinced tolerated no improvement, that was it. Nor, judging from the population explosion, was I alone in my estimate.

Intramatics, I read (while waiting for that important moment) is an organization dedicated to "the science of interpretive introduction." Er? A science, eh? Can you do graduate work in interpretive introduction? Get your doctorate, maybe. Sc. I. I. D. Were they proposing that I go back to college to change the very course of my days — and nights?

"Intramatics is not a machine picking mates for a faceless public," intoned the ad loftily, "but rather a machine sorting in moments what it would take many people a lifetime to accomplish — selecting someone compatible."

Aha! Now we're getting to the nub of this interpretive introduction bit — or science. This outfit was going to find a playmate to change the very course of my days — and nights. What would my wife say? (As if I didn't know.)

"Intramatics is no magic carpet to instant ambrosia," said the ad. I had to read that again to believe it — and I still don't. But that's beside the point. Keep your old carpet, Intramatics, also your "instant ambrosia." (Really — that's what it said.) Let's get back to that boy plus girl business.

Apparently the procedure is that I fill out a lot of forms telling all about me (blush, blush) and a lot of girls do the same, and Intramatics screens them and sends me a suitable mosquito — or date. Like native beaters driving game toward the water hole where fat white hunter sit in tree with fan, stengha and .404 Wesson-Bently. Hardly pukka, really.

About then my wife came back from church (why don't services last two hours?) and found me all dressed up, waiting for that important moment with my elbow in a pool of cold coffee. Her crisply suspicious comments on the tableau quickly dispelled my dreams of instant ambrosia, and with the sigh of a man born 30 years too late, I turned to the sports section.

Dr. Lamb

Info on Marfan's syndrome

DEAR DR. LAMB — Would you mind giving us some information on Marfan's syndrome? This has struck close in our family and yet we know so little about it.

DEAR READER — A good place to start — and one which will be of particular interest to you — is to point out that medical evidence suggests that Abe Lincoln was a comparison to the length of the trunk of the body. They may be quite tall.

The lens in the eye may be displaced. The chest may be deformed and the hands are often large with long fingers.

The disease may be limited to the eyes, the skeleton or the heart and blood vessels or it may involve all three systems. The aorta may enlarge or dilate. The valves in the heart may become deformed causing abnormalities in circulation not unlike that seen from aortic valve damage from rheumatic heart disease.

Some historians think that Abe Lincoln would have died very soon from heart involvement if he had not been assassinated. Apparently he already had significant changes in the valves in his heart and there was no way to properly treat that problem in those days.

Half of the sons and daughters of a person with Marfan's disease will inherit the disorder. About 15 percent of the people with Marfan's are new diseases and neither parent has the disease. In this instance there is a new mutation of the gene during genetic development that causes the disorder. Once that person starts having offspring, though, half of his children may have the disease.

DEAR DR. LAMB — My daughter has kidney malfunction. She must drink a lot of water. The only thing she likes to drink is tea. She also does not like milk.

She makes enough tea for a few days. She takes three tea bags and fills the 20 cup electric percolator and percolates it for one hour. The tea is as dark as black coffee. The doctor knows she drinks tea but doesn't know she percolates it one hour. This bothers me. I am afraid she is hurting her kidneys. She also has her cocktails.

Please tell me what you think about tea and especially this strong brew.

DEAR READER — Your daughter may not be getting enough liquids. She should drink enough water to pass a large volume of dilute urine each day. This helps to prevent kidney stones. About four quarts of liquid a day is often recommended or enough liquid to ensure formation of two to three quarts of urine a day. The fluid keeps the unabsorable particles that may form a stone from clumping together.

Tea, beer, fruit juices, cola drinks all may contain soluble oxalate that is absorbed into the blood stream and may make it easier to form some types of kidney stones. One of the best fluids for kidney patients who need to consume lots of liquid to maintain a constantly dilute urine is also the cheapest — plain water. Alcohol is hard on kidneys and is not a very good way for your daughter to get fluid either.

Too much rest can be harmful. For information send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for The Health Letter number 6-6, Effects of Inactivity, Including Bed Rest. Send your request to Dr. Lamb, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

Barbs

That morning rush could be eliminated if people realized that coffee cooks quicker if put on 10 minutes earlier.

Always ask your wife what she wants for her birthday — so she can change her mind in time.

The Treasury Department is studying how to eliminate the penny. If they'd put more buying power in a dollar the problem would be solved.

Back in the days of Culbertson a certain soap was first advertised as 99.44 percent pure. Ely didn't like to have too many forcing bids. At the same time, he described some Culbertson system bids as 99.44 percent forcing.

Apparently South's jump to three hearts was one of those almost forcing bids. In any event, North did pass. A spade lead would have held South to his contract but West opened a diamond. South got to discard one spade on a high diamond and with trumps breaking 3-3 wound up with an overtrick and a top score of plus 170.

At all other tables in the game, South chose to raise clubs as his second bid. Some North players got all the way to five. Others stopped short of game. West had a natural spade lead. The club bidders made 10 tricks for either plus 130 or minus 100 depending on how they had bid.

This hand is another example of duplicate luck. That jump to three hearts ranges an absolute force with some experts all the way down to a mere invitation to partner to bid again.

A Nevada reader wants to know if notrump has always been scored at 40 for the first trick and 30 for each subsequent trick.

No, it hasn't. In Vanderbilt's original scoring it counted 35 a trick. It was changed to eliminate five point scores.

Few get taste of toothpaste

Few people ever really taste the toothpaste they put in their mouths. Or so U.S. Navy researchers contend. When sailors at sea ran out of toothpaste, they were given cake soap to dab on their brushes. Nobody complained. And that led the military analysts to run further tests from which they concluded that toothpaste flavors almost never actually get back to the tastebuds.

Conviction rate in the crime of arson nationwide only runs about 1 percent.

MILLION DOLLARS

Q. "Louie, I've tried your last two suggestions about how I could make a million dollars. Neither worked. What next?"

A. Simple. Design a set of motor-driven, circular, suction brushes that cling to the sides of swimming pools as they sweep away the algae. Make royalty checks payable to this byline, please. No hurry. Send them annually.

Q. "Is there any company in the world that manufactures chastity belts?"

A. Know of none, anymore. Couple years ago, such a British firm, named Ann Hugessen, closed down for lack of sales.

Q. "What's the body temperature of a turtle?"

A. Same as the air temperature around it, or pritnear.

CARTOON

In Italy, early artists drew their preliminary sketches on pieces of pasteboard. The Italian word for pasteboard is "cartone." It's where we got our word "carton." And "cartoon." Our Language man says some word enthusiasts like to think the first cartoonists were so named because they executed their art on leftover cardboard cartons. But that's not quite true. "Cartoon" came to be a rough translation of "pasteboard drawing."

Pet store owners say they, too, have an accurate economic indicator. When rhinestone-studded poodle collars fail to sell, a recession is in the offing, they believe. Understandable. Incidentally, not everybody realizes the original poodles weren't simpering lap dogs but rather fairly fearless hunters with a knack for working in water. The name poodle came from the German word for "splash."

"How long does it take to detect the flavor of a vitamin B-12 injection in the forearm?" inquires a customer. About eight seconds. Tastes sort of peanutty.

Contest queen tells secrets

By Kay Brookshire

CINCINNATI (NEA) — Compulsive coupon clippers and contest-enterers should heed the advice of a woman who's made an art of winning contests.

Be persistent and depend more on pluckiness than luck, advises the contesting pro. She says almost anyone willing to work seriously at contesting can develop winning techniques.

Eighty-one-year-old Mary Garner, a Cincinnati native who now lives in Florida, has won more than 1,000 contest prizes in the past 20 years.

She's won 13 color television sets, more than $5,000 in cash, a $2,500 boat, toasters, wall-to-wall carpeting, roller skates, world-wide vacation trips, rent for a year, 66 cans of dog food, and more.

She gives away most of her winnings to her two sons, their children or her friends.

"I won a trip to Paris, France, which I gave to my son and his wife," she said. "They hadn't been married long. That was from Virginia Slims," said Mrs. Garner, who has entered as many as 500 contests a year.

"I won a trip to Jamaica in a sweepstakes, and I won a trip not long ago to Disney World. I won one to Hawaii once and carpeting for my son's home in Pittsburgh.

"I've won many television sets, washers and dryers, electric stoves and bicycles. You name it and I've won it — everything but a house," she said.

Mrs. Garner started entering contests years ago as a hobby and now it's almost a full-time occupation for the Glendale-born widow.

She publishes a monthly contest bulletin sent to more than 1,000 readers. She travels around the country to contesting conventions and club meetings.

The National Contesters Association are a group of people whose hobby is winning contest money and prizes. They work hard at it by learning angles which most casual entrants don't know. They meet to exchange ideas, experiences and information on the contest circuit.

The contests Mrs. Garner enjoys most are those requiring creativity — writing a slogan, jingle or essay, usually about a home or consumer product or creating a recipe.

She looks disdainfully, however, at sweepstakes, even though she has entered many of them and won some. The difference between a contest and sweepstakes is that a contest involves skill; sweepstakes winners are randomly selected.

"In the good old days, you used to be able to fill in a word, create a slogan or write something. It was more fun to win something that you felt you had actually earned," she said

"But when you enter a sweepstakes, you take your name and throw it in a box," she lamented, leaving most of your fate to luck.

With years of successful contesting experience behind her, Mrs. Garner said her secret to success is a mixture of common sense, knowledge of the English language and mastery of some basic skills about contesting.

"The secret is writing what the contest sponsors want to hear," said Mrs. Garner. "Use plain, everyday English . . . tell them something to make them happy. If I can't say something nice about them, I won't write it," she said. She made a soap company happy enough to give her $100 for a jingle that said: "I'm glad I use Dial — For it's my contention — There's truth in the adage —'An ounce of prevention . . .' "

If it's a skill contest requiring writing, said Mrs. Garner, "I am going to buy it (the product) and use it so I can find out something about it," she said. She does not buy products involved in sweepstakes contests.

Mrs. Garner said recipe contests are "the big thing right now." She admits she doesn't enjoy cooking and "makes up" recipes. She once won $50 from Ladies Home Journal in a recipe contest.

Mrs. Garner has kept at her contesting hobby for many years because she said it keeps her mind alert and it has "paid off."

Right now, she has "sworn off" entering sweepstakes. How long will that last?

"Probably another week or two," she admitted. Such "swearings off" usually don't last long, she said.

"You don't win for a month; then you swear off, like an alcoholic. Then you get a prize," she said, "and you're right at it again!"

KAY BROOKSHIRE is a staff reporter for the Cincinnati Post.

Prize winners

By Mary Garner

This one won a bicycle:

"It fuels you up with inner satisfaction!" (Hi Pro, General Mills)

This one won $1,657 in equipment from Lever Brothers:

"Give bad breath and tooth decay the 'brush off' the Pepsodent way."

Both of these won tricycles:

"For the best in 'swirled' O fares." (Frosty O's)

"The cereal you never get fed up with." (Cocoa Puffs)

This one won a television set:

"I like Zenith TV because imprisoned in my downtown apartment by steel skyscrapers, traffic noises and neighboring appliances, I served time watching stir crazy televisions that jumped guiltily at every sound or plunged into gray-black solitary, until beautifully 'arraigned' ZENITH, always on good behavior, commuted my sentences, unlocking the door to distinct viewing pleasure."

Ten tips on how to win

1. Constantly scout our contests. Women's magazines, newspapers, grocery shelves (on boxes and cartons) and contest newsletters are good sources.

2. Enter on time. Note the contest deadline and the required postmark date. Missing this gets you disqualified right off the bat.

3. Follow the rules exactly. If the directions say send entries on a three-by-five card, don't vary the size. Use only original entry blanks, never copies. They're almost always banned. Don't type if it says print.

4. When writing slogans or jingles, say what the sponsors want to hear. Study the product you're writing about. Buy it, if possible. Use it. Analyze its advertisements. Study its label. Then emphasize its selling points in your entry.

5. If possible, study past contest winning jingles and slogans. Some sponsors want sincerity; others cleverness.

6. Keep the writing simple. Always use correct English.

7. Puns, analogies and word plays often help catch judges' attention.

8. Enter often. Some people send 200-300 entries to one contest. Mrs. Garner recommends about 15.

9. Don't send all your entries to one contest at once. Space out the mailings several days or weeks apart. For sweepstakes in particular, most judges take a handful of entries from each mailbag. At deadline time, winners are usually selected in a random drawing from entries that arrived in many different mailbags.

10. Be persistent. After entering one contest, don't sit back and wait to see if you win. Keep "feeding the fire.

Butz picture to cost $5,000

WASHINGTON (AP) — A year after Earl L. Butz resigned from Gerald Ford's cabinet, a $5,000 oil portrait of the former secretary is being readied for hanging in the Agriculture Department.

Butz resigned a year ago today after protests over racial remarks made public at the height of Ford's unsuccessful presidential campaign against Jimmy Carter.

"That doesn't make him (Butz) less of a historical figure and there's no reason not to hang his portrait," one USDA official said, "but don't quote me."

The Butz portrait has been delivered to the department but no date has been set for its hanging in one of USDA's many hallways, officials said.

It was painted by New York artist Everett Wayne Kinstler, a department spokeswoman said. Framing and other expenses will add another $750 to the bill, which will be paid out of tax money.

Although USDA officials say the legal authority for spending tax money on portraits of secretaries of agriculture has been used regularly since 1913, the current secretary, Bob Bergland, will not follow the custom.

An aide to Bergland said President Carter passed the word earlier this year that his cabinet officers will have to be content with more economical artifacts.

Thus, the aide said, a photographic likeness of Bergland is being prepared by a New York firm. It will cost $500 for the first unmounted portrait and $175 for each thereafter in case Bergland wants copies.

New class of unemployed

BELLEFONTE, Pa. (AP) — She didn't qualify for employment aid under any of the existing categories of underprivileged people, so one Pennsylvania woman created a new class.

She hopped into the Centre County Training and Employment Agency dressed in a frog costume and told her stunned audience: "I hope you don't have your quota of frogs yet."

The ploy apparently worked.

Pat Casher, director of the Building Skills program for minorities and disadvantaged persons, interviewed the unusual applicant and gave her a job.

The frog, er, woman, was not identified.

Russ dissidents told to get out

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union is suddenly encouraging, even pushing, dissidents to leave the country as two major dates approach on the political calendar.

The first is next month's 35-nation Belgrade conference, where Western delegations are expected to accuse Moscow of not living up to East-West human rights agreements signed at a summit conference in Helsinki, Finland, in 1975. The other is the 60th anniversary Nov. 7 of Russia's Bolshevik Revolution, a date already billed here as a milestone of Soviet national unity.

In the past several months, about 15 leading figures in the Soviet dissident movement have received permission to leave the country in what seems to be a pattern of encouraging dissidents to get out. Non-conformist artists and other intellectuals also are getting exit visas in addition to "hardcore" political dissidents.

"You had better go now because the door will be closing soon," one dissident said he was told by a KGB security police official. "Just before Nov. 7 we are going to seal this country up and you may not get out for a long time."

One of the departing dissidents, Moscow computer scientist Valentin Turchin, applied to leave temporarily but was told Aug. 30 he should leave for good. Turchin, founder of the unofficial Soviet branch of Amnesty International, will leave within a few weeks to accept a teaching position at Columbia University in New York.

Dissident sources stress, however, that many people have not been able to leave, including most of Moscow's leading Jewish "refuseniks," some 400 people who have been waiting up to seven years for exit visas, and reportedly thousands of other persons throughout the country.

In an interview, Soviet dissident leader Andrei D. Sakharov speculated that "of course there is a link, some thought out policy" behind the sudden availability of exit visas to some dissidents.

There is no indication that the current gestures toward dissidents represent a long-term Soviet policy of moderation.

In a rare public speech Sept. 9, KGB Chief Yuri V. Andropov lumped dissidents into the same category as common criminals.

"Both are inflicting harm on our society and that is why they should bear punishment in complete accordance with the demands of Soviet law," he said.

Andropov sounded relatively optimistic about the dissident problem, asserting that "the number of such people is becoming fewer and fewer." The number of dissident events and press statements in Moscow has indeed gone down in recent months, but dissidents attribute this mainly to emigration and arrests, rather than a change in their views.

Still in jail awaiting trial after seizure by police this year are leading dissidents from several parts of the Soviet Union.

They include Moscow Jewish activist Anatoly Shcharansky, seized March 15; Helsinki Human Rights Committee Chairman Yuri Orlov, Feb. 10; and Alexander Ginzburg, a close friend of Alexander Solzhenitsyn, Feb. 3. Solzhenitsyn, exiled in 1974, lives in the United States.

A Ukrainian court on Sept. 15 upheld the 10-and 8-year prison sentences of Ukrainian civil rights activists Oleska Tikhy and Mykola Rudenko. Two other members of their group are awaiting trial, along with dissenters in Soviet Georgia and the Baltic republics.

The Soviets' main concern now appears to get leading, vocal dissidents out of the country or out of circulation within the Soviet Union, through jail or internal exile to remote areas.

Dissidents recently permitted to leave include English-language translator Ilya Levin and writer David Darr, among the most vocal dissidents in Leningrad; and Valery Shchukin, another English speaker who publicized dissident causes in Minsk, Byelorussia.

Hustler's publisher put on spot

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Two U.S. congressmen have asked Larry Flynt to put in writing his offer to donate all profits of Hustler magazine to finance a federal study on child abuse and child pornography.

Flynt said Monday he will answer the request from Rep. Tom Railsback, R-Ill., and Rep. Allen E. Ertel, D-Pa., right away.

"This is very encouraging for me because now we're getting them involved," said Flynt, who made his offer while testifying Sept. 20 before a House subcommittee on crime.

Hustler, which Flynt himself describes as a pornographic publication, claims a circulation of three million and cleared $20 million last year. The publisher said his proposal to give all of his after-tax profits to pay for a pornography study was no joke.

But Railsback said Monday that he and Ertel are skeptical of Flynt's offer.

"Al Ertel and I were interested to see if he was really serious, or if he was trying to capitalize on this thing," Railsback said in a telephone interview from his Washington home.

The Illinois Republican said the letter was not sent on the committee's behalf, but rather on his and Ertel's initiative.

"I think, however, that what the committee decides will be determined by his response to us," Railsback said. "If he's really serious about it and kind of charts the areas he would like to see the study consist of, I think Al Ertel and I probably would present it to subcommittee for consideration.

Railsback said he had no idea when the subcommittee might take up the Flynt offer.

"I feel that if I have to give all the profit, it will be worthwhile," said Flynt, who said he tried and failed seven months ago to deliver a $1 million check to President Carter to finance a presidential commission on obscenity and pornography.

Flynt said he wants to finance the federal study because he feels it would be more credible in the public's eyes than any private study he might pay for.

Railsback said there is precedent for a private citizen footing the bill for a governmental project.

"There's no doubt about that," he said. "There certainly are programs jointly funded by government and private interests. But I just don't know if anything is really parallel or analagous" to Flynt's proposal.

Flynt, 33, who is appealing a conviction in Cincinnati of pandering obscenity and engaging in organized crime, often uses his magazine to promote "public service" topics, such as an antismoking campaign and articles exploring child abuse.

Hustler has grown from 160,000 copies in July 1974 to its present circulation. Flynt also publishes Chic, another sex-oriented magazine, and plans to begin publishing a news-oriented monthly called Ohio Magazine by the end of the year.

Administration, not Senate, broke filibuster's back

WASHINGTON (AP) — In the end, it was the Carter administration and not the Senate that broke the back of the most intensive filibuster in 13 years.

And the two senators who waged the delaying action for more than two weeks find that ironic. After all, they claim, they were only doing battle to save the President's proposal to keep price controls on natural gas.

But when Vice President Walter F. Mondale took the chair on Monday in his constitutional role as president of the Senate, Sens. James Abourezk, D-S.D., and Howard Metzenbaum, D-Ohio, knew it was all over.

Mondale, at the behest of Senate Majority Leader Robert C. Byrd, began ruling "out-of-order" a stack of amendments that the two filibusterers had been using as their principal ammunition. A short while later, the two capitulated.

"In view of the White House position, we call off the filibuster effective immediately," a dispirited Metzenbaum told reporters.

Actually, the administration had never openly supported the filibuster, even though both Metzenbaum and Abourezk had claimed it was quietly doing so.

And over the past few days, according to administration and congressional aides, the White House viewed the stalling effort as more and more of a liability — jeopardizing passage of President Carter's energy program and antagonizing would-be supporters.

After a series of setbacks on the Senate floor during the past two weeks, the administration gradually switched its strategy. It decided to concentrate instead on a House-Senate conference committee to salvage the President's plan.

Administration lobbyists still worked to cut losses in the Senate bv backing a series of "compromises" engineered by Sen. Henry M. Jackson. D-Wash chairman of the Senate Energy Committee, the latest of which may be voted on today.

But they knew that these proposals fell far short of the gas price control plan originally drafted by the administration and already approved by the House.

So they sent out signals that the President was relying on the conference committee to back the House version of the legislation, or at least something close to it.

And Carter made his intentions clear by threatening to veto any bill that deregulates natural gas prices — a warning that is certain not to be taken lightly by the conferees.

However, a conference committee cannot be named until both houses have completed action. The Abourezk-Metzenbaum filibuster was delaying the Senate from taking the final action that would set the conference committee in motion.

Their claim over the weekend that they could extend the filibuster for as long as two weeks if necessary made administration allies in the Senate fearful that the result might be no natural gas legislation this year.

So Byrd and other leaders enlisted the aid of Mondale to try to break the filibuster.

Although any senator picked by the leadership to preside could have made the same parlimentary rulings against the filibusterers that Mondale made, "rulings have greater weight when coming from the vice president," said Assistant Majority Leader Alan Cranston, D-Calif.

At one point when a number of senators were questioning Byrd's tactics, the majority leader said, "I'm trying to put a stop to this filibuster. That's why the Vice President is here... He's trying to get the ox out of the ditch."

Mondale defended his own actions, saying "There's no question of my position on the merits of this issue. Nothing is more sacred to me or the President than our integrity. I am not hear to apologize for my integrity."

But Abourezk and Metzenbaum continue to maintain they were doublecrossed. They said the White House hadn't informed them of what it planned to do in advance and they were taken completely off guard.

"We decided that as a result of the action (Monday), which was a complete reversal of the position on the part of the White House," to cancel the filibuster, Abourezk said.

"This has been an active effort on the part of the White House in sending the vice president down to take part in overruling many of our amendments, many of our parlimentary procedures — in effect, removing from us a great many of our tools of filibuster," Abourezk added.

Did the filibuster accomplish anything?

It produced at least one major concession from the deregulation proponents, mostly Republican and oil-state Democrats:

They agreed to modify their proposal to keep interstate gas prices under a lid for two more years and to require industries, and not homeowners, to absorb initially the higher gas prices that deregulation would bring.

Abourezk and Metzenbaum contend that without their filibuster, the Senate would have voted for the full deregulation measure originally proposed, as it did in 1975.

The two filibuster leaders also said their action heightened public awareness of the gas-pricing dispute. Both claim they have been bombarded with telegrams from consumers supporting their actions since the Senate debate began.

They claim that continued controls are needed to protect consumers against skyrocketing utility bills and have said their tactics provided the Senate's first "consumer-oriented filibuster."

W. German officers suspended

BONN, West Germany (AP) — Eleven German army officers who participated in a mock "burning of Jews" last February at the Armed Forces University in Munich have been suspended from duty, the Defense Ministry announced Tuesday.

The young lieutenants were restricted to the school and cannot wear their uniforms during the three-month suspension while an investigation of the incident continues, the spokesman said.

He said the initial investigation confirmed a newspaper report of the incident in which pieces of paper scribbed with the word "Jew" were burned and Nazi salutes exchanged by the officers during a drinking party.

"But at the same time it became clear that the participants did not have a basically anti-Semitic point of view," the spokesman said.

However, the incident was viewed as "abhorrent" by their superiors, the spokesman said. Jews had demanded the dismissal of the officers involved.

In disclosing the Feb. 16 incident last Thursday, the Frankfurter Rundschau newspaper said school authorities did not punish the officers and failed to report the incident to the Defense Ministry, as required by military regulations.

Brezhnev labels new constitution victory for socialist democracy

MOSCOW (AP) — President Leonid I. Brezhnev presented the final draft of the Soviet Union's new constitution today with a 90-minute speech that defended Soviet human rights policy and said it is still too early to create a classless society.

The 70-year-old leader told the Supreme Soviet, the 1-500-member national parliament, that the new constitution is a victory for "socialist democracy." The final draft, he said, contains 150 changes from the first version published for nationwide discussion June 4.

The Supreme Soviet will approve the charter this week and it will replace the Stalin constitution of 1936.

Foreign diplomats spotted Nikolai V. Podgorny, who was ousted from the Soviet presidency June 16, sitting among the rank-and-file parliament members. It was the first public reappearance by Podgorny, 74, since his political downfall.

Brezhnev, frequently citing Western newspaper reports, attacked "bourgeois" critics who claim the constitution's promises of the right of free speech and free press are hollow.

Western critics have noted that the constitution says citizens must not exercise their rights in ways harmful to the state. Brezhnev replied that a strong state is necessary for the security of its citizens' rights.

The Soviet leader said "rights" in Western society include "the right for millions of people to be unemployed and for sick people to be without medical care, which costs enormous sums."

He stressed that the new Soviet constitution, unlike those in the West, recognizes the right to a job, medical care and housing supplied by the state.

Brezhnev said some of the 400,000 citizens' recommendations on the constitution's first draft called for equal wages and pensions for everyone, or for determining wages on the basis of labor seniority without regard for skills or quality of work.

He rejected these suggestions for a classless society based on the Communist principle of "from each according to his ability, to each according to his needs." He said the Soviet Union was now at a stage of "developed socialism" and must follow the principle "from each according to his abilities, to each according to his work."

Wages in the Soviet Union range from 100 rubles a month, or $134 at the official rate, for the least skilled workers to more than ten times that for leading figures. Since Stalin's first years in power, Soviet leaders have been saying equal wages were a long way off.

Brezhnev said the constitutional commission, which he heads, also rejected proposals to abolish private farm plots and other small private enterprises which provide much of the Soviet food supply.

He said the new document reflects the desire of citizens who called for stronger language against "slackers" and others who violate labor discipline and abuse state property.

Brezhnev said 140 million people, "more than four-fifths of the adult population," participated in 1.5 million meetings or rallies to discuss the new constitution.

"Never before has this country had popular activity on such a scale," he said.

Panel mulls payroll tax hike to aid S.S. system

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House Ways and Means Committee is working on a plan to keep the Social Security system solvent through substantial payroll tax increases, especially on higher paid workers and their employers.

The proposed changes, still subject to amendment and vote, would require persons earning at least $19,900 next year to pay an additional $133.10 in Social Security taxes.

By 1981, those earning as much as $27,900 would be taxed $1,841.40, about $461 more than the present law provides. This year, no one pays more than $965.25.

The committee planned to continue debate on proposed changes in Social Security today, while its counterpart in the Senate, the Finance Committee, was considering its own plan.

The Senate panel is discussing a proposal to force employers to pay more in taxes than their workers do. Current law calls for equal taxation of both groups.

Energy independence equals U.S. freedom

By Dr. Joseph P. Sternstein

WASHINGTON (NEA) — Americans have a tendency to give their full attention to a crisis for a day or two and then return to life as usual.''

When President Carter introduced his message on energy to the American people in April, he spoke about a crisis that could overwhelm us. How often since then have Americans riveted their attention on what they can do, along with the government, to cope with a situation that is putting into jeopardy America's freedom to conduct its international and domestic affairs free of foreign pressures?

Do Americans really understand the new force that has been created in world politics? It is not a country, or even a realignment of countries. Rather, it is a three letter commodity — oil!

This new force has shaken world alliances and upset the economies of large and small nations. As a result of dependency on imported oil, the foreign policies of Europe and Japan have been influenced to satisfy the political attitudes of the Arab oil-producing countries. And, because of America's constantly increasing consumption of foreign oil, we are being subjected to the same pressures.

The oil weapon has been used through the Arab boycott measures, to interfere in the internal democratic processes by which the United States conducts its trade and business operations. Manipulation of oil prices and implied threats of a reduction in the supply of oil from the Mideast have put the greatest democracy in the world in the grip of Arab nations which are determined to influence our future and our relations with Israel, America's only democratic ally in the Middle East.

So, a sound U.S. energy program is a vital necessity which transcends partisan persuasions. The American economy requires huge supplies of energy. Without it, the tools and machinery of defense and of our industrial and agricultural production become idle; subsequent unemployment could be disastrous.

Economic upheaval has a special and ominous connotation for minority groups, to which the history of Jewish communities all over the world can attest. Potential demagogues have always capitalized on economic and social disorder, in the process of which scapegoats are created to distract the population from real and valid issues. It is an inevitable conclusion, then, that the U.S. simply cannot afford to be so dependent on such a distant and unstable region as the Middle East for energy supplies which are vital for its defense and home needs.

One must ask, then, "What are the options?'' Certainly, the President's call for massive efforts for energy conservation must meet with firm and strong support from all Americans. President Carter has recently stated that if other measures fail, gasoline rationing might be imposed — certainly an equitable and effective step in the battle against excess consumption.

No single change in American habits is the final answer, but a combination of efforts can give us important relief. Along with conservation, there must be an expansion in the production of alternate energy resources. Coal, offshore oil, shale, natural gas and nuclear power must be exploited as quickly as possible if we wish to wrest ourselves from the hold which OPEC has on us.

Of these, probably nuclear power offers the only long-term viable answer. However, it is the least understood, and because of that, the most controversial of proposed energy programs. The fact is that there are now 64 licensed nuclear plants in the U.S. with a proven record of safety, reliability and economy. And, the arithmetic speaks for itself. Each nuclear power plant in operation saves the equivalent of 10 million barrels of oil each year!

Considering all the serious challenges we face, it is impossible to disregard these figures and what they represent in realistic terms.

In the light of recent evidence that France, West Germany, the United Kingdom, Japan and the Soviet Union have committed themselves to further research and development of nuclear breeder reactors, and in the case of several of these countries, to their eventual sale abroad, one must wonder about U.S. opposition to development of these reactors in this country. Since the breeder reactor theoretically creates more plutonium than it burns, it is estimated to use nuclear fuel nearly 60 times more efficiently than the current "light water'' nuclear plants in use today.

President Carter's objections to the breeder reactor are based on his fear that plutonium might be diverted by terrorists for use in weapons.

Nation's long-term drought suggests change in climate

WASHINGTON (LENS) — As if New Yorkers, who until recently were soaking in fire hydrants to cool down, or western farmers, who are surveying their second year of parched fields, were not sufficiently aware of the weather, the National Academy of Sciences has just issued a report on many years of research into the climate. The findings are disturbing. The weather, it seems, is getting warmer, and not simply in the Bronx; by the next century, in some places, it may be 10 degrees centigrade hotter.

According to the report carbon dioxide, produced from burning fossil fuels, is settling like a blanket in the atmosphere. The culprits in the American landscape are smokestacks, closely followed by every industry which, heeding President Carter's energy proposals, intends to turn to coal as its main source of fuel.

The academy report is the latest contribution to a year when the weather has constantly made news. The winter in the East was the worst for three decades. It has been followed by broiling summer temperatures, in many places the highest since the 1940s, in the East and the Midwest. New York City's blackout was a symptom of it; so, too, was the storm that tipped nine inches of rain in a night on Johnstown, Pennsylvania, taking 58 lives. These are the more startling disasters.

In the West, over an area covering 11 states, a drought which has already lasted two years is forecast to run for a third. Every summer it sparks forest fires; the worst and most recent in Santa Barbara, Calif., destroyed 700 acres and 400 homes before it burned itself out. Signs of drought are also appearing in the Southeast, from Virginia to Florida, where the water shortage is more severe than at any time for 25 years.

The heatwaves in the East are not so worrying; meteorologists say they have seen the pattern before, in the 1950s, and that this is the sort of phenomenon from which the country can make a smart recovery. In the West the story is different. The drought has been so consistent that it suggests a long-term change in climate — a symptom, perhaps, of the global warming predicted in the academy's report — that may eventually return the West to the desert it used to be and, under the fountains of Phoenix and the sprinkled lawns of Los Angeles, it still is.

Throughout the west not only the topsoil, but now the subsoil, has lost its moisture. Pasture and range lands are too dry everywhere, except in Nebraska and Kansas; in Wyoming, farmers are losing money on stock sent to market prematurely. Water has become a political issue. The Secretary of the Interior Cecil Andrus now mentions it with as much respect as other politicians mention energy. There is already too little water, in many parts of the West, to sustain some industries. There may be too little in the near future to sustain the new communities still mushrooming in Arizona, where individual water consumption is the highest in the country.

So far, the onus of dealing with the weather has been on the governments of the states affected. An emergency drought assistance bill, specifically for the West and the Great Plains, passed Congress in April, and there has been federal assistance since for 1,600 thirsty counties in the Southeast.

But just as nature is capricious, so too are the attempt of federal government to cope with it. Little time and money has been spent, so far, on the sort of long-range forecasting and temperature study that could predict a drought. And there are too many groups in government with a different, and often amateur, interest in the weather; among them the Departments of the Interior, Agriculture and Commerce, the Environmental Protection Agency and the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration.

Congress has now begun hearings on a bill which, if passed, would knit together all government functions concerned with weather into a single agency.

Three rescue paraplegic after fall into river

BOSTON (AP) — A paraplegic whose motorized wheel chair rolled out of control and into the eight-foot-deep Charles River was rescued by two policemen and a jogger.

Lawrence D. Pass, 27, of Everett, was pulled unconscious from the murky water Monday after his chair rolled off a boat landing on Soldiers Field Road.

He was in serious condition Tuesday at St. Elizabeth's Hospital.

David L. White, 26, of New York, was jogging nearby when he saw the wheel chair plunge into the river. He dove in after Pass.

"I never had to do anything like that before,'' said White. "But I didn't even think about it. I saw him go in, and I ran to help him.''

White was unable to raise the man, so he called for help, and Metropolitan District Commission police arrived a few minutes later.

The policemen, Lloyd L. Smith and Edward J. Seabury, pulled Pass, still strapped to his wheel chair, out of the water. Then they administered mouth-to-mouth and cardiopulmonary resuscitation until breathing and pulse were restored.

Pass' legs had been paralyzed since he fell from a ladder while picking oranges in Florida last year.

Almanac

Today is Wednesday, Oct. 5, the 278th day of 1977. There are 87 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: On this date in 1954, Italy and Yugoslavia formally settled their dispute over the city of Trieste.

On this date: In 1502, Christopher Columbus discovered Costa Rica.

In 1830, the 21st American president, Chester Arthur, was born in Fairfield, Vt.

In 1881, artist Pablo Picasso was born in Malaga, Spain.

In 1958, dynamite explosions almost destroyed the integrated high school in Clinton, Tenn.

In 1966, the highest court in Texas reversed the conviction of Jack Ruby for the murder of Lee Harvey Oswald, and ordered a new trial in a city other than Dallas.

In 1975, Democratic Sen. Frank Church declared that the CIA had made several attempts to assassinate Cuba's Premier Fidel Castro.

Ten years ago: Five masked men invaded the Miami, Fla., mansion of Willis Harrington du Pont and escaped with cash, jewels and coin collections valued at $1.5 million.

Five years ago: The African nations of Tanzania and Uganda announced they had settled a dispute which arose when Uganda accused Tanzania of launching an invasion.

One year ago: The U.S. government announced that radioactive fallout from a nuclear test in China had been detected.

Today's birthdays: Former French premier Georges Bidault is 78 years old. Theatrical producer Joshua Logan is 69.

Thought for today: A simple life is its own award. — George Santayana, Spanish writer and philospher, 1863-1952.

Union political contributions reported

WASHINGTON (AP) — Various maritime related unions contributed nearly a half million dollars to the 1976 election campaigns of 215 current members of the House of Representatives, Common Cause reported Sunday.

Common Cause, the self-styled public interest lobby, said the top legislative priority for the unions is passage of the cargo preference bill which would increase the percentage of imported oil that would have to be carried by U.S. ships.

The lowest maritime union contribution listed by Common Cause was $200, while the largest single contribution of $18,138 went to Rep. Leo Zeferetti, DN.Y.

Common Cause said the total amount contributed by the unions was $449,410.

Among congressmen receiving large contributions were: Zeferetti, Rep. Thomas Ashley, D-Ohio, $18,000; Rep. John Dent, D-Pa., $13,000; Rep. Lloyd Meeds, D-Wash., $11,800; Rep. Frederick Richmond, DN.Y., $12,647; Rep. John Murphy, D-N.Y., $11,200; and Rep. John Burton, D-Calif., $10,200.

House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill, D-Mass., was given $7,500.

Fine Arts Foundation lists season's events

The Fine Arts Foundation of Scripps College will open its 1977-78 season on Thursday, at 1:30 p.m. when David Steadman, director of the Galleries of The Claremont Colleges, will speak on "Observations on Works on Paper 1900-1960."

Members of the Fine Arts Foundation and the Rembrandt Club of Pomona College will meet jointly in Lyman Hall to hear Dr. Steadman speak about the current exhibit in the Montgomery Gallery at Pomona College.

FAF President Mrs. Charles S. Holmes has announced a full schedule of activities for the year, including speakers Richard Armour whose latest book "It All Started With Nudes," will serve as the title of his talk on Nov. 1; James Brashler, assistant director of the Institute for Antiquity and Chrisitanity, who will speak on "The Tutankhamun Exhibition" on Dec. 6; Elizabeth Fryberger, curator of prints and drawing, Stanford Art Museum, who will discuss the J.M. Whistler Exhibition scheduled for the Montgomery Gallery on Feb. 2; Olga Ogden, who will speak on "Porcelain Through the Ages" on March 14; and Joan Hartley, vice president of Sotheby Parke Bernet, who will address the group on April 4 on "Auctions and Auctioneering."

Museum tours, always a special feature of the year's programs, will include the Pacific Asia Culture Museum on Oct. 11 to view the Tang exhibit and to have a catered Chinese lunch at the museum; the Newport Harbor Art Museum on Feb. 14, and the Sotheby Parke Bernet Auction Gallery in the spring.

A special event for members of the Fine Arts Foundation will be a tour of the King Tutankhamun Exhibition at the Los Angeles County Art Museum on March 4, 1978.

Each year a well-known artist is commissioned by the Fine Arts Foundation to design a work for reproduction for sale to members. This year's edition is a portfolio of lithographs by Jean Ames, prominent Claremont artist, whose imaginative and sensitive work has won her wide recognition.

The purpose of the Fine Arts Foundation is to stimulate public interest in art and to support opportunities for the study of art at Scripps College. The group welcomes new members from the community who may call Membership Chairman Mrs. J.J. Castleberry at 624-5151 or Mrs. William Hamilton in Cedar Glen at (213) 337-5314, for more information on activities and dues.

Other members of the board of directors for the 1977-78 season include Mrs. Holmes of Claremont, president; Mrs. John Esterline, Claremont, vice president; Mrs. Floyd Ethridge, Upland, secretary; Mrs. James Leonhard, Claremont, treasurer; Mrs. Betty Hare, Claremont, college representative; Mrs. Mel Hodell, Upland, and Mrs. David B. Welsh, Claremont, publicity; Mrs. Kenneth J. Friedenbach, Cucamonga, and Mrs. Howard C. Metzler, Claremont, docents; Mrs. James R. Johnson, Claremont, and Mrs. George M. Gibson, Upland, limited edition; Mrs. Ralph Canter, Upland, and Mrs. Donald McDonald, Claremont, openings; Mrs. Karem Monsour, Claremont, and Mrs. John Sauter, Claremont, special events; Mrs. Winfield Foster, Claremont, faculty party, and Mrs. L. Donald Middleton, Claremont, past president, ex-officio.

GOP unit schedules luncheon gathering

Pomona Valley Republican Women's Club, Federated, has planned a luncheon and program Thursday at Sir George's Royal Buffet in Pomona.

Mrs. Betty Southworth will present the program, "From Uncle Sam's Bicentennial to the Queen's Silver Jubilee — Learning English," following the 11:30 a.m. meeting and luncheon.

The Bill Southworths have long been active in international relations and exchange student programs. Their oldest son, John, was a Rotary Foundation Fellow at the University of Bristol, England. Mrs. Southworth will show slides and review their three-week visit to several homes in England this past summer.

The meeting has been advanced because of the state GOP Women's convention in Fresno next week.

Mrs. Charlotte Stevenson will report on the membership quota being reached and will accept membership applications from persons interested. Activities to be reported on will be a recent rummage sale, work at the county fair, and a collection of petitions sponsored by the Committee for Citizens' Rights and endorsing a constitutional amendment "Prohibition of Strikes by Public Employees."

Reservations are requested for the meeting and may be made by calling Mrs. Speier, 629-0434.

MRS. SOUTHWORTH

PEO unit will meet Thursday

A luncheon meeting is scheduled for members of Chapter MG, PEO Sisterhood thursday at the home of Mrs. Charles Richardson, 2630 San Angelo Drive, Claremont.

Assisting hostesses for the noon event will be Mrs. Ernest Geddes and Mrs. George G. Palmer. The program will be presented by Paul Hertz.

Fashion show set Oct. 19

The Diamond Bar Woman's Club will meet Wednesday, Oct. 19, at the Diamond Bar Country Club at 10:30 a.m.

A fashion show will be presented and plans will be finalized for an upcoming Christmas bazaar and a "Las Vegas Night".

For further information, persons may contact Mrs. Delvin Krueger at 598-1105, or Mrs. Lester Bausman at 595-4382.

Joyce Brothers

Urban vs. rural

DEAR DR. JOYCE BROTHERS: My husband just learned that we have to move back to the city. This will be hard on all of us since we've been living in a rural area that we love. The children, especially the two eldest, are really coming down hard on us with hideous tales of crime, rape, murder and mayhem. They may be doing this to kid us, but they may also be expressing real fears. I worry about the younger children because I know it's just not as healthy for them, but there's really nothing we can do about it. — A.Y.

DEAR A.Y.: The city has its advantages just as the country has but because of the bad press, people often forget this. The city has great cultural and other resources that can provide a stimulating atmosphere to help your children enlarge and achieve their potential.

Help your family prepare for the move by taking a positive attitude and pointing out the many advantages that city life offers. Your family is fortunate because they have been able to enjoy the beauty of country living and now they have an opportunity to increase their perceptions about life and life styles.

As for crime, remember 70 percent of the murders committed in the U.S. are by persons who knew their victims. Thirty percent are committed by another family member and in a great many of these cases, alcohol was an important ingredient.

Prepare your family to enjoy their new home and the chances are they will.

DEAR DR. JOYCE BROTHERS: We recently moved to a new suburban community. When my husband and I went to our first party, we were surprised by the number of people who were freely using several drugs as well as alcohol. Cocaine and marijuana seem to be commonplace among the more sophisticated adults. Having and offering cocaine is a status symbol. Because it's so expensive, it lets your guests know that you have plenty of money. I know that the kids also are into drugs. This worries me because we have children. Any suggestions? — M. O'B.

DEAR M. O'B.: I suggest you introduce the subject and encourage your children to give you their views. Try not to express great shock if they tell you they've already used drugs. If you do, the conversation may end abruptly. They may be afraid to tell you more.

Under the circumstances you describe, it may be very difficult to keep your children from using drugs. I believe the best course is to make them as self-assured and self-confident as possible so they don't turn to drugs for an ego prop.

Bring in as much literature as possible about the physical side effects of drug use. Above all, keep the channels of communication open.

Republicans schedule Saturday barbecue

A western hacienda barbecue will be held by the Claremont Republican Women's Club at the Old Padua Hills Theater in Claremont on Saturday, beginning with a social hour at 6:30 p.m.

The menu has been planned by the food chairman, Mrs. Roger Wells. Entertainment will feature "Louisa" and her dancers.

The bi-annual affair is held to help defreay expenses for educational activities such as seminars and workshops for club members, staffing headquarters during elections and precinct work in general, including voter registration drives. Members also contribute to support the work of other local community organizations according to Mrs. Dennis O'Connor, president.

Chairman is Mrs. Luther Chambers. Assisting her are Mmes. Dennis Corbiel, Donald Cross, Mortin Grothe, Robert Barlow, Robert Shacklett and Al Moore.

Dress for fun in casual or western wear.

For reservations call Mrs. Walter Phares, 626-4320, or Mrs. Al Moore, 626-8443. Tickets also will be sold at the door.

"Will you fix my hair like Farrah Fawcett-Majors'?"

30 seconds

National Council on Alcoholism warned all pregnant women to stay off alcoholic drinks or risk hurting their unborn child.

Dr. Joseph Cruse, University of Southern California Obstetrician-Gynecologist, said, "The dangers of drinking during pregnancy are so great that therapeutic abortion is indicated when a pregnant woman can't control her intake."

Evidence showing alcohol as a contributor to more than 6,000 birth defects a year recently brought warnings from Dr. Ernest Noble, head of the National Institute on Alcohol Abuse and Alcoholism.

6 plays planned at UCR

The theater department of UC Riverside will present six plays during the 1977-78 season.

Beginning with the musical "Stop the World, I Want To Get Off," which opens Nov. 9, the schedule includes Milan Stitt's thriller "The Runner Stumbles" the Tony Award-winning "Kennedy's Children," Ibsen's classic "A Doll's House," Susan Miller's Drama "Cross Country" and Oliver Goldsmith's comedy "She Stoops To Conquer."

Anthony Newley and Leslie Bricusse wrote "Stop the World" as a kind of modern-day Everyman in a new and different musical style. UCR's version, directed by Eric Barr, will play Nov. 9 through 12 and 16 through 19 at 8:15 each evening, with a 2:30 matinee on Nov. 12.

"The Runner Stumbles" is a suspense tale about duty and conflict based on an actual murder trial.

WHAT'S COOKING? — Ballet superstar Rudolf Nureyev gives Dinah Shore some advice as she cooks a steak for him at her Beverly Hills home. The singer is considered one of the best cooks in show business. Nureyev will make one of his rare TV appearances on her talk show, "Dinah!" on Oct. 12.

Four operas on television

Following last year's successful telecast of "La Boheme," the Metropolitan Opera will televise live performance of "Rigoletto," "Don Giovanni," and the double bill of "Cavalleria Rusticana" and "Pagliacci" over the Public Broadcasting System (PBS) during the 1977-78 season.

The funding of the three live simulcasts will be made possible by a major grant from Texaco, which has sponsored the Saturday afternoon radio broadcasts of the Met for 37 years and last season sponsored its first full telecast on PBS.

The first telecast will be the Metropolitan's new production of Verdi's "Rigoletto" Nov. 7. James Levine, music director of the Metropolitan, will conduct. The cast will include Ileana Cotrubas as Gilda, Florence Quivar as Maddalena, Cornell MacNeil in the title role, Placido Domingo as the Duke, Justino Diaz as Sparafucile and John Cheek as Monterone.

Mozart's "Don Giovanni" will be presented March 16 with Joan Sutherland as Donna Anna and James Morris in the title role. Julia Varady will be heard as Donna Elvira, Huguette Tourangeau as Zerlina, John Brecknock as Don Ottavio, Gabriel Bacquier as Leporello, Allan Monk as Masetto, and John Macurdy as the Commendatore. Richard Bonynge will conduct.

All three telecasts will begin at 8 p.m. EST and will be simulcast in stereo on FM radio stations in major cities, hosted again, as last year, by Tony Randall.

Crafts festival slated at adobe

The Historical Society of Pomona Valley and the City of Pomona will sponsor Fiesta de Artesanias, a festival of crafts, at the Adobe de Palomares, Orange Grove Avenue and Arrow Highway, from 9:30 a.m. to 6 p.m. Oct. 15. Admission is free.

The purpose of the program is to demonstrate the skills from the era of the Palomares adobe, 1850-1875, so that younger generations can appreciate them and possibly take them up. The festival will include demonstrations of blacksmithing, spinning, weaving, silverworking, pottery making, stitching, lace making and leather working.

Taking part will be Joe Henry, pottery; Mary Weissel, weaving, spinning and dyeing; Lorna Crosby, lacework; Jim Leos, a mission Indian, silverwork; and Borthwick Kaeser and Associates, old-time photography.

Entertainment will include Early California dancing, Spanish folk dancing, Cahuilla Indian dancing and guitar music. Taking part will be Folklorico Beltran del Valle de Pomona, Ballet Folklorico Mexico from Chaffey High School and the Cahuilla Dancers and bird song singer.

ART cancels comedy

Because of illnesses in the cast, the Actors Repertory Theater has cancelled three scheduled performances of "Where to, Turelu?" at the Claremont Playhouse this weekend.

The play was to have been presented by the Children's Theater at 11 a.m. and 2:30 p.m. Saturday and at 2:30 p.m. Sunday.

Final performances of "The Innocents" will be staged at the Playhouse at 8 p.m. Friday and Saturday.

Luau set at Catalina

An authentic Polynesian luau will be held on Catalina Island Saturday, with entertainment provided by 60 top Polynesian performers and guest stars from Hawaii. Orchid leis will be given to all guests.

Catalina boats will leave San Pedro at 1:30 p.m., returning about midnight. Cost of "Day in Polynesia," including roundtrip boat fare, is $25.

Reservations can be made at (213) 549-0808.

Easy, economical goodies

Chocolate-coated pretzels for snacks

If the kids in your life say "any flavor just so it's chocolate," here are three chocolate goodies to satisfy their cravings.

Each is deep chocolatey good, each takes little of your precious time to produce, and none will make a dent in the family food budget.

Orange-Kissed Chocolate Cupcakes and Apple-Nut Chocolate Brownies are simply put together with the help of economical canned chocolate flavored syrup. Both make super after-school nurishing snacks with a pitcher of cold milk. Chocolate-Coated Pretzels, a popular adult snack, are easily made by melting dark chocolate flavored Mini Chips with a four-ounce milk chocolate bar to coat your favorite pretzels.

CHOCOLATE-COATED PRETZELS

1 cup chocolate flavored mini chips
1 large milk chocolate bar (4 ounces), broken into pieces
2 tablespoons shortening
1 package (9 to 10 ounces) unsalted pretzels

Combine chocolate flavored mini chips and broken chocolate bar in top of double boiler; melt completely over warm water. Cool, stirring occasionally, until coating is lukewarm and slightly thickened (96 Degrees F.). Dip pretzels with a fork into melted chocolate. Gently tap fork on side of bowl to remove excess chocolate. Cool on waxed paper-covered cookie sheet until coating is firm or chill 15 minutes. (Coating temperature should be maintained at 94 degrees F. while dipping; reheat over warm water, if necessary.)

ORANGE-KISSED CHOCOLATE CUPCAKES

1½ cups unsifted all-purpose flour
1¼ cups sugar
¼ teaspoon baking soda
¼ teaspoon salt
1 can (1 pound) chocolate flavored syrup
½ cup butter or margarine, softened
4 eggs
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 package (6 ounces) milk chocolate kisses (36 kisses)

Combine flour, sugar, baking soda and salt in a large mixer bowl. Add chocolate syrup, butter or margarine, eggs and vanilla. Blend on low speed 30 seconds until all ingredients are moistened; beat on medium speed 3 minutes. Line muffin cups (2½ inches in diameter) with paper bake cups; fill just ½ full with batter. Bake at 350 degrees for 20 to 22 minutes. Cool completely; fill and frost cupcakes with Orange Cream Frosting. Top with a milk chocolate kiss. Makes 32 to 34 cupcakes.

ORANGE CREAM FROSTING

¼ cup unsifted all-purpose flour
½ cup milk
¼ cup butter or margarine
¼ cup shortening
1 tablespoon finely grated orange peel
2 teaspoons orange juice
¼ teaspoon salt
4 cups confectioner's sugar
Red and yellow food color (optional)

Combine flour and milk in a saucepan. Cook, stirring constantly with wire whisk, until mixture thickens and just begins to boil; cool and chill thoroughly.

Cream butter or margarine and shortening, until light and fluffy; add orange peel, orange juice and salt. Blend in chilled flour mixture. Gradually add confectioners' sugar to creamed mixture. Stir in food color. About 3 cups frosting.

To Fill Cupcakes: Spoon filling into pastry tube with open star tip; insert tip into center of cupcake. Squeeze gently until cupcake begins to peak; cover top with swirl of filling. (OR cut a 1½-inch cone from top of cupcake. Fill cavity; replace cone. Swirl filling over top.)

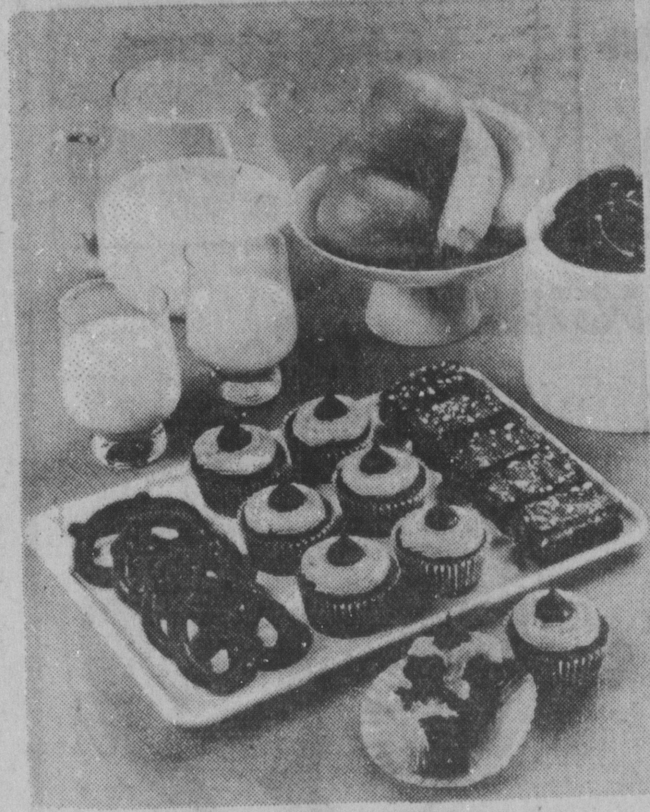
APPLE-NUT CHOCOLATE BROWNIES

½ cup butter or margarine
1 cup sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla
2 eggs
1¼ cups unsifted all-purpose flour
¼ teaspoon baking soda
¾ cup grated apple
¼ cup applesauce
¼ teaspoon cinnamon
⅛ teaspoon baking soda
¾ cup canned chocolate flavored syrup
½ cup chopped nuts

Cream butter or margarine, sugar and vanilla until light and fluffy. Add eggs and beat well. Combine flour and ¼ teaspoon baking soda; gradually add to creamed mixture.

Combine ¾ cup batter, grated apple, applesauce, cinnamon and ⅛ teaspoon baking soda in small bowl. Add chocolate syrup and nuts to remaining batter. Spread chocolate-nut batter in a greased 13 x 9 x 2-inch pan. Spread apple mixture carefully over chocolate. Bake at 350 degrees for 25 to 30 minutes or until brownie begins to pull away from sides of pan; cool completely. Spread with Chocolate Bar Glaze. Garnish with chopped nuts, if desired. About 30 brownies (2½ x 1½ inches).

Chocolate Bar Glaze: Melt one 4-ounce milk chocolate bar with 1 tablespoon plus 1 teaspoon water in top of double boiler over warm water. Stir until chocolate is completely melted. Spoon onto top of brownies and spread evenly.



CHOCOLATE GOODIES

Beefy barbecue wrap-ups tops

One of the best occasions for easygoing all out fun is a tailgate picnic before a rousing afternoon of football. The colorful game time atmosphere is the perfect background for sharing good food with good friends.

No elaborate plans are necessary. Handy cans of meat spreads, eggs, cheese and other kitchen staples can be turned into an impromptu picnic in a matter of minutes . . . suitable for eating in the stadium parking lot or in the stands during the half time entertainment.

Plan according to the weather. If the day is blustery, pack up Deviled Omelet Picnic Bundles. Hollow out rolls to make then spill proof, spread with deviled ham and fill with a lightly seasoned scrambled egg mixture. Wrap them in foil and heat through in the oven. An insulated container or layers of newspapers over the foil will keep them warm from oven to stadium.

Beefy Barbecue Wrap-Ups are also warmed in the oven before packing — split onion rolls layered with roast beef spread, chopped green pepper, barbecue sauce and sliced American cheese melted on top.

On the other hand, if the afternoon temperatures are still soaring, play it cool with Chicken Salat Pitas. If you bring the ingredients in separate containers, they can be put together on the spot for crunchy results.

Keep the rest of the menu as casual as these sandwiches. Bring a large thermos of hot water for coffee, tea or a variety of instant soups. Slices or cubes of assorted cheeses packed in plastic bags team up easily with crackers or fresh fruit. If they're drained first, pickles and olives can be nibbled right from the jar.

For dessert, sneak in a bag of store bought cookies. No one's going to care if you haven't baked when it's fourth down and a yard to go!

DEVILED HAM PICNIC BUNDLES

6 rectangular French rolls
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
3 tablespoons minced onion
2 tablespoons dried chives
8 eggs, lightly beaten
¼ teaspoon black pepper
1 can (4½ ounces) deviled ham

Preheat oven to 375 degrees. Cut rolls in half lengthwise and scoop out the insides.

In a skillet, over medium heat, melt butter or margarine. Cook onions and chives until soft. Pour in beaten egg, and cook, turning gently, until softly scrambled. Spread deviled ham evenly in bottom halves of rolls, top with egg mixture, and roll tops. Wrap each in foil; heat in oven 15 minutes until hot. Makes six servings.

BEEFY BARBECUE WRAP-UPS

1 can (4¾ ounces) roast beef spread
2 tablespoons chopped green peppers
2 tablespoons barbecue sauce
4 onion rolls, split and toasted
½ cup shredded Cheddar cheese

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. In a bowl, mix together roast beef spread, chopped peppers and barbecue sauce. Spread on bottom halves of onion rolls; top with shredded cheese. Close with tops of rolls. Wrap in foil and bake 10 to 15 minutes. Serve warm. Makes four sandwiches.

CHICKEN SALAD PITAS

1 can (4¾ ounces) chunky chicken spread
2 tablespoons chopped onion
4 loaves pita bread
4 slices tomato, cut in half

1 cup shredded lettuce
1/3 cup Russian dressing

In a bowl, mix together chicken spread and onion. Cut an opening in pita bread and fill with chicken spread. Top with tomato slices, shredded lettuce and Russian dressing. Makes four sandwiches.

Beef stew discovery nutritious

In the days when great galleons toiled home beating the offshore breezes in the Gulf of Genoa, their first hint of land was the wind-carried scents of the herbs carpeting the green hills above Genoa. Those same gusty winds, that carried famous explorers like Columbus, whipped up appetites that inspired culinary achievement in the Mediterranean countries. Today in turn, appropriate inspiration for creative endeavor in food preparation in our country can come from Italian cuisine.

In the spirit of Columbus Day why not do a little discovering of your own and serve a tasty new entree of Italian ancestory. One creative cook did this and the same tempting aroma of days past drifts from her kitchen when she prepares "Beef Stew Discovery." When an Italian flavor accent is applied to boneless beef cubes, a most delicious stew results. A blend of tomatoes, cream of mushroom soup and grated Parmesan cheese plus egg noodles also give this dish global appeal.

Italian cooks are known for thrifty as well as flavor and this stew is easy on the budget as well as inviting. The basic ingredient — beef for stew — is an economical market choice. Conveniently packaged and ready for the pot, these boneless pieces of lean meat provide the good flavor and important food nutrients of beef at a bargain price. Beef for stew supplies the same high quality protein and important vitamins and materials as the more costly cuts. Since stew is known for its hearty and satisfying characteristics, it makes appealing cool weather table fare.

BEEF STEW DISCOVERY

2 pounds beef for stew
3 tablespoons flour
1 teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon paprika
⅛ teaspoon pepper
3 tablespoons cooking fat
1 bouillon cube, crushed
¾ cup hot water
1 medium onion, chopped
1 teaspoon rosemary, crushed
1 can (16 ounces) tomatoes
1 can cream of mushroom soup (10¾ ounces)
½ teaspoon garlic salt
1 package (8 ounces) cooked egg noodles
½ cup Parmesan cheese, grated

Cut meat in 1½ inch pieces. Combine flour, salt, paprika and pepper; dredge beef cubes. Lightly brown in cooking fat; pour off drippings. Dissolve bouillon cube in hot water; add bouillon, onion and rosemary to meat, cover tightly and cook slowly 1½ hours. Combine tomatoes, mushroom soup and garlic salt; stir into beef cubes. Cook slowly 10 minutes. Fold in cooked noodles and Parmesan cheese.

With generously ladeled servings of stew, little else is needed for a nourishing dinner. For the supplementary vegetable choose zucchini squash or Italian green beans. Include thinly sliced mushrooms in a green salad, tossed with Italian dressing. The aroma of warm garlic bread drifting from the kitchen is sure to add to the dinner excitement. Then finish off the Columbus Day celebration with spumone ice cream.

Peaches in a sandwich

Here's a great idea for simple summer treats — spread slices of nut bread with cream cheese. Top with thin slices of fresh California peaches and a sprinkling of cinnamon-sugar. Remember to dip peaches into an ascorbic acid mixture or citrus juice to prevent darkening.

BEEF STEW FOR COLUMBUS DAY

Future eating trends studied

Selected Los Angeles County residents are helping to determine future eating patterns in America by participating in the largest government study of food consumption ever undertaken.

At least 375 households in this area are reporting the deatils of their eating habits as part of the year-long project, which is being directed by the U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) and conducted by the National Analysts Division of Booz, Allen & Hamilton. Another six area residents are also involved in the study as interviewers.

Los Angeles County is one of only 114 areas across the country chosen for this survey. It was selected as being representative of similar areas in this part of the country. Families from this area will be joined by more than 23,000 others from all 50 states and Puerto Rico in the massive study of Americans' dietary and nutritional patterns.

The survey will reveal how changes in the American life style affect the way we eat. Smaller families, greater numbers of older people, different life styles, the number of people who eat away from home, the growing number of women working outside the home, the increasing popularity of home-produced food to offset rising food costs — all may be factors in changing dietary and nutritional patterns.

Data from this survey will be used in many nutrition and education programs, and are a primary source of statistical information used in evaluating and developing national food and nutrition policies.

The real significance lies one step beyond finding out what, when, how much, and with whom Americans are eating. It lies in what's done with that mass of information. And past USDA food studies are leading examples of translating research into action.

Former USDA food studies have been a factor in the development of such concrete consumer benefits as various school lunch and food assistance programs, food fortification and enrichment programs, nutrition education programs and dietary guidance materials, and special assistance plans for such high nutritional risk groups as the young, the elderly, and the poor.

It's too early to predict what the current study will uncover. But it's safe to say that a number of Federal agencies which administer programs on the adequacy of diets and food safety will be watching the results carefully.

The cooperative nature of this particular study assures that the results will extend beyond USDA programs and policies. Joining Agriculture in the research are the Commerce Department and several agencies of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, notably the Food and Drug Administration and the Social Security Administration.

As USDA and National Analysts point out, the ultimate success and usefullness of the study depends on the willingness of the more than 20,000 families to devote a portion of their time to supplying the necessary information. Their reward, of course, lies in better food information and programs affecting the health of all American families.

Hearty ravioli stew is for two

Football games, hikes, fall bicycling, even sailing, call for hearty meals. The great out-of-doors does wonders for appetites. Here's the answer for a hungry twosome; try an easy but full-bodied ravioli stew. Canned ravioli in a rich tomato sauce is the basis of this dish.

Combine meat filled ravioli with everyday vegetables such as carrots and onions, plus some zucchini or other squash, and the results are unbeatable. The stew can be prepared before hand, in minutes and placed in a thermos to keep hot. Or, if you're the camping type, it can be warmed on a portable stove. However you eat it, with wine for an Italian atmosphere, or with coffee to be strictly All-American, it's delicious.

HEARTY RAVIOLI STEW FOR TWO

2 frankfurters, sliced
2 tablespoons chopped onion
2 tablespoons chopped green pepper
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
1 can (7½ oz.) beef ravioli
2 tablespoons dry white wine or dry vermouth (optional)
1 can (7½ oz.) sliced carrots
1 zucchini, sliced
Dash garlic salt
¼ teaspoon basil

Saute frankfurters, onion and green pepper in margarine. Add remaining ingredients. Cover, simmer for 7 to 10 minutes. Serves two.

Try bran—pancakes, raisin coffee cake with vanilla glaze

Adopt a sensible, healthful high fiber diet by starting with nutritionally complete breakfasts and fiber-rich combinations for lunch and dinner. Listed below are eight such recipes. Also included are five imaginative and easy party ideas with two recipes.

Small amounts of bran are easily added to standard servings of cooked and dry cereals, pancakes, cakes, quick breads or muffins. Most standard bread recipes can be adapted to incorporate bran in addition to or as part of the flour.

When used in cookies, cake or pie crust, the natural flavor of wheat bran cereal is enhanced by the addition of almond or other nut flavorings. The addition of bran to a variety of foods allows the intake to be spread throughout the day.

A complete breakfast gives the day a good start. This meal is a natural spot for the inclusion of wheat bran cereal, either in the cereal bowl with milk or in wake-up foods the family will enjoy, like pancakes, muffins or coffeecake.

BRAN PANCAKES

4 cups wheat bran flakes cereal
1 cup pancake mix
2 eggs
2 cups milk
2 tablespoons salad oil

Crush cereal to make 1 cup crumbs; combine with pancake mix in medium bowl. In small bowl beat eggs with milk and oil. Make a well in the center of the cereal mixture, add liquid and stir until batter is almost smooth. Heat lightly greased griddle or skillet over medium heat. Pour ¼ cup batter for each pancake onto griddle and cook until golden brown on both sides, turning once. Makes 12 pancakes.

BRAN AND RAISIN COFFEECAKE

¾ cup regular margarine or butter
1 teaspoon grated lemon rind
1 cup sugar
2 eggs
1 cup sour cream
1½ cups wheat bran flakes cereal
1½ cups unsifted all-purpose flour
1 teaspoon baking powder
¼ teaspoon salt
½ cup raisins

In large bowl cream margarine, lemon rind and sugar until light and fluffy. Beat in eggs one at a time, beating well after each addition. Mix sour cream and wheat bran cereal; let stand 1 to 2 minutes until cereal is soft. Mix flour, baking powder and salt; add alternately with cereal mixture to creamed mixture. Stir in raisins. Turn into greased 9-inch tube cake pan. Bake in 350 degree oven 55 to 60 minutes or until cake tester inserted in cake comes out clean. Cool 10 minutes, remove from pan and cool completely. Frost top of coffeecake with Vanilla Glaze. (Recipe follows.) Makes one 9-inch coffeecake ring.

VANILLA GLAZE

1 cup unsifted confectioners' sugar
1 tablespoon soft margarine or butter
4 to 6 teaspoons milk
½ teaspoon vanilla

Beat all ingredients until smooth, using enough milk to make a spreadable consistency.

"What's for lunch?" That is the question heard coast-to-coast everyday. Answer with imaginative recipes that include fiber-rich wheat bran cereal, one of the best sources of dietary fiber, which helps regulate the digestive system.

All-bran cereals are a nutty-sweet tasting ingredient in Barbecued Branburgers and part of a savory topping for fresh spinach salad. And wheat bran cereals will enhance a spicy Applesauce Bran Bread.

BARBECUED BRANBURGERS

2/3 cup chili sauce
¼ cup finely chopped onion
¼ cup finely chopped green pepper
2 tablespoons prepared mustard
½ cup shreds of wheat bran cereal
1 teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
1 pound ground beef

In medium bowl mix chili sauce, onion, green pepper and mustard. Measure ½ cup sauce and reserve for basting burgers. Stir wheat bran cereal into remaining sauce. Let stand 5 minutes to soften cereal. Stir in salt, pepper and ground beef; mix well. Shape into 6 patties. Place on broiler rack set 5 inches from heat. Brush with some of remaining sauce, and cook 5 minutes. Turn, baste with sauce, and cook 3 to 5 minutes. Turn, baste with sauce, and cook 3 to 5 minutes longer or to desired degree of doneness. Makes 6 servings.

BRAN SPINACH SALAD

¼ cup margarine or butter
1 cup shreds of wheat bran cereal
1½ teaspoons chopped chives
1 teaspoon dried leaf basil
¾ teaspoon paprika
½ teaspoon dried dill weed
4 cups torn spinach leaves
4 cups torn lettuce leaves
6 hard-cooked eggs, sliced
1 cup halved cherry tomatoes
¼ pound fresh mushrooms, sliced, or 1 can (2 or 3 ounces) sliced mushrooms, drained

In small skillet melt margarine. Add wheat bran cereal, chives, basil, paprika and dill weed; mix lightly. Stir over low heat for about 4 minutes, or until slightly toasted. Remove from heat and cool. In large bowl, combine spinach, lettuce, eggs, cherry tomatoes and mushrooms. Sprinkle with prepared bran topping, add Mustard Dressing (recipe follows) and toss lightly. Serve immediately. Makes 6 servings.

MUSTARD DRESSING

1 tablespoon hot mustard
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
1½ tablespoons lemon juice
¼ cup red wine vinegar
½ cup salad oil
1 tablespoon chopped parsley

In small bowl mix all ingredients, or shake in jar with tight lid.

APPLESAUCE BRAN BREAD

½ cup regular margarine or butter
1 teaspoon cinnamon
¼ teaspoon cloves
¾ cup sugar
2 eggs
1 and 2/3 cups unsifted all-purpose flour
1 teaspoon baking soda
¼ teaspoon baking

Say... "Cheese", Please!

By any other name it would smell as sweet.

Basically, cheese is concentrated, fermented milk. All cheeses contain the same milk ingredients, but the amounts vary in the different varieties. Been confused by all the names and labels like cheese "food" and cheese "spread", "natural" cheese and "processed" cheese? These names have to do with the amount of butterfat and moisture in the product. So-called "natural" cheeses must have 30% butterfat, or more. Processed cheeses should contain at least 30%. Cheese food, at least 23%. Cheese spread, at least 20%. "Imitation" cheeses must contain (in some degree) protein and fat from a non-animal source. And harder cheeses contain less moisture than the softer varieties. Definitions or no, it's often difficult to tell the difference from one kind to another by taste or looks alone. But no matter which you choose, cheese is a tasty and versatile way to provide protein, minerals and vitamins for your family.

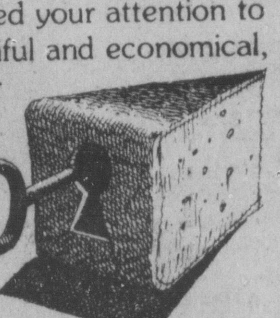
Focus on cheddar.

Originally from Cheddar, England, much good cheddar now comes from Wisconsin, as well as a few other areas across our nation. It's a hard, smooth, firm cheese. The taste can be mild, all the way up to sharp (read the label to avoid surprises). Color may shade from pale yellow to rich orange. Cheddar is made of cow's milk, and aged anywhere from two months to a year. The longer curing produces the sharper flavor. Cheddar was once made in cones, wheels or horn shapes. But now squares are more usual since they're easier to transport around the globe. Folks had gotten used to the half-moon shape of Longhorn Cheddar, though, so today's manufacturers actually cut out the half rounds from a huge block.

O, to be a giant mouse.

This remaining hulk of cheese with craters in it, doesn't go to waste. It's melted down and pasteurized and mixed with whey and sugar, and stabilizers to keep it from crumbling. The result is that tasty variety known as processed cheese. You've heard of whey in the Miss Muffet nursery rhyme. Well, 100 lbs. of milk makes 10 lbs. of cheese (curds) and 90 lbs. of liquid whey. Dry whey powder is not only high in protein, it's a good binding agent for candies and processed cheeses, among other products.

Key Buys of the Week.



We hope we've directed your attention to the cheese, by now. It's plentiful and economical, and we can pass along a number of manufacturers allowances. (Look for the Key Buy sign.) We offer lots of other good values to help you round out your shopping list. Here's more than 50 good prices to get you started. There's more in our stores.

Try icy island yogurt, sour cream date drop cookies

Imagine the taste of warm tropical sunshine, of refreshing tropical showers; the taste of a fresh juicy peach and a sweet ripe Crenshaw melon. Surprisingly, all of these luscious qualities can be found in one golden fruit — the exotic papaya from Hawaii.

Sent from the Islands almost daily, Hawaiian papayas are becoming a welcome addition to many Mainland tables. If you haven't yet sampled a spoonful of the delicious papaya, treat yourself! Try slicing Hawaiian papaya in half, adding a squeeze of lime juice and eating like a melon. Simply wonderful and wonderfully simple! The papaya also becomes an edible bowl when filled with all kinds of goodies — favorite salads, scoops of cottage cheese, ice cream and even frozen yogurt.

Hawaiian papaya is a versatile — and healthful — fruit. At a mere 78 calories per half (approximately 7 ounces) and rich in vitamins A and C, papaya makes a satisfying, yet diet-safe treat, too. When teamed with protein and calcium rich dairy products, the Hawaiian papaya is a nutritious, anytime pick-me-up.

Our Icy Island Yogurt, a super refresher and great make-ahead dessert, is a heavenly combination of fresh Hawaiian papaya and tangy yogurt, churned in an ice cream freezer then scooped out and served in papaya boats. Since papayas don't darken when cut, you can even prepare the papaya halves ahead and keep refrigerated until serving time. Topped with a dollop of yogurt and capped with a strawberry, this frozen yogurt is truly a tropical delight!

As a tasty go-with, try baking up a batch of Sour Cream Date Drop Cookies. Cake-like on the inside, crunchy on the outside, these sure to please cookies are given a distinctive flavor boost with the addition of dairy sour cream.

Selecting fresh Hawaiian papaya is easy. Just look for the golden-yellow color that indicates ripeness. A yellow-green papaya will ripen in a few days if left at room temperature. Be sure to keep the ripe papaya in your refrigerator where it will stay in top-notch condition for about a week. Also keep in mind that the average Hawaiian papaya weighs about a pound and will yield two generous servings, making them ideal purchases for single or two person families.

ICY ISLAND YOGURT

2 eggs, separated
¾ cup sugar
Dash salt
6 papayas
3 tablespoons fresh lime juice
2½ cups plain yogurt
Whole strawberries for garnish (optional)
Sliced pineapple rings
Sour Cream Date Drop Cookies (recipe follows)

Beat egg yolks, ¼ cup of the sugar and salt until light and lemony. Peel, seed and puree 2 of the papayas; stir into beaten yolks with lime juice and ¼ cup more sugar. Beat until sugar has dissolved. Stir in yogurt. Beat egg whites with remining ¼ cup sugar to soft peaks. Fold into papaya-yogurt mixture. Churn freeze in hand crank or electric ice cream maker following manufacturer's instructions. Halve and seed remaining papayas. Scoop forzen yogurt into cavities. Garnish with a dollop of yogurt and whole strawberry, if desired. Serve with pineapple rings in a sundae dish. Accompany with Sour Cream Date Drop Cookies. Makes 8 servings, about 1 quart frozen yogurt).

NOTE: Frozen yogurt can be stored in freezer until needed. Let stand at room temperature 15 to 20 minutes before serving.

SOUR CREAM DATE DROP COOKIES

1 cup butter
2 cups firmly packed brown sugar
2 eggs
3½ cups flour
1 teaspoon of each baking soda and salt
2/3 cup dairy sour cream
1 cup chopped dates
Egg white, lightly beaten
Sugar

In mixing bowl, cream together butter, sugar and eggs. Stir in sifted dry ingredients alternately with sour cream. Mix in dates. Drop by teaspoonfuls onto greased baking sheets. Brush with beaten egg white, and sprinkle with sugar. Bake in 400 degree oven 8 to 10 minutes or until lightly browned. Cool on racks. Makes about 5 dozen cookies.

NORWAY PIZZA

Tastes combined

Try a 'Norway' pizza as snack

By Aileen Claire
NEA Food Editor

A blend of two worlds makes a good snack for a teen-age party or a late nibble for adult sports fans.

Taking a tip from the Italians, we combine sardines and sour cream as suggested by some Norwegian friends and top this with cheese slices.

Use a cheese-pizza mix or your own pizza dough made ahead. Whatever, you'll find this particular filling a favorite for those who like their pizza "around-the-world."

NORWAY PIZZA

1 package (16 oz.) cheese-pizza mix
1 can (3¾ oz.) Norway sardines, drained
½ cup sour cream
1 egg yolk
1 tablespoon capers
4 fresh mushrooms, sliced or 1 can (4 oz.) sliced mushrooms, drained
⅛ teaspoon oregano

Preheat oven to 425 degrees. Mix dough for pizza, following instructions on package. Pat out to a rectangle 9 by 12 inches on a cookie sheet. Arrange sardines on dough, spacing them about one inch apart. Blend sour cream, egg yolk, capers, mushrooms and oregano. Pour about two-third can of the pizza sauce with sour cream mixture and swirl lightly. Spread over dough. Sprinkle generously with the grated cheese (included with the pizza mix). Bake in preheated oven 20 to 25 minutes, or until bubbly and golden. Cut into slices and serve at once. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

Bran pancakes, coffee cake tasty and nutritional—

powder
½ teaspoon salt
1 cup applesauce
1 cup shreds of wheat bran cereal
1 cup raisins

In large bowl cream margarine, cinnamon, cloves and sugar until light and fluffy. Beat in eggs. Mix flour, baking soda, baking powder and salt. Mix applesauce and wheat bran cereal. Blend flour into creamed mixture alternately with applesauce and cereal. Stir in raisins. Turn into greased 9 x 5 x 3-inch loaf pan. Bake in 350 degree oven 55 to 60 minutes, or until cake tester inserted in center of loaf comes out clean. Cool 10 minutes. Turn out of pan and cool completely. Wrap well and store overnight before slicing. Makes 1 loaf.

It's easy and smart to add bran cereals to hearty supper main dishes. We'll show you how with Chicken and Bran Stuffed Pepper and Stuffed Cabbage Leaves with Curry Sauce.

For your grand finale, serve a rich, moist and spicy Bran Carrot Cake.

CHICKEN AND BRAN STUFFED PEPPERS

8 green peppers
Water
1 can (1 pound, 12 ounces) tomatoes
2 cups cut-up cooked chicken
¼ cup chopped onion
1/3 cup chopped celery with leaves
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon dried leaf basil
⅛ teaspoon pepper
1 cup shreds of wheat bran cereal
1/3 cup package precooked rice

Cut off tops of green peppers and remove seeds. Cook, uncovered, in large kettle of boiling water for 5 minutes, drain and set aside. Coarsely chop tomatoes, reserving liquid. In medium bowl combine tomatoes, liquid and remaining ingredients. Spoon into prepared green peppers. Place in shallow baking dish and add just enough water to cover bottom of pan. Bake in 350 degrees oven 30 minutes. Makes 8 servings.

STUFFED CABBAGE LEAVES WITH CURRY SAUCE

8 large or 12 medium cabbage leaves
Water
½ pound pork sausage
¼ cup chopped onion
1 cup chopped, pared, cored apple
½ cup chopped cabbage
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
¼ teaspoon dried leaf thyme
½ pound uncooked ground beef
1 cup shreds of wheat bran cereal

Add cabbage leaves to kettle of boiling water and cook for 6 minutes or until leaves are pliable and easy to roll. Drain and pat dry on paper towels. In large skillet break up sausage over medium heat, add onion and cook until onion is tender and sausage lightly browned. Add apple, chopped cabbage, salt, pepper and thyme. Cook 10 minutes over medium heat. Remove from heat; stir in uncooked ground beef and wheat bran cereal. Place ½ cup meat mixture in the center of each cabbage leaf. Fold sides of the cabbage leaf to make a small bundle. Fasten with wooden picks. Prepare Curry Sauce in large skillet, add cabbage rolls, cover and simmer 35 minutes, or until rolls are tender. Spoon sauce over rolls occasionally during cooking. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

CURRY SAUCE

2 tablespoons margarine or butter
½ cup chopped onion
1 teaspoon curry powder
2 tablespoons flour
2 cups chicken broth (or 2 chicken bouillon cubes dissolved in 2 cups water)
2 teaspoons lemon juice
¼ cup raisins

In large skillet melt margarine over medium heat; add onion and curry powder, and cook until onion is tender. Blend in flour; stir in chicken broth and lemon juice. Cook, stirring constantly, until sauce thickens and comes to a boil; stir in raisins.

BRAN CARROT CAKE

1 cup regular margarine or butter
1¾ cups sugar
3 eggs
2½ cups unsifted all-purpose flour
2 teaspoons baking soda
1 teaspoon baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
2 teaspoons cinnamon
½ teaspoon ground cloves
1½ cups mashed, cooked, pared carrots (1 pound carrots)
1 cup shreds of wheat bran cereal
1 cup raisins

In large bowl cream margarine and sugar. Beat in eggs, one at a time. Mix flour, baking soda, baking powder, salt, cinnamon and cloves; blend into creamed mixture alternately with carrots. Stir in wheat bran cereal and raisins. Turn into greased 10-inch tube cake pan. Bake in 350 degrees oven 60 to 65 minutes, or until cake tester inserted in cake comes out clean. Cool 10 minutes, remove from pan and cool completely. To serve, sift confectioners' sugar over top of cake. Makes 18 servings.

Having a party? Foods you make yourself outshine all others. Here, Bran Crackers have the nutty-taste of bran cereal enhanced by tangy caraway and onion. A Bran Cheese Ball, combining cream cheese, cottage cheese, and blue cheese, has easy spreading consistency with lots of texture from wheat bran cereal.

BRAN CHEESE BALL

1 package (8 ounce) cream cheese, softened
½ cup pot cheese or dry cottage cheese
2 tablespoons blue cheese
4 teaspoons chopped chives
1 teaspoon lemon juice
½ teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon cayenne pepper
1 cup shreds of wheat bran cereal, divided

In small bowl beat cream cheese, pot cheese and blue cheese until smooth. Stir in chives, lemon juice, salt, cayenne and ½ cup wheat bran cereal. Chill until firm. Shape into a ball. Roll in remaining ½ cup wheat bran cereal. Chill until ready to serve. Serve with crackers. Makes 8 appetizer servings.

BRAN CRACKERS

½ cup shreds of wheat bran cereal
¼ cup milk
¾ cup unsifted all-purpose flour
½ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon grated onion
½ teaspoon caraway seeds
¼ cup regular margarine or butter

Mix wheat bran cereal and milk. Let stand 1 to 2 minutes or until almost all liquid is absorbed. In large bowl mix flour, salt, onion and caraway seeds. Cut in margarine until mixture resembles coarse meal. Stir in bran. Gather dough in a ball. Roll out 1/16 to ⅛ inch thick on pastry cloth or waxed paper. Cut into 2-inch circles or shapes. Place on ungreased baking sheet. Bake in 350 degree oven 10 to 12 minutes or until lightly browned; do not overbake. Remove from baking sheet and cool on wire rack. Makes approximately 3 dozen crackers.

Try blue 'cheese' cake as dessert

If you like to set trends, serve this Blue Heaven Cake next time you entertain. You'll have everyone asking for the recipe, and you'll really pique their interest when you tell them that the secret ingredient is — blue cheese!

When you are a hostess, it's fun to serve something out of the ordinary. And the Blue Heaven Cake is not a lot of work because it calls for a packaged cake mix. Start with an angel food cake mix that is done in two steps. Add crumbled blue cheese during the last minute of beating time. In the finished cake, the flavor contribution of the cheese is subtle but distinctive. It gives angel food cake a whole new personality!

Of course, blue cheese is no stranger to the hostess. It is a buffet table favorite, served on crackers, or mixed with other ingredients for dips and spreads. The blue cheese flavor is a natural with vegetables. Carrots, celery and other crisp vegetables cut julienne-style are given flavor enchancement with a blue cheese dip.

And on the dessert circuit, fresh fruit tastes better with a side offering of blue cheese. Nothing could be simpler, and the flavor marriage is perfect.

But for something out of the ordinary, do try Blue Heaven Cake. And to be at the head of the procession, serve it before word gets around!

BLUE HEAVEN CAKE

½ cup crumbled blue cheese
1 package (14.5 oz.) deluxe angel food cake mix, 2 steps
1 package (8 oz.) cream cheese, softened
1 pound box powdered sugar, sifted
1 teaspoon vanilla
2 teaspoons lemon juice
½ teaspoon salt

Prepare cake according to package directions, adding blue cheese during final 1 minute of beating time. When cake is cool, beat cream cheese. Gradually add powdered sugar. Add remaining ingredients and beat at high speed about 3 minutes. Spread on cake.

Garden yield

When gardens yield fresh vegetables, speed them to the table with quick cooking and simple seasonings. Here are some Herb Butters which make good combos: savory with snap beans and succotash; basil with peas and/or tomatoes; oregano with zucchini or tomatoes; mint with peas and carrots; paprika, thyme or marjoram with corn.

Delicate cheese and spinach dumpling

Malfatti is easy tabletop cookery from Italian repertoire

Next time you're planning to serve a fancy chafing dish meal, think Italian. Many dishes from Italy's gastronomic repertoire are excellent choices for easy tabletop cookery, including malfatti, a delicate cheese and spinach dumpling.

Meaning "badly made," malfatti bears a most inappropriate name since it has all the sophistication indicative of most northern Italian cuisine. And, it's a cinch, to boot!

It's believed malfatti was so named because the cheese and spinach mixture is poached and then sauteed without being wrapped in pasta or dough as are ravioli or gnocchi. But instead of being poorly made, the dish is actually easier and more elegant to prepare and serve than the wrapped offerings.

Since much is done ahead of time, final preparation at the table is simple. To make things go even smoother, be sure to use canned heat. A solid fuel, it is smokeless, odorless and spill-proof. The flame is easily controlled, too, an important element of success.

Malfattis is best when the mixture is allowed to "rest" in your refrigerator overnight or at least several hours. Poaching can be done in advance, and the finishing touches are put on at the table.

This version calls for sauteed scallops and tomato rings, perfect compliments to the delicately-flavored dumplings. Malfatti also may be served without the scallops as an appetizer or as an interesting side dish to almost any meat.

Fettuccini Florentine is another Italian favorite that can be beautifully adapted to chafing dish cookery. Serve it as a separate pasta course or as an accompaniment to chicken or veal.

MALFATTI

3 eggs
1 pound ricotta cheese
1/3 cup grated Parmesan cheese
2 teaspoons dried leaf basil
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon nutmeg
¼ teaspoon pepper
1 pound fresh spinach, cleaned and finely chopped
½ cup chopped parsley
¼ cup finely chopped onion
1 clove garlic, minced
2½ cups soft bread crumbs
½ cup flour
¼ cup butter or margarine
Additional grated Parmesan cheese
2 tomatoes, sliced and halved
1 pound scallops, sauteed in 2 tablespoons butter or margarine for 3 minutes
Additional chopped parsley

In large bowl, beat eggs until well mixed. Add ricotta and Parmesan cheeses, basil, salt, pepper, nutmeg, spinach, parsley, onion, garlic and bread crumbs. Mix well and chill several hours or overnight. Drain off any liquid. Form into 8 oval dumplings. Coat lightly with flour. Half fill a large kettle with lightly salted water and bring to a boil. Add dumplings to water, in one layer, and simmer until they rise to the surface. Simmer 5 minutes longer. Remove dumplings and drain well.

At serving time melt butter in large crepe pan over canned heat. Add dumplings to butter and turn to coat well; arrange outside of crepe pan, and heat. Sprinkle with Parmesan cheese. Arrange halved tomato slices inside ring of dumplings and top with sauteed scallops. Sprinkle with additional chopped parsley. Makes 8 servings.

FETTUCCINI FLORENTINE

1 pound bacon
1 pound fettuccini noodles
3 teaspoons salt, divided
½ cup butter or margarine
1 package (10 ounces) frozen chopped spinach, thawed, drained
1½ cups heavy cream
1 egg, slightly beaten
2 cups grated Parmesan cheese
¼ teaspoon pepper

Cook bacon until lightly browned, drain and crumble. Cook noodles according to package directions, using 1 teaspoon salt in water. In a large crepe pan or chafing dish over canned heat, melt butter. Add drained spinach and bacon; cook until heated through. Add cooked noodles to chafing dish and toss lightly. Combine cream and egg; add to noodles with grated cheese, remaining 2 teaspoons salt and pepper. Toss to mix well. Cover and cook for 5 minutes, to heat through. Makes 8 servings.

Almond cheese bread recipe

Whether you're an experienced bread-baker or have never baked a loaf of bread in your life, here's a recipe to treasure: Almond Cheese Bread.

This savory loaf, redolent with onion, cheese and oregano, is further enhanced by the flavor and texture of finely chopped almonds. Slice it to serve warm or at room temperature with a salad of fresh fall fruits such as pears, apples, oranges and grapes. Spread slices with sweet butter as a treat with tea or coffee. Pop a slice or two into the toaster and treat yourself at breakfast time.

Because this is a bread everyone is certain to like, you might keep the recipe in mind as a gift from your kitchen at Christmas time. It takes well to freezing, so you might make several loaves as time permits and stash them away in your freezer, ready to tie with a ribbon when Christmas is suddenly upon us.

ALMOND CHEESE BREAD

1 cup slivered almonds
1 package (8 oz.) cheese crackers (50 two-inch)
1 cup sifted flour
3 teaspoons baking powder
1½ teaspoons onion powder
¾ teaspoon salt
¼ cup sugar
¾ teaspoon oregano, crushed
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
3 eggs
½ cup milk

Chop almonds in food processor or electric blender, stop-stir-and-go fashion, until finely chopped but not ground. Crush crackers fine with rolling pin or use food processor or blender, a portion of crackers at a time. (You should get two cups cracker crumbs, packed.)

Into medium bowl, sift flour with paking powder, onion powder and salt. Mix in almonds, crumbs, sugar and oregano. Cut in butter until well distributed. Beat eggs with milk, pour into dry ingredients and stir until well-mixed. Pour into greased and floured 8 by 4½ by 2¾-inch glass loaf pan. Bake in center of oven at 325 degrees for 40 minutes, or until done. Makes 1 loaf.

Canned peaches

Use your imagination when canning peaches. Add cinnamon, cloves or your favorite spices to the sugar syrup for an intriguing flavor change. A quarter cup brandy will also add a new dimension to home canned fruit.

ZUCCHINI WITH PASTA

Zucchini with pasta zesty

There's an old saying grandmother used to use, "Cheese closes the stomach." That's something to think about if you've considered vegetarian meals on occasion and then discarded them, thinking they might not satisfy a hungry family.

Adding cheese to the meal will certainly provide satiety value, which is what the saying means. Cheese satisfies so it literally closes the stomach to more food. And cheese can be added to a meal in so many ways: shredded in a stick-to-the-ribs chowder, cheese and crackers for a snack, a super sandwich, a wedge with pie, cheesecake or in an entree.

When you combine a vegetable with cheese and pasta, it's a very tasty combination, especially when that vegetable is economical and readily available zucchini. Try it with some sweet red pepper or pimiento for color and shell macaroni for interest. Butter and cream help add richness to this main dish as well as the two Italian cheeses, Provolone of the smoky taste and Mozzarella, the stretchy cheese we know from pizza.

A garden salad of lettuce, tomatoes and green onions adds a crunchy note to the meal, while baked apples or pears would be perfect for dessert. Chilled milk is the ideal beverage with these foods.

ZUCCHINI WITH PASTA

2 tablespoons butter
4 cups thinly sliced zucchini
½ cup chopped sweet red peppers or pimiento
1 teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon oregano
Dash pepper
8 ounces shell macaroni
2 tablespoons butter
2 tablespoons light cream or half and half
1 cup (4 oz.) shredded Provolone cheese
1 cup (4 oz.) shredded Mozzarella cheese

Melt butter; add zucchini and red pepper and saute just until tender, 10 to 15 minutes. Add salt, oregano and pepper. Cook macaroni according to package directions; rinse and drain. Stir in butter, cream and Provolone cheese. Divide mixture into 4 gratin dishes or individual shallow baking dishes. Divide zucchini mixture over macaroni; top with Mozarella cheese. Broil 3 to 5 inches from heat until lightly browned. Makes 4 servings.

When Italians, or their menus, speak of "fettuccine," they mean the flat, ribbon-like noodles. One of their favorite ways of preparing them is with butter ("burro"), cream and cheeses. Not only do the butter and cream add flavor to the noodles, but also satiety value. Both Parmesan and Romano cheeses are used with this dish for a subtle and elegant flavor. They add protein (nine to 11 grams protein per ounce).

Serve this dish with a crisp green salad, adding artichokes, and perhaps a few anchovies, with an Italian dressing. Fresh pineapple or pears with Provolone cheese, or pineapple and green grapes with Gorgonzola, a blue-veined cheese, provide a superb though simple dessert.

FETTUCCINE AL BURRO
(Egg Noodles with Butter and Cheese)

½ cup (1 stick) butter
¼ cup whipping cream
¼ cup grated Parmesan cheese
¼ cup grated Romano cheese
1 pound fettuccine or linguine noodles
Salt
Pepper
Mushrooms

Cream butter until light; add cream gradually, beating constantly. Beat in cheeses. Cover and set aside. (If butter-cheese mixture is not to be used at once, refrigerate. Let come to room temperature before using.)

Warm serving bowl and plates by placing in oven set on lowest heat. Cook fettuccine noodles according to package directions; rinse and drain. Pour into warmed serving bowl. Add creamed butter-cheese mixture and toss with the fettuccini with two forks until well-coated. Season to taste with salt and pepper. Garnish with sauteed mushrooms, if desired, and pass extra Parmesan cheese. Serve at once on warmed plates.

The perfect peach

In choosing peaches for any kind of preserving, look for a fresh, creamy yellow color. That bright rosy blush, characteristic of some varieties, does not necessarily indicate ripeness. Avoid peaches with blemishes or traces of green

Tasty treat for toting along

Brown bag apple pear pie is a two-fruit dessert

Riddle: What's even better than a fruit dessert? Answer: One made with two fruits.

And right now, there are two fresh fruits at the peak of ripeness in your local market — tangy apples and succulent pears. While both are prized for eating out of hand, they also complement each other beautifully when cooked together, according to the United Fresh Fruit and Vegetable Association.

Brown Bag Apple Pear Pie, contrary to what its name implies, does not belong at the bottom of a lunch sack. Rather, it is baked in a heavy paper bag (the color is incidental) to seal in its natural juices and prevent messy spillovers.

It's an easy pie to make since it requires only an unbaked shell for pastry. The brown sugar topping serves as a sweet liaison between the tangy apples and mellow pears. Baked in the bag for 30 minutes, then uncovered until the apples are tender, this pie keeps its juicy goodness to itself rather than sharing it with the oven floor.

Another harmonious combination of these harvest favorites is Spicy Apple-Pear Compóte. Zesty and golden, this duet will sing its own praises anywhere on the menu. Serve as a light, refreshing dessert, pleasing even to dieters since it contains no sugar. It also makes an excellent relish with roast chicken or pork. And save some for breakfast — it's wonderful on waffles and pancakes.

Select bright, firm unbruised apples that are well colored for the individual variety. Pears for baking and cooking should be firm and slightly underripe; for immediate eating, however, they should respond to gentle pressure of the hand.

Fresh apples and pears are healthful as well as delicious. Both fruits contain a variety of vitamins and body-building minerals essential to good health. Apples are also a valuable source of bluk-producing fiber.

BROWN BAG APPLE PEAR PIE

3 apples, pared, cored and sliced
3 pears, pared, cored and sliced
¼ cup sugar
4 tablespoons flour
¼ teaspoon ground nutmeg
Dash ground cinnamon
1 unbaked 9-inch pastry shell
1 large brown paper bag

Heat oven to 400 degrees F. In large mixing bowl combine apples, pears, sugar, flour, nutmeg and cinnamon. Turn into prepared pastry shell. Prepare Brown Sugar Topping and spread over fruit slices. Slide unbaked pie into the paper bag; fold ends over and secure with paper clips. Bake 30 minutes. Remove pie from bag and continue to bake 30 minutes longer or until apples are tender.

BROWN SUGAR TOPPING

½ cup flour
½ cup brown sugar
Dash cinnamon
¼ pound butter

Combine flour, brown sugar and cinnamon; cut in butter until mixture is smooth. Makes 8 servings.

SPICY APPLE-PEAR COMPOTE

3 large apples
3 large pears
2 cups sugar
3 cups water
6 thin lemon slices
3 whole cloves
1 tablespoon grated orange rind
1 inch piece cinnamon stick
2 teaspoons cornstarch
¼ cup cold water

Pare, core, and slice apples and pears. Combine sugar and water in medium saucepan, bring to boiling. Add lemon slices, cloves, orange rind and cinnamon. Add apple and pear slices. Simmer, uncovered, over moderate heat until apples are tender, but still firm. about 15 minutes. Turn the fruit once during cooking.

Remove apple and pear slices to serving dish. Garnish with lemon slices. Bring syrup to a rolling boil and cook until a thin syrup forms, about 5 minutes. Meanwhile, dissolve cornstarch in cold water. Add to sugar syrup. Cook 2 minutes until slightly thickened. Cool; pour over fruit slices.

Makes 6 servings.

Serve teriyaki kabobs

Fall entertaining time is here again. This cocktail party find time for last minute primping and spend more time with your guests than in the kitchen. Serve these marvelous "Teriyaki Kabobs."

They can be prepared ahead (just marinate three hours) and at serving time you spend all of about five minutes in the kitchen. You simply need to pop them into the broiler. The man of the house might even want to do them on the grill. Unlike some appetizers, "Teriyaki Kabobs" are hearty appetite-pleasers — chunks of juicy sirloin, shrimp, pineapple and green pepper. They are colorful, attractive and have a delectable, delicate flavor but still offer your guests more to sink their teeth into than a dainty canope.

TERIYAKI KABOBS

½ cup soy sauce
½ cup honey
¼ cup cream sherry
1 can (6 oz.) tomato paste
½ cup water
1 teaspoon grated orange rind
½ teaspoon garlic powder
2 pounds sirloin steak, cut into 20 cubes
20 large raw shrimp, shelled and cleaned
1 can (20 oz.) pineapple chunks, drained
5 green onions, cut into 2-inch pieces
1 large green pepper, cut into 1-inch squares
20 skewers (6 inch)

In a large bowl, combine first 8 ingredients; mix thoroughly. Add beef and shrimp; cover and refrigerate at least 3 hours. Drain beef and shrimp, reserving marinade. To assemble kabobs, place cube of meat, shrimp, pineapple chunk, piece of green onion and bell pepper square onto each skewer. Place skewers on rack in broiling pan; brush with reserved marinade. Broil 5 inches from heat 3 to 5 minutes or until meat is brown and shrimp is pink; turn and brush with marinade; broil 5 minutes longer. Makes 20 kabobs.

Plate skirt steak

Plate skirt steak is perhaps a less familiar cut but it's moderately priced and very flavorful. This is a coarse, fibrous muscle weighing about ¾ pound. It is attached to the diaphram inside the rib cage. There are only two skirt steaks per carcass. You may not find them in every market. These steaks are generally rolled and cut into pinwheels. Because they are juicy, this is a good choice for charcoal grilling. Their robust flavor goes well with spicy marinades.

CATFISH ELDORADO

Soul food with Mexican flair

'Catfish Eldorado' de Colorado

Catfish Eldorado De Colorado, featuring farm-raised catfish with a Mexican flair, captured first prize at the 1977 National Farm-raised Catfish cooking Contest.

This highly seasoned dish that can be prepared using either fillets or whole catfish is sure to satisfy even the heartiest of appetites. Part of the preparation can be done in advance, allowing you to spend less time in the kitchen if you're pressed for time or have guests.

Farm-raised catfish used for this delicacy is the product of an important industry that began in the early 1600s. Farm-raising catfish has become a profitable enterprise and a new food delight for the homemaker because her house and kitchen will not have a fishy odor when she cooks farm-raised catfish. This lack of fishy odor, combined with a mild, versatile, delicate flavor from fish grown in a pollution-free environment, is causing more homemakers to serve farm-raised catfish to families and guests.

Since the flavor of farm-raised catfish is delicately balanced, it can be a winner at a fondue pan, a beer bust, or enpapillote at a famous restaurant. Variety in preparation allows you to serve catfish simply or elegantly, depending on the mood and occasion.

Here's how you can treat your family, friends and guests to Catfish Eldorado De Colorado:

CATFISH ELDORADO DE COLORADO

6 skinned, pan-dressed catfish
Lard or bacon drippings
1 medium white onion, diced
1 large clove garlic, minced
1 green bell pepper, diced
1 can (28 oz.) tomatoes
3 dashes liquid hot pepper sauce (or to taste)
1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce
1/3 cup (generous) beer
½ teaspoon basil
1 bay leaf
½ teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
3 eggs
4 tablespoons white flour
2 cans (4 oz.) green chili strips, roasted and peeled (pit, white core, and seeds removed)
6 ounces Monterey Jack cheese (or Longhorn cheddar), shredded coarsely

Saute onion, garlic and bell pepper in 1 or 2 tablespoons lard until softened. Add tomatoes and simmer for 5 minutes. Add liquid hot pepper sauce, Worcestershire sauce, beer, basil, bay leaf, salt and pepper. Simmer, stirring occasionally for 10-15 minutes, (or a little longer if desired). While simmering sauce, prepare catfish. Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Melt lard in a frying pan to lightly cover bottom. Separate egg yolks and whites. Beat egg whites until fluffy. Fold in beaten egg yolks and stir egg mixture briskly in bowl. Wash catfish in cold water. dredge fish, one by one, in flour. Holding fish by tail, dip in egg micture and cover completely. Place fish immediately in moderately heated frying pan and place in non-greased baking disy. Lay 3½ inch wide green chili strips lengthwise on each fish. Cover fish with tomato sauce. Bake in oven about 20 to 25 minutes or until fish flakes easily when tested with fork. Sprinkle grated cheese over each fish during last 5 minutes of baking. Allow cheese to melt. Serves 6.

(Enameled saucepan and non-metalic baking dish are recommended for best flavor.)

BEANS AND GRAPES

Chances are this will make as big a hit at your house as it did at ours!

1 pound snap beans, tipped and cut in 1-inch lengths
2 tablespoons butter
½ cup finely chopped onion
2 tablespoons flour
2 tablespoons sugar
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1½ teaspoons chicken bouillon granules dissolved in 1 and 1/3 cups hot water
¾ pound seedless green grapes, stemmed, to make 2 cups

In a medium saucepan boil the beans in about 1 cup boiling water, covered, just until tender — 8 to 10 minutes; drain if necessary and reserve. Melt the butter in the clean empty saucepan and add the onion; cook gently until wilted; stir in the flour, then the sugar and lemon juice; gradually stir in the flour, then the sugar and lemon juice; gradually stir in the bouillon; cook gently, stirring constantly, until thickened. Stir in the beans and grapes and reheat. Makes 6 servings.

SPICE ROUNDS

They're rather crunchy and they're eggless.

1 cup flour, fork-stir well to aerate before measuring
½ teaspoon baking soda
1¼ teaspoons apple-pie spice
1/3 cup butter or margarine
1/3 cup firmly packed light brown sugar
2 tablespoons molasses
¼ cup generous, finely chopped pecans or walnuts

Stir together the flour, soda and spice. Cream the butter and sugar; beat in the molasses. Gradually stir in the flour mixture until blended. Chill until firm enough to handle. Using 1 level measuring teaspoon for each, roll into small balls; roll balls in the nuts and flatten slightly. Place, a few inches apart, on greased cookie sheets. Bake in a preheated 375-degree oven until browned — about 12 minutes. Let stand a minute or so before removing with a wide spatula to a wire rack to cool. Makes about 3 dozen. The baking soda produces a slightly crackled top and the spice helps dispel the soda flavor.

Note: The apple-pie spice we used is a combination of cinnamon, nutmeg, allspice and cardamom — all ground.

½ cup grape jam or jelly
¼ cup catchup
1 tablespoon prepared mustard
2 tablespoons minced onion
12 slices cooked turkey white meat
6 slices Mozzarella cheese
6 strips bacon, cut into halves crosswise and partly cooked

Toast bread lightly and spread on one side with butter. Stir together the grape jam, catchup, mustard and onion; spread on buttered side of toast. Top with turkey and Mozzarella. Criss-cross bacon over cheese. Broil until bacon is crisp and cheese begins to melt. Makes 3 to 6 servings — 1 or 2 slices per portion.

Chicken celery casserole

By Aileen Claire
NEA Food Editor

Chicken, celery and rice combine in a Dutch oven or heavy saucepan for a delicious dish that requires little attention. This is a good party entre, especially for young couples who are entertaining on a budget. Serve with a mixed green salad and a fresh fruit sherbet.

EVERGLADES CHICKEN AND CELERY CASSEROLE

4 tablespoons salad oil
1 chicken, (2½ to 3 pounds) cut into 8 pieces
1 cup regular cooking rice, uncooked
½ cup chopped onion
1 clove garlic, finely minced
2 cups water
3 chicken bouillon cubes
2 teaspoons paprika
¾ teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon ground black pepper
1 stalk celery
1 tablespoon basil leaves

In a Dutch oven or heavy saucepan heat oil. Add chicken and brown well. Remove chicken; set aside. Add rice, onion and garlic. Saute for 5 minutes, stirring constantly. Add water, bouillon cubes, paprika, salt and black pepper. Bring to the boiling point. Return chicken to Dutch oven. Cover and simmer for 15 minutes. Meanwhile, trim celery, removing sufficient leaves to make one-third cup chopped. Cut celery into 1-inch pieces (makes about 6 cups). Add celery to Dutch oven. Cover and simmer for 15 minutes. Add celery leaves and basil. Continue simmering until chicken and rice are tender, about 7 minutes. Makes 4 portions.

Use this tart-sweet fruit

Spicy plum crumb pie, fresh plum coffee ring 'delicious'

By Aileen Claire
NEA Food Editor

Plums have been abundant this season and this is a good time to enjoy a variety of desserts using this tart-sweet fruit.

Try a plum pie with a spicy crumb topping or a coffee ring that has a streusel topping and an added dash of plum sauce.

Some will get carried away and serve these treats with their favorite cheeses or ice cream or whipped cream toppings, too.

SPICY PLUM CRUMB PIE

2 cups sliced fresh California plums, unpeeled
¾ to 1 cup sugar (according to tartness of plums)
3 tablespoons cornstarch
2 teaspoons cinnamon
Dash of salt
1 unbaked pie shell (9 inch)
Butter or margarine
Spicy Crumb Topping

In mixing bowl, combine sugar, cornstarch, cinnamon and salt. Gently toss in plums. Pour mixture into unbaked pie shell. Dot with butter, sprinkle Spicy Crumb Topping over all. Bake in 400 degree oven 40 to 50 minutes. Makes one 9-inch pie.

SPICY CRUMB TOPPING

1 cup crushed corn flakes
½ cup firmly packed brown sugar
½ teaspoon cinnamon
¼ teaspoon nutmeg
½ cup butter or margarine

In mixing bowl, combine corn flakes, brown sugar, cinnamon and nutmeg. Cut in butter until mixture resembles small peas. Use to top plum pie filling.

FRESH PLUM COFFEE RING

2½ to 3 cups flour
1 package active dry yeast
¼ cup sugar
1 teaspoon salt
¼ cup butter, softened to room temperature
¾ cup hot water
1 egg
Vegetable oil
Plum Sauce
Streusel Topping
1 to 2 tablespoons lemon juice
1 cup powdered sugar

Combine 1 cup flour with yeast, sugar and salt in a mixing bowl. Add butter and water. Beat with an electric mixer 2 minutes. Add egg and one-half cup flour. Beat at high speed for 1 minute. With a wooden spoon, work in enough of the remaining flour to make a soft dough. Turn out on a floured board and knead 8 to 10 minutes or until dough is smooth and elastic. Let rest 20 minutes. Punch down. Roll dough into a rope. Starting in the center of a cookie sheet, make continuous rings, working outward from the center. Brush dough with oil and cover with plastic wrap. Refrigerate for 2 to 24 hours. Preheat oven to 400 degrees. Remove dough from refrigerator and let rise for 10 minutes. Spread Plum Sauce between coils on coffeecake and sprinkle with Streusel Topping. Bake 35 to 40 minutes or until coffee cake is golden. For glaze, blend together lemon juice and powdered sugar. Makes one 12-inch coffeecake.

PLUM SAUCE

4 fresh plums, sliced
¾ cup orange juice
½ cup sugar
2 tablespoons cornstarch

Combine orange juice, sugar and cornstarch in a saucepan. Blend thoroughly, then add plums. Cook over low heat until mixture is thick and clear, about 5 minutes. Remove from heat and cool.

STREUSEL TOPPING

3 tablespoons butter, softened to room temperature
¼ cup sugar
¼ teaspoon cinnamon
2/3 cup flour

Cream butter with sugar and cinnamon until light and fluffy. Work in flour, gradually, until mixture is crumbly.

Phils spoil Ron Cey's dream world

By JIM McCONNELL
PB Staff Writer

LOS ANGELES — For one brief shining moment, all was Camelot Tuesday night at Chavez Ravine.

Ron Cey's game-tying grand slam home run off Philadelphia ace Steve Carlton in the last of the seventh transformed Doger Stadium into a dream world, and Cey into a mythical hero, for the 55,968 fans in attendance.

Unfortunately for the Dodgers and their fans, the Phillies never believed it for a moment.

The Eastern Division champs shook off Cey's dramatic blast to come up with two runs in the top of the ninth and take the National League playoff opener 7-5 over L.A.

It was a game which, anyway you want to look at it, the Dodgers should have and could have won.

Dodger miscues, both mental and physical, gift-wrapped five runs for the visiting Phillies. That turned out to be two too many for Los Angeles to overcome.

The two teams will tangle again tonight (5:15 p.m.) in Game Two. Don Sutton (14-8) will oppose the Phils' Jim Lonborg (11-4).

While Dodger skipper Tommy Lasorda refused to acknowledge that Philly now has the edge in the playoff series in the wake of their win Tuesday, it's obvious the Dodgers are in deep trouble.

After an off-day Thursday for travel, the two teams will resume the series in Philadelphia for the weekend. Since the Phils have been almost unbeatable (60-21) at Veterans Stadium this year, tonight's game is a necessity for L.A. to win.

"Sure, winning the first game is a break for the Phillies," Lasorda admitted under questioning from scribes. "But they still have to win two to win the series. One win is just that, one win. They still need two more."

Phillie outfielder Greg Luzinski, who's mammouth two-run homer helped kayo Dodger southpaw Tommy John Tuesday, had a differing view.

"Sure, I think the Dodgers have to win the second game here," said the confident "Bull". "If they don't it's all over for them. There's no way they can beat us three times at the Vet."

Luzinski's homer, a 430-foot drive to dead center, got the Phillies off to a fast start in the game, but it was the grand-slammer by Cey that commanded most of the attention.

After the Phils had built a 5-1 lead, the Dodgers finally got something going against Carlton in the last of the seventh.

The 23-game winner looked to be in complete command as he fanned Steve Yeager to start the inning, but it was then that magical things started to happen for L.A.

Pinchhitter Jerry Grote walked on a 3-2 pitch, and Davey Lopes singled to left. Bill Russell forced Grote at third for the second out, but Reggie Smith walked, again on a 3-2 pitch, to load the sacks.

That brought Cey, the tying run, to the plate as the Dodger fans took full advantage of the situation to whoop it up.

With the capacity crowd literally screaming on every pitch, Cey and Carlton battled to a 3-2 count and "The Penguin" then fouled off a couple more deliveries to prolong the tension.

It was then that Cey waved his magic wand. He sent a line drive over the 370-foot sign in left for the grand-slammer as the huge crowd went into hysterics.

It took several minutes, and a bow from Cey, to quiet down the crowd sufficiently for the game to continue.

When it did, Steve Garvey kept the magic moment alive with a single up the middle to finish the stunned Carlton.

However, Gene Garber came on to fan Dusty Baker for the final out, and the Dodgers never again put a base runner on against Garber or Tug McGraw.

Ironically, Cey had entered the game with a 0-for-31 batting slump, which he broke in the second inning with a single to left.

Lost in the wake of Cey's slam was the big comeback by the Phils, who put together three straight singles off Elias Sosa in the ninth to win it. Mike Schmidt's one-bagger produced the winning run. Sosa gave the Phils an insurance run when he balked home Larry Bowas later in the frame.

"No, I don't think we were down after Cey's homer," Luzinski claimed. "We've been a come-from-behind team all year long and, sure enough, we didn't die at all after the homer. If anything, it picked us up.

"The big difference was our bullpen," continued "The Bull". "Our guys (Garber and McGraw)) did their job while we got the two runs off of Sosa in the ninth."

Luzinski's homer, after shortstop Russell had committed a throwing error on Mike Schmidt's grounder, gave Philly two runs in the first, and two more scores in the top of the fifth, again set up on a Russell error, finished John.

Russell's miscue in the fifth came as Lopes made a nice play on Bowa's grounder and tossed to Russell for an apparent force of Bake McBride at second. However, second base umpire Harry Wendelstedt ruled that Russell had come off the bag to take Lopes' peg, and called McBride safe.

Thus, instead of a runner at first and two outs, John had to face Schmidt and Luzinski with two on and only one out. He got Schmidt to force McBride at third, but walked the dangerous Luzinski.

The veteran Dave Johnson followed with a line single to center, and the Phils had a 4-0 lead and had kayoed T.J.

L.A. picked up a run off Carlton in the last of the fifth on Lopes' RBI single, but the Phillie southpaw got that score right back himself in the top of the sixth with a run-scoring one-bagger of his own.

That made it 5-1 and set the stage for Cey's grand moment. Unfortunately, it didn't last long enough for the Dodgers.

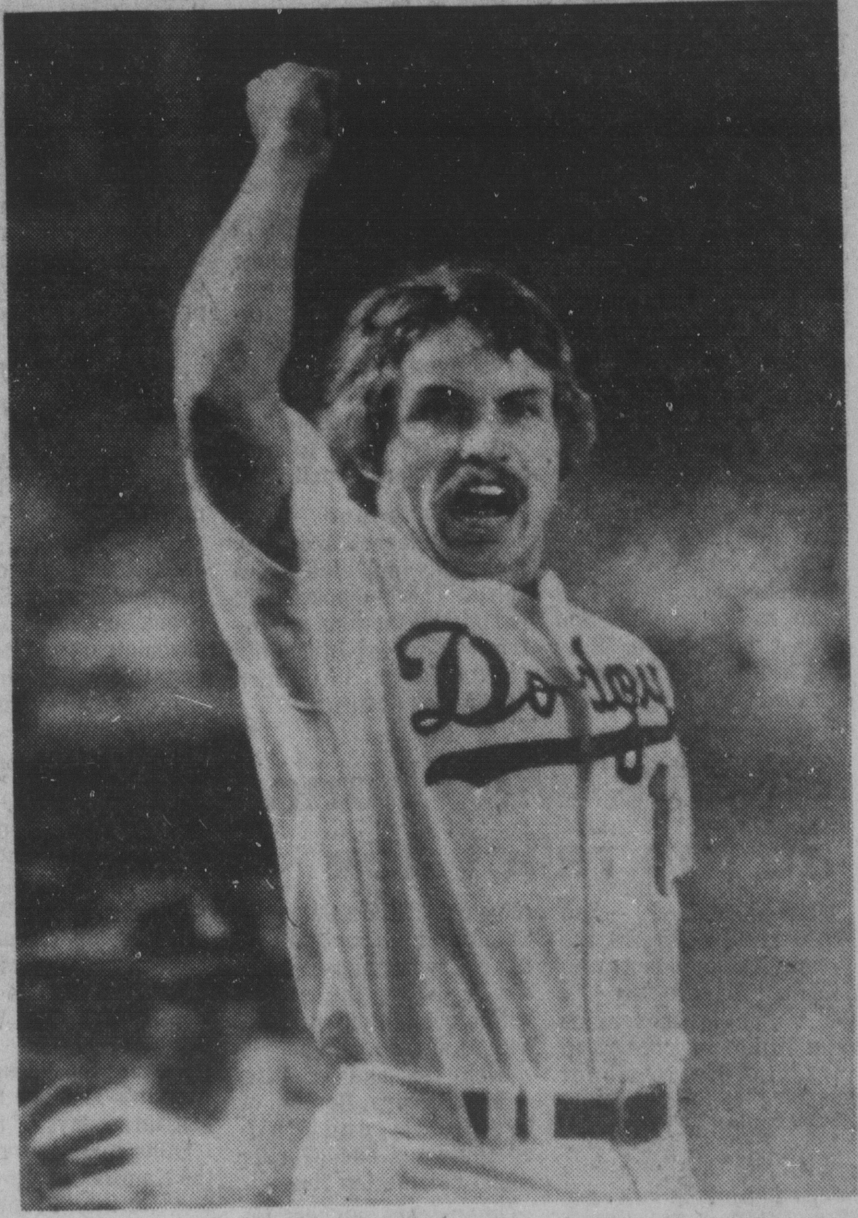
PLAYOFF PICKINGS — Tuesday's crowd was the second largest in Dodger Stadium history. The only larger crowd was one of 55,974. Quipsters in the press box suggested the Dodgers should have brought in seven of the ticket scalpers outside the gates to establish a new record.

The grand-slammer was Cey's third of the year, but the first ever in N.L. Playoff history. Only other slammer in the playoffs was by Minnesota's Cesar Tovar in 1970.

Both managers denied charges that they stayed with their starters too long, but neither John nor Carlton appeared to be in top form. Both had control problems from the outset.

Garvey continued his fine post-season play for L.A. The first baseman, who was a standout in the 1974 playoffs and World Series, was three-for-four Tuesday and Bowa took another hit away from him on a nice play in the hole between short and third.

Oddly enough, Tuesday's loser, Sosa, had hurled 12 straight innings without allowing an earned run going into the playoffs, and had surrendered only one earned run in his last 14 appearances.



CLUTCH HITTER

Dodgers' Ron Cey reacts to the crowd Tuesday night in Los Angeles after hitting grand slam in seventh to tie playoff game with Philadelphia. Phils went on to win, 7-5.

Dodgers now face pressure

For the first time in 1977, we'll find out tonight what the Dodgers are like when they have their back against the wall.

It was all so easy during the regular season as the Dodgers just blew away any opposition in building a commanding lead in April and May which enabled them to coast home in the Western Division.

Rookie manager Tommy Lasorda was able to display his optimistic energy all season long comfortable with a safeproof margin.

Now, the pressure is on after Tuesday's 7-5 loss to the Phillies in the opener of the National League playoffs at Dodger Stadium.

The Dodgers MUST win tonight.

It's as simple as that.

Winning three in a row at Philadelphia would be an almost impossible task. It's going to be tough enough now anyway since L.A. has to win at least two in Philly to advance to the World Series.

For the first time in 1977, the Dodgers face a "must win" situation.

It will be interesting how they react to it.

Pitching advantage

The Dodgers will have the pitching advantage tonight (5:15 p.m.) with Don Sutton going against Jim Lonborg, who had many shaky moments during the season.

And L.A. figures to also have the edge Friday afternoon in Philadelphia when Burt Hooton faces Larry Christenson.

Starting pitching is a big plus for L.A. but the Phils have the advantage in the bullpen and it showed Tuesday night.

The Dodgers had all the momentum when Ron Cey belted his electrifying grand slam homer in the seventh inning to gain a 5-5 tie.

Steve Garvey followed with a single to knock out Phils' starter Steve Carlton, baseball's winningest pitcher this year.

But Gene Garber came out of the bullpen to quiet the Dodger bats, retiring four straight batters to get out of the seventh and through the eighth.

After the Phils went ahead in the top of the ninth, southpaw Tug McGraw retired the Dodgers in order in the bottom half of the inning.

Relief depth

The Phils' stronger and deeper bullpen is a big weapon in a short series like this.

In contrast, Charlie Hough gave up a run in his two innings of work and Elias Sosa got knocked around for three hits and committed a balk to allow the Phils' winning runs in the ninth.

The bullpen is the one flaw in the Dodger camp and something which needs to be improved in the off-season.

Fielding was the other big difference Tuesday.

While two errors by Dodger shortstop Bill Russell led to four unearned runs charged to starter Tommy John, the Phils were perfect in the field as their infield played with the poise and confidence you would expect from a championship team.

One thing the Dodgers should have learned Tuesday is the fact the Phillies probably won't beat themselves.

PLAYOFF HAPPENINGS — As you would expect from having the second largest crowd in Dodger Stadium history, the traffic was something else. As one observer quipped, "Bill Russell must be directing traffic."

Why did Frank Sinatra sit behind the Phils' dugout? Lasorda's close friend was cheering for Dodger Blue however.

A plane flew over Dodger Stadium with the message "Go Phillies Go". It's a wonder the pilot survived.

Former Dodger manager Walter Alston will throw out the first ball tonight and Sue Raney will sing the National Anthem. The Wilson High Band will entertain before the game.

The win was only the Phils' first victory in post-season competition since Oct. 8, 1915 when they won the first game of the World Series against the Red Sox. They were swept by the Yankees in the 1950 World Series and by the Reds in last year's playoffs. It's safe to say they were due.

Ready for second game

Russell dismisses bad day

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Dodgers shortstop Bill Russell summed up his team's feeling after Los Angeles had lost 7-5 to the Philadelphia Phillies in the opening game of the National League Championship series.

"I've played this game long enough to realize that you have some good games and you have some bad games," said Russell, who made two errors that led to four Phillies' runs Tuesday night.

"Now all I'm thinking about is Wednesday's game."

"We had a rough day," said Dodgers first baseman Steve Garvey, who had three singles in the loss. "But I think we will bounce right back. We'll turn it around."

Philadelphia third baseman Mike Schmidt, who singled in the winning run, said he knew exactly how the Dodgers felt.

"I'm sure the Dodgers are sitting in their clubhouse saying this game is over and they'll have to come and get us tomorrow," Schmidt said. "We would say the same thing in that situation.

"They're a good enough team to come back and get us. We've got to take the second game just as seriously as we did the first. They proved they won't give up."

Los Angeles' Ron Cey, whose grand-slam home run tied the game 5-5 in the seventh inning before the Phils went on to win with two ninth-inning tallies, said the Dodgers just had an off day.

"It was very sad the way we played," the third baseman said. "To get into the playoffs and play as fundamentally bad as that ... We just have to get them Wednesday night."

Russell, although the "goat" of the game, did not seem particularly upset, but instead took his mistakes in stride.

"Usually if I make a mistake, we get out of an inning," he remarked. "But not tonight. You saw what happened out there. I messed up."

Russell's first error came in the opening inning, when he threw high to first on Schmidt's grounder that would have been the third out. Greg Luzinski followed with a homer that made it 2-0.

In the fifth inning, Russell took second baseman Dave Lopes' throw to second on a forceout, but missed the bag and the runner was safe. Russell was charged with an error, and Philadelphia added two runs before their half of the inning was over.

The Phillies, while taking nothing for granted, were extremely happy they started the playoffs with a victory.

"We really felt we were going to win the game," said Philadelphia shortstop Larry Bowa. "The guys were jumping up and down and screaming and saying, 'Let's get them,' after they tied it up.

"Even Danny Ozark was jumping up and down, and he rarely shows emotion. That really helped."

Sosa sure it wasn't balk

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Los Angeles relief pitcher Elias Sosa said Tuesday night he broke no rule when he was charged with a balk that allowed a Philadelphia runner to score in the ninth inning of the National League playoff opener.

"There is no question that I didn't balk," the losing Sosa said after the Dodgers' 7-5 defeat. "It was a late call. I had definitely stepped off the rubber towards first base before any call was made. The umpire didn't see it."

The run balked in was the Phils' second run of the ninth inning.

Phillies Manager Danny Ozark said, "There is no question that he balked. He didn't step off the rubber before he made his move."

Lasorda brothers eat crow after Tom loses

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The Lasorda brothers — Eddy, Harry, Morris and "Smokey Joe" — ate crow Tuesday night.

They were so sure brother, Tom, who manages the Los Angeles Dodgers, would win the first game of the National League playoffs against the Philadelphia Phillies, that they promised the mostly pro-Phillies crowd at their Exton tavern free drinks.

The promise fell through, however, when the Phils won 7-5.

"We're Dodger blue," said Eddy Lasorda, 53, who owns and operates the Marchwood Tavern in Chester County with his three brothers.

"We're just down on the first game, we're not down on the series. I still think it's going to be the Dodgers in four. They're going to be there (in the World Series) because of Tommy's determination. He talks to God. He's speaking to the big Dodger in the sky."

Actually, it's surprising the Lasordas are only "Dodger blue" and not Dodger "black and blue."

About 200 Phillies fans showed up at their tavern, which they call the "Eastern home of the Los Angeles Dodgers," to root for the Phils in the best-of-five series.

And the Lasordas — well, blood is thicker than beer — were solidly behind brother Tom's team.

Eddy Lasorda said he more or less expected a big Phillies crowd at the tavern, where the game was televised in color on a seven-foot screen.

"I'll tell you there are so many bars in this area and people come from 20 miles away just to argue back and forth with us. But they're great customers.

"We've got pictures of the Dodgers on the wall and the Phillies fans come in here and say, 'Whoa. We want equal time. We'll fix these Lasordas. We'll bring Phillies banners in here.' But they love us and we love them," he said.

Mom offers no support

KANSAS CITY (AP) — When Paul Splittorff learned he would be Kansas City's starting pitcher for the first game of the American League playoffs against New York, he called his parents with the exciting news.

"He can't start the first game," said his mother, Bettye Splittorff. "His record's not good enough."

"She's a terrific mom," said Splittorff, whose 16-6 record was second best on the Royals' staff. "But she doesn't know a thing about baseball."

Four Lakers still face cuts

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Los Angeles Lakers' Coach Jerry West faces a very difficult decision — who to cut from his roster to the reach the required 11 players before the 1977-78 National Basketball Association season begins.

The Lakers, who open the season at Milwaukee Oct. 18 against the Bucks, currently have 15 players in camp, meaning that four have to go. The roster limit is currently 11 instead of the previous 12.

The team is so deep, at least on paper, that three starters from the team that finished first in the Pacific Division last year and had the most victories in the NBA don't figure to start this season. In fact, forwards Cazzie Russell and Don Ford and guard Don Chaney may not make the club.

A fourth starter last year, guard Lucius Allen, was traded to Kansas City in the offseason.

Like most teams in the league, the Lakers reportedly have two-thirds of their players signed to no-cut contracts. This means players with such agreements are paid even if they don't make the team.

Others on the roster include forward Jamaal Wilkes, signed as a free agent this year after playing out his option with the Golden State Warriors; highly touted rookie forward Kenny Carr, first-year guards Norm Nixon, Brad Davis and Tony Robertson, rookie center James Edwards, veteran swingmen Lou Hudson and Earl Tatum, forwards Kermit Washington and Tom Abernethy and guard Ernie DiGregorio, who signed with Los Angeles last month after four years at Buffalo.

Carr, Nixon and Davis were all picked in the first round of last spring's draft of collegiate players. Robertson has been extremely impressive in preseason drills, as has Edwards.

Of course, there's center Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, who's spot on the roster is as secure as the daily rising of the sun.

"I rank our players every day after practice," said West. "I've changed my mind since the day before yesterday, again."

Recently, West said: "At this point, it's absolutely impossible to cut this squad."

The Lakers play their annual intrasquad scrimmage at their Loyola-Marymount training camp in Los Angeles tonight. West said he hopes to make at least one personnel move this week.

Chino's offensive line does job

By MIKE BROSSART
PB Staff Writer

When Chino High's football team beat Garey, 20-12, last week, it was the first time in 13 games that the Vikings had surrendered more than 14 points.

The Cowboys rushed for over 280 yards against the Vikings, a team that prides itself on its defense.

Running back Mike Bertschinger went over 200 yards for the second time in three games, but of course in football a performance like that is never really an individual accomplishment.

Bertschinger runs behind a huge offensive line that is rapidly building a reputation as the best in the San Antonio League.

Garey's Lawson Bush made that assessment after Friday's game, and Ganesha's Garry Norvell concurs.

"They have the most efficient offensive line I've seen yet this year," he said after viewing films of Chino, the Giants' opponent Friday night at Cal Poly. "They carry out their blocking assignments very well."

Cowboy coach Jim Rawls agrees that his line is the best around — and there can be no doubt that it's the largest in the SAL.

Chino's six-man offensive line (including 215-pound tight end Keith Smith) averages 206 pounds per man. That's a pound per player heavier than Ganesha's defensive line, among the largest in the league.

Chino guard Sam Beebe weighs 225 pounds, tackles Gary Niekirk and Ben Kramer weigh 210 and 200, respectively, center Hector Martinez goes 205 and guard Lyle Pelletier is the "little guy" — at 180 pounds.

"They've all grown quite a bit since last year." said Rawls, noting that Beebe was the only one to tip the scales at 200 pounds during the 1976 season. But they may have quite a bit of growing left to do, since four of the five down linemen on offense are juniors.

Niekirk is the only senior among them, and Beebe is the only one who started at the varsity level last year. The other three — Martinez, Kramer and Pelletier — all came from Chino's 1976 sophomore team, which won the SAL title.

BACK — I.M. Hipp, running back, Nebraska, carried 28 times and set a school rushing record of 254 yards in the Cornhuskers' 31-13 victory over Indiana, shattering the mark of 211 set last year by Richard Berns. "Certainly Isaiah had a great day," said Coach Tom Osborne. Hipp did not score any touchdowns but ran for a two-point conversion.

LINEMAN — Robert Dugas, offensive tackle, Louisiana State, graded out at 92 per cent as LSU rushed for 385 yards in a 36-14 rout of Florida. According to Coach Charlie McClendon, Dugas "never missed a block at the point of attack and we ran in his direction about 75 per cent of the time. When you take a guy with his size (6-4, 261) and intelligence (3.6 pre-med student), the ingredients are there for an outstanding offensive lineman."

AVOIDING FEAR OR ANGER AFTER A BAD MISHIT OR MISJUDGEMENT IS MAYBE GOLF'S SINGLE GREATEST CHALLENGE.
ONE TECHNIQUE I'VE FOUND SUCCESSFUL IS TO FORCE THE ERROR OUT OF MIND BY MAKING MYSELF IMMEDIATELY FOCUS VERY HARD ON THE NEXT SHOT IT REQUIRES ME TO PLAY.
IF A SWING FLAW RATHER THAN A JUDGEMENT CALL WAS THE PROBLEM, I DO MY BEST TO THINK POSITIVELY IN SEEKING A SOLUTION. FOR INSTANCE, IF TOO MUCH TENSION IN THE RIGHT ARM WOULD SEEM TO HAVE CAUSED THE MISHIT, I'LL TRY TO OFFSET IT WITH FIRMER LEFT-ARM OR LEFT-SIDE CONTROL ON THE UPCOMING SHOTS.
IN OTHER WORDS, I LIKE TO FOCUS ON REMEDIES, NOT ON FAULTS.

Owner blasts Martin

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent

Billy Martin said he was only half-kidding, but it wasn't funny to his boss, George Steinbrenner.

"What's Billy doing coming up with something like this at this time?" the owner of the New York Yankees fumed after reading the morning paper headlines that his manager planned to demand a new contract if his team should win the American League baseball playoffs and the World Series.

"We're facing a hell of a fight with Kansas City. This is a tough team we're going against. Whitey Herzog has done an outstanding job putting this club together. It's a smooth unit without many weaknesses. We'll have to bust our necks getting through this series.

"That's what Billy ought to be concentrating on. This kind of talk at this stage is absolutely ridiculous. If he thinks he is going to intimidate me or intimidate Gabe Paul (Yankees' president) he's got another think coming."

Brash Billy has done it again.

Just when it appeared the Yankees had weathered their intramural problems—inflated egos, sniping and clubhouse bickering—the feisty little skipper with the self-destruct complex throws another monkey wrench into the big, pinstriped machine.

Now there are serious doubts that Martin can survive his $100,000 per year post with the freeest spending franchise in the sport even if he manages to take the Yankees all the way.

He continues to dig his own managerial grave. He seems bent on maintaining an adversary relationship with management just as he did with Minnesota, Detroit and Texas after skillfully turning losers into winners at all three places.

At four specific junctures during the regular season, he was on the verge of getting the Steinbrenner axe. Each time he survived, largely through intervention of influential friends at a higher level and a player with whom he had feuded, Reggie Jackson.

Steinbrenner's patience reportedly is wearing thin. But the Yankees' boss insists that no decision on Martin will be made until the end of the playoffs, or World Series, then the final judgment will be left to Gabe Paul.

Martin is finishing the first year of a three-year contract. It was while discussing this contract at a leisurely talk session in his office that he dropped the current bombshell.

"If we win everything," Martin said, "I think it's a must for George to come up with another contract. If he doesn't, I would have to seriously think about asking permission to talk to other clubs."

If Martin was partially kidding, as he said later, the jest did not penetrate his listeners. The New York papers greeted the comment with such an arresting headline as: "Martin Will Demand New Pact If Yanks Win."

Steinbrenner reacted as if he had a gun pressed against his temple. Billy said he didn't mean for it to sound so strong.

"I just noted that Don Zimmer (Boston) and Earl Weaver (Baltimore) had gotten new contracts and suggested I deserved one, too, if we won," Billy said.

Tension still crackles in the Yankees' clubhouse despite outward appearances of calm. The impression is that this calm is preserved only by the team's winning surge and might snap the moment it ends. It continues to be a team in inner turmoil.

Egos abound. Personality clashes and petty jealousies dull the team spirit. The clubhouse still is split by factions arising from Reggie Jackson's feuds with Thurman Munson and Martin.

Fingers wins honor as top relief ace

NEW YORK (AP) — San Diego's Rollie Fingers, the Upland High product, who compiled the most saves in the major leagues since John Hiller's record 38 in 1973, is the National League's top reliever in competition for 1977.

With an 8-9 win-loss record and 35 saves, Fingers tallied 77 points in this, the second year of the competition initiated in 1976 to reward baseball's top bullpen pitchers. The top relievers in each league and one each team are awarded on the basis of a point system which credits two points for each win and each save and subtracts one point for each loss.

The 31-year-old Fingers, who finished second in the American League race while with Oakland last season, out-distanced runner-up Bruce Sutter of Chicago by four points. Sutter, who missed five weeks during the season with a back injury, was 7-3 with 31 saves for 73 points.

Rich Gossage of Pittsburgh, Pedro Borbon of Cincinnati and Philadelphia's Gene Garber round out the top five.

Other team winners include Rick Camp of Atlanta, Ken Forsch of Houston, Charlie Hough of Los Angeles, Don Stanhouse of Montreal, Skip Lockwood of New York, Al Hrabowsky of St. Louis and Gary Lavelle of San Francisco.

As the NL's No. 1 reliever, Fingers was presented a sterling silver fireman's cap prior to Tuesday's league championship game in Los Angeles.

The competition is sponsored by Rolaids.

Sports briefs

McCovey gets comeback award

SAN FRANCISCO — First baseman Willie McCovey, released by two teams a year ago, has been named winner of the National League Comeback of the Year award.

The 39-year-old McCovey, a 19-year veteran, hit .280, with 28 home runs and drove in 86 runs for the San Francisco Giants, leading the team in home runs and RBI.

McCovey set a new National League grand slam record, hitting two for a career total of 18, moved into a tie for 12th on the all-time home run list with 493 and went over the 2,000 career hit mark.

Houston on probation

KANSAS CITY — The National Collegiate Athletic Association's Committee on Infractions placed the University of Houston on a one-year probation in football, banning the Cougars from post-season games this season and from television next year.

The NCAA committee said it found violations in recruiting inducements, excessive recruiting contacts and improper transportation.

The committee's statement said the violations "resulted in the University of Houston enjoying a distinct competitive advantage in recruitment of a young man considered by many observers to be one of the top football prospects in the country."

Jackson sued for $2 million

NEW YORK (AP) — An attorney for a 13-year-old boy who allegedly was kicked by Reggie Jackson, announced Tuesday that the star outfielder of the New York Yankees will be served with court papers in connection with a $2 million law suit.

Nicholas Arena, attorney for Chris Howe, who claimed Jackson kicked him following the July 19 baseball All-Star Game at Yankee Stadium, said the suit would be filed in Bronx Supreme Court. Arena said the youngster required psychiatric treatment and suffered permanent injury as a result of the incident.

Jackson has denied kicking Howe.

Managers tab Weaver

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Baltimore Orioles manager Earl Weaver has been named Major League Manager of the Year in a poll conducted by The Sporting News.

The St. Louis-based publication said that other managers picked Weaver for doing the best job under the most trying circumstances. Because of the new free-agency rule in baseball, Weaver lost several starting players during the offseason, including outfielder Reggie Jackson, pitcher Wayne Garland and second baseman Bobby Grich.

Despite those losses, the Orioles were in the American League's Eastern Division championship race until the last three days of the season.

Other managers receiving votes were Whitey Herzog of the Kansas City Royals, Bob Lemon of the Chicago White Sox, Herman Franks of the Chicago Cubs, Tom Lasorda of the Los Angeles Dodgers, Billy Martin of the New York Yankees and Gene Mauch of the Minnesota Twins.

Evert advances

ATLANTA — Top-seed Chris Evert ousted Brigitte Cuypers of South Africa 6-1, 6-1 in the first round of the $75,000 Women's Tennis Classic.

In other first round matches No. 8 seed Billie Jean King struggled past 17-year-old Zenda Liess of Daytona Beach, Fla., 7-5, 6-4 and third-seeded Virginia Wade of Great Britian, last year's tournament champion, easily beat Laura DuPont of Charlotte, N.C., 6-2, 6-0.

Okker edges Cox

AMSTERDAM — Tom Okker of The Netherlands defeated Mark Cox of Great Britain 6-7, 6-4, 7-6 to advance to the semifinals in a $100,000 tennis tournament.

Cowboys controlling ball on the ground

Niekirk, who carries his 210 pounds on a 6-foot-3 frame, has been named offensive lineman of the week by the Chino coaches after all three games this year.

The Cowboys were able to play the way Rawls wants them to against Garey — when they rushed for 286 yards and passed for 84.

"That's the way we want to do it," said Rawls. "We want to control the game on the ground." Chino did just that, with 57 running plays.

"Ganesha has a good front five (on defense)," Rawls said. "They've managed to control the ball pretty well so far — and all the teams they've played have been running teams."

Thursday's games

Upland vs. Garey at Bonita High, 7:30 p.m.

Claremont vs. Pomona at MSAC, 7:30 p.m.

Friday's games

Chino vs. Ganesha at Cal Poly, 7:30 p.m.

Montclair at Damien, 7:30 p.m.

Norvell agrees that his defensive line — led by 232-pound tackle J.W. Melton — has performed well, but is concerned about his offensive linemen.

"We've just got to get some enthusiasm in our offensive line," he said. "That's been lacking so far. But Arnold Neri, a 5-6, 160 pounder, started for us at guard against Claremont and did a good job, and (center) Charles Lundstrum has played well."

Norvell is also concerned about one Cowboy defender in particular — Alton Rivera.

"They've got one great linebacker," Norvell said. "He covers a lot of the field. He's tough against the run and tough against the pass."

Rawls hopes that fumble problems will continue to plague the Giants. "We hit pretty hard," he said, "and we're hoping they'll cough it up a couple of times."

"The funny thing about our fumbles," said Norvell, "is that they're not coming at the exchange, like you'd expect with a Veer offense. We're fumbling the ball downfield at the end of runs."

Chino's Bertschinger hasn't had any problems holding onto the ball, but he can't seem to keep his contacts in his eyes. He lost four contacts against Garey after dropping one against Burroughs and two against Santa Ana Valley.

"He's going to bring six pairs to the game from now on," said Rawls. "We couldn't pitch out to him at the end of the game last week because he couldn't see."

Friday night's game between the Cowboys and Giants will be played at Cal Poly.

"I think the winner of this game might turn out to be the league champion," Rawls said. "At least that's the way we're looking at it."

Montclair will be at Damien Friday, but the other two SAL contests will be played Thursday night, when Upland will meet Garey at Bonita High and Pomona will host Claremont at Mt. San Antonio College.

Strangely, the four teams scheduled to play Thursday all lost their league openers last week while the four teams that will play Friday were all victorious.

Spinkses to box on TV

LAS VEGAS (AP) — Olympic gold medal winners Leon and Michael Spinks of St. Louis will put their unbeaten records on the line in a nationally-televised boxing card from the Aladdin Hotel on Oct. 22, it was announced Monday.

The Spinks brothers will be fighting in featured eight-round preliminaries before the day's main event, which will feature 10th-ranked heavyweight contender Bernardo Mercado. The bouts will be televised live by CBS.

Leon, the heavyweight Spinks who is 5-0, will fight Scott LeDoux of Minneapolis, while young brother, Michael, a light-heavy with an identical record, will face either Gary Summerhayes of Canada or New Jersey's Christy Elliott.

The Spinks brothers won gold medals in the 1976 Olympics in Montreal.

Michael Spinks comes off a swift knockout over Ray Elson. A recent injury forced Leon to pull out of a scheduled fight with ninth-ranked Alfio Righetti of Italy.

The hard punching Mercado, a 24-year-old Colombian, has kayoed 16 opponents en route to an 18-0 record. He will go against Greg Johnson of New York in a 10-rounder.

Johnson, 7-5, was decisioned in his most recent outing. He lost on points to unbeaten Leroy Jones here on Sept. 14.

Mercado's last fight ended at 1:17 of the first round of a scheduled six-rounder when he floored Roger Russell for the count last Thursday in one of the preliminaries for the Muhammad Ali-Earnie Shavers heavyweight title bout at Madison Square Garden.

In another bout on the Oct. 22 card, Olympian "Big John" Tate, another unbeaten pro, will face Lou Esa, 15-2-1, of Miami Beach, in a six-rounder.

MSAC gets 12-8 victory

Sophomore Dave Earwood, a graduate of Chaffey High, scored seven goals Tuesday to lead Mt. San Antonio College to a 12-8 win over Santa Ana in the South Coast Conference opener in water polo.

Richard Carlton scored three goals and Dave Norman and Rudy Madrid one apiece as the Mounties evened their season record at 4-4.

MSAC has a key game Friday when Grossmont comes in.

Knox says Namath can run

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Los Angeles Rams' Coach Chuck Knox says it doesn't bother him if 34-year-old quarterback Joe Namath runs with the football — as long as it's the last option available.

"You do whatever you have to do to win," Knox said Tuesday at his weekly media breakfast, referring to Namath's seven-yard scramble against the San Francisco 49ers.

Namath, who has undergone five knee operations, kept a scoring drive alive with his run.

"We came closer to playing the kind of football we have to play," Knox said in reference to the 34-14 victory over the 49ers. "We stayed out of sack situations, third and nine, third and 10. The best way to avoid those sack situations is to run the football and we did that."

A year ago in the Coliseum, the 49ers threw Rams' quarterbacks for losses 10 times in a 16-0 victory. On Sunday, Namath was sacked only twice as the Rams raised their NFL record to 2-1. The 49ers dropped to 0-3.

Knox also said turnovers were playing an important part in the Rams' improved play.

"We're on the plus side of turnovers," Knox said. "After the first game, we had three more turnovers than the opposition and now we have one less. If you don't turn the ball over, you're always going to be in the game and have a chance to win. We forced two turnovers against the 49ers and we didn't turn the ball over once."

Bob Brudzinski, the Rams' starting left linebacker, has two interceptions in his starts against Philadelphia and San Francisco, and Knox thinks the rookie from Ohio State is improving.

"He's making a lot of progress," Knox said. "He should get better with experience, he's still adjusting to our system. He can run, he's got good size and he gives us a chance to come up with some big plays."

With wide receiver Ron Jessie out for the season with torn ligaments in his right knee, Knox said his spot will be filled by Dwight Scales and rookie Billy Waddy.

The Rams return to action next Monday night at Chicago against the Bears, who are 1-2, in a nationally televised game.

"Walter Payton is just fantastic," said Knox, referring to the Bears' fine running back. "He won't always go to the hole; if he sees daylight somewhere he's off.

Last year against the Rams Payton carried 27 times for 145 yards. He currently leads the National Football Conference in scoring with 30 points and rushing with 336 yards.

Nastase banned from Davis Cup

LONDON (AP) — Ilie Nastase, the controversial Romanian tennis star, was banned from the 1978 Davis Cup today because of his court behavior.

The decision was announced by the Davis Cup committee in London, following a report by Spanish referee Jaime Bartroli on Nastase's antics during the Romania-Britain match in Bucharest last June.

Soccer tryouts set in D.B.

Tryouts for the Diamond Bar-Walnut Soccer Club's Jaguars Pacific Soccer League Division 2 team will be held Friday at Chapparal Junior High in Diamond Bar.

The team is for boys ages 14 and 15 who will not be 16 prior to Jan. 1, 1978.

Any boys interested in joining the team should attend the tryouts at Chapparal School at 5:30 p.m. Friday afternoon or phone coach Garland Wilson at 595-8130.

Kings tie Canucks

VICTORIA, British Columbia (AP) — Don Kozak scored at 15:39 of the third period to give the Los Angeles Kings a 2-2 tie with the Vancouver Canucks Tuesday night in a National Hockey League exhibition game played before 4,752 fans.

Vic Venasky won a draw in the Canuck zone and slipped the puck to Kozak, who beat goalkeeper Cesare Maniago high to the glove side.

Dave Hutchison scored the 40 minutes. Los Angeles has three wins and two ties in pre-season play while Vancouver has a 1-4-2 record.

The Canucks scored their goals in a 17-second burst in the first period. Ron Sedlbauer completed a fine three-way passing play with Don Lever and Dennis Ververgaert on a powerplay and Lever got a shot past goalkeeper Gary Simmons, who misjudged the bounce of the puck.

Rogatien Vachon played the final 30 minutes for Los Angeles and made 18 of the 32 saves in his team's goal. Maniago blocked 30 for the Canucks.

The Kings drew four of six minor penalties in the cleanly-played game.

The teams meet again Wednesday night in Vancouver.

World Dragster Finals at OMS

Between the Dodgers' bid for a World Series berth and the repetitive hype about some independent production billed as "The Last Drag Race," one would almost have to psychic to know that Ontario Motor Speedway is even open for business this weekend.

After all, it IS football season, it IS the climactic end of the baseball season and it IS the start of training camps for the giants of professional basketball. And, true, Los Angeles love its Rams, Dodgers, Lakers, Bruins and Trojans.

But if you're not into stick-and-ball sports that much or if you're very much into auto racing, it might be worth mentioning that the sport's ultimate performance vent — the Winston World Drag Racing Finals — is scheduled Friday through Sunday at OMS.

Auto racing

The 13th annual Finals, concluding event in a $4 million National Hot Rod Association - produced series that began back in February, does not lay claim to the title "ultimate performance event" without some pretty solid credentials.

It's the event that two years ago produced auto racing's first record 250 mile an hour speed, an accomplishment even more impressive when one considers that the car involved — a hybrid, 2,000 horsepower dragster driven by Don Garlits of Seffner, Fla. — attended that speed (150.69 mph) in only a quarter mile and from a dead stop.

The G-force involved in that kind of acceleration — zero to 60 in one second — should qualify Garlits and some of the sport's other stars for a spot in the space program.

However, speed is only one measure of drag racing performance — and not the most important. To the drag racer, the critical measure is elapsed time (ET) — how long it takes to accelerate from a standing start through a quarter mile.

Garlits set the all-time standard during the 1975 World Finals when he covered the distance in 5.63 seconds, something a lot of aerospace engineers still claim is impossible in a piston-driven car.

Breaking 6.00 seconds has always been the drag racing equivalent of the four-minute mile and the Finals, run on what is generally conceded to be drag racing's fastest track, has always produced a record number of "fives."

It is interesting to note that the '75 Finals was the only event in history in which an entire 16-car field qualified at less than 6.00 seconds.

To put those figures in perspective, only 19 cars have broken six seconds in eight previous NHRA national events contested this year. At Indianapolis, the Mecca of modern automobile racing, only nine of the 32 drivers qualified for drag racing's oldest and largest event — the Labor Day U.S. Nationals — managed to dip into the fives.

Still, the World Finals is run each year at a time when everything from football to arm wrestling is vying for a share of the spotlight, the result being what NHRA officials have termed "a frustrating lack of attention."

The race does offer a posted cash and contingency awards purse of $249,000, has attracted 300 entrants from 32 states and Canada and will end the 1977 championship season for racers in eight different categories of competition.

Moreover, it features a strong female contingent led by Shirley Muldowney, the defending Top Fuel champion who has posted a quarter mile speed of 253.52 miles per hour. Shirley and her male rivals will qualify all day Friday and Saturday with single elimination finals beginning at noon on Sunday.

Southland racing

ONTARIO — the 13th annual NHRA Winston World Finals of drag racing will be held Friday, Saturday and Sunday at OMS. Qualifying will be held from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Friday and Saturday with final eliminations set for Sunday at noon.

CORONA — Super Stocks, street stocks, figure 8's and powder puff racing is slated Saturday at Corona Raceway. First event in the 14-car program starts at 7:30 p.m.

GARDENA — A Camel Pro Series national doubleheader is set for Ascot Park Friday and Saturday nights. A 25-lap TT steeplechase, rescheduled from Peoria, Ill., is slated Friday night at 8 p.m.

A 20-lap national half-mile race is on tap Saturday night at 8 p.m. Posted prize money for the two nights comes close to $40,000.

SAUGUS — More than 80 cars are entered in the third annual Saugus 330 Saturday at Saugus Speedway. The first race is 110-lap consolation race for cars that do not make the main event.

The main event consists of two 110-lap "rounds" with a 30-minute pit stop halfway through. The first race begins at 7 p.m.

Nicki Lauda to pull out?

TORONTO (AP) — World driving champion Nicki Lauda is threatening to withdraw from Sunday's Canadian Grand Prix at Mosport.

Latest dispute between Lauda, who will leave the Ferrari racing team for Alfa-Brabham next year, and Ferrari apparently arose because the Italian firm fired chief mechanic Ermanno Cuoghi last week just prior to the U.S. Grand Prix.

"Without Ermanno Cuoghi, the crew that will be here will function at only one-quarter of what it should," said Lauda.

Lauda said he will end his four-year association with Ferrari as early as Saturday if he does not feel his car is getting the mechanical work necessary to make it competitive.

Cuoghi was fired when it was learned he was planning to join Lauda at Alfa-Brabham next season.

WINNINGEST — Granada Hills' Don Prudhomme, winningest driver in drag racing, heads the Funny Car lineup in the 13th annual NHRA World Final Drag Races at Ontario Motor Speedway this weekend.

Cale Yarborough edging closer to NASCAR title

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Cale Yarborough is edging closer to his second consecutive Grand National stock car racing championship as time runs out on his challengers.

Yarborough finished second in the Wilkes 400 race at North Wilkesboro, N.C., Sunday while his closest points-race pursuer, Richard Petty, wrecked and got 24th place.

This put Yarborough 293 points ahead of six-time champion Petty with four races left this year. Yarborough has 4,330 and Petty 4,037.

Benny Parsons, who finished fifth at North Wilkesboro, remained third in the point standings at 3,942 and moved within $6,927 of the elite class of $1 million career winners in National Association for Stock Car Auto Racing competition.

Darrell Waltrip, whose victory in the Wilkes race was his fifth of the year, remained fourth in total points with 3,907.

Tnen come Buddy Baker 3,414; Richard Brooks 3,230; Richard Childress 3,005; James Hylton 3,003; Cecil Gordon 2,978, and Bobby Allison 2,943.

The top 10 money winners for the year to date are Yarborough $350,101; Petty $281,925; Parsons $225,371; Waltrip $215,843; Baker $157,701; David Pearson $141,726; Brooks $105,005; Donnie Allison $87,220; Neil Bonnett $77,630 and Hylton $74,655.

The drivers will race Sunday in the National 500 at Charlotte.

No pressure on Robinson

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Coach John Robinson of the University of Southern California says his team's No. 1 ranking in the country "doesn't put any pressure on us because we know it doesn't mean anything now.

"We were voted No. 1 with no sense of clarity of what's going on," Robinson told members of the media Tuesday. "It won't be remembered who was No. 1 now, unlike in January. It's nice, though.

"One of the problems of a young team like ours is you can be great one week and lousy the next," continued Robinson. "The problem is, can we get better? We could not win a bowl game with our team at this point, just like I think no team in the nation is at its peak now. You play the whole season to be good by the end."

Robinson acknowledged that the Trojans were very good last Friday in their 41-7 victory over Washington State.

"It was our best offensive performance of the year," said Robinson. "We did not turn over the ball. Our offensive line played very well. Washington State found it difficult to focus on anything."

Robinson also said he was pleased with his team's defensive play against the Cougars.

"Our biggest attribute is we don't make a lot of errors. We appear to be very efficient."

The Trojans, who are 4-0, face Alabama Saturday in a nationally-televised contest. The Crimson Tide is 3-1 and tied for seventh nationally with Arkansas.

Concerning the Alabama wishbone formation, Robinson said, "it's as opposite a type of attack as there is from what we faced last week from Washington State.

"It's a total new preparation for us," added Robinson. "Alabama has as imaginative an offense as you can have. They try to come up with some new wrinkles each week that their opponent has not seen.

"We must make constant adjustment to their changes on offense and that can cause breakdowns. You tend to want to play them straight up for fear you may be caught in the wrong defense where they can make a big gain."

Robinson said the Alabama offensive line is the best he's seen this year, and that the defense has improved since the Nebraska game. Nebraska handed Alabama its only loss thus far in 1977, 31-24 on Sept. 17.

"They have the ability to control the ball with Johnny Davis running at fullback and the offensive line," said Robinson. "And (wide receiver) Ozzie Newsome is a great player. He is very physical for a receiver, kind of like Otis Taylor was."

Robinson referred to the former Kansas City Chiefs' standout.

Starting inside linebacker Clay Matthews, who has missed the last three games with a sprained ankle, will see some action Saturday, Robinson said. Defensive tackle Vinny Van Dyke, who has also missed the last three games, may also see action against Alabama.

Starting rover Willie Crawford, who missed the Washington State game with a sprained ankle, is listed as a starter for Saturday's game.

Kickers set for twinbill

The Diamond Bar Kickers have two games coming up this weekend.

The Kickers travel to North Torrance Saturday to play the Manhattan Beach Hurricanes at 3 p.m. and then are home Sunday to host the Torrance United Soccer Club at Noon.

In their last outing, the Kickers (2-0-1) routed the Palos Verdes Panthers, 9-2.

Paul Caligiuri scored three goals to spark the Kickers. Tony DelaRambelje scored two and Jeff Ratajczak, Rusty Lansford, Mike Brocki and Rocky Crisp had one each.

'Pack wins in volleyball

Claremont High remained undefeated in girls' volleyball Tuesday.

The Wolfpack defeated Ganesha, at Ganesha, 15-10, 15-10, in varsity to go 3-0 in San Antonio League competition and 8-2 overall.

Upland improved its record to 2-1 at Pomona. The Highlanders came back from a 15-12 loss to win, 15-13, 15-13.

Claremont has a nonleague game at La Quinta Friday. Upland hosts Ganesha Thursday while Pomona (0-3) takes on Montclair at Pomona.

Hannah, Gray return to Patriots' camp

FOXBORO, Mass. (AP) — The New England Patriots' two All-Pro offensive linemen have called off their bitter 24-day strike against the team, but none too eagerly.

Guard John Hannah and tackle Leon Gray marched separately and solemnly into the Patriots' offices Tuesday, meeting a 5 p.m. deadline set by the National Football League for returning or "retiring."

The players will take up their separate contract squabbles with team owner William H. Sullivan Jr. after the season.

"I was very, very, very close to give up football," Hannah said at a hastily arranged news conference.

"I was three minutes away possibly from not playing football," said Gray.

The two walked out Sept. 11 before the final exhibition game. The Patriots, expected to be a powerhouse this season, have stumbled to a 1-2 record, losing two consecutive games by 30-27 scores.

A grim General Manager-Coach Chuck Fairbanks said, "I am pleased they are coming back, for their welfare and for the welfare of the ball club. At the end of the season we will negotiate in good faith."

Hannah said he expects "satisfactory (contract) extensions ... can be worked out." Gray issued an apology to Pats fans for "bad feelings" created by the walkout, and he urged them to support the team.

Sullivan was absent Tuesday, but his effervescent son Chuck, a Patriots lawyer, said he was "delighted" with the return of Hannah and Gray.

Gray is under contract through 1979, and Hannah through 1980.

The two claim former assistant General Manager Peter Hadhazy promised new contracts if they made All-Pro, but Sullivan denied it.

The walkout was said to have been staged by the players' agent, Los Angeles attorney Howard Slusher. He also was absent Tuesday, but Hannah and Gray said Slusher told them to make their own decisions.

Last week, the NFL's committee of owners and players representatives ruled that Hannah and Gray should honor their contracts. But the players were undecided until hours— even minutes— before the deadline.

"I didn't make up my mind until late (Monday) night," said Hannah. Then, he nearly was unable to get a flight from Alabama to Boston.

Hannah arrived at the Patriots' offices at 4:27 p.m., carrying a green duffle bag and accompanied by a friend. Gray actually missed the 5 p.m. deadline, arriving alone at 5:04 p.m.

Gray apparently was unsure of his future until he spoke with Fairbanks. He said he had maintained a day-long vigil, "I'm just going in to see what the story is."

The walkout had been debated within the team for weeks, but none of the other players were present Tuesday, because no practice was scheduled.

Hannah was asked if the walkout would have a lasting effect on the team. "I'll wait and see," he said.

Chino A.Y.S.O. begins play at three locations

The 1977-78 Chino A.Y.S.O. soccer season gets underway Saturday at 9 a.m. at three different locations.

Fifth Division boys (ages 9 and 10) play on two fields at Chino High.

Boys Division three (13-14) and four (11-12) and Girls Division two (13, 14 and 15) will play on two fields at Magnolia Junior High.

Don Lugo High will host Boys Division six (7-8) and Girls Divisions three (10, 11 and 12 years) and four 7-8 years) on three fields.

Cincy signs Geronimo

CINCINNATI (AP) — Cincinnati Reds outfielder Cesar Geronimo has signed a four-year contract that extends through the 1981 season.

The 29-year-old Geronimo has won a Gold Glove, emblematic of fielding excellence, for each of the last three years.

He was charged with only two errors in 147 games this season and batted .265.

FOOTNOTES

Composite tables include trades from eight markets identified by last price indicators for markets other than NYSE as: a-Amex; b-Boston; c-Cincinnati; g-Nasd; k-Instinet block trading system used by institutions; p-Pacific; u-Mid west; x-Philadelphia.

DIVIDENDS: Annual rate unless otherwise identified: (a) plus extra; (b) paid so far in 1977, no regular rate; (c) payment on accumulated dividends; (d) paid in 1976; (e) cash plus stock paid in 1976; (f) cash plus stock paid in 1977; (g) annual rate plus stock dividend; (h) paid in 1977—latest dividend omitted; (i) per cent in stock paid in 1976; (j) per cent in stock paid in 1977—latest dividend omitted; (k) per cent in stock paid in 1977; (q) in bankruptcy-receivership or reorganization; (s) capital distribution; (wi) when issued; (wt) warrants; (x) ex-dividend.

SALES: In hundreds (00) omitted except for those designated (z) which are traded in 10 share lots and carried in full.

P-E ratio: The price of a stock as a multiple of pershare earnings—derived by dividing the latest 12-month earnings figure into last sale price.

Airlines good inflation fighters

LOS ANGELES (BW) — The record shows that the airlines are pretty good inflation fighters, William T. Seawell, chairman and chief executive officer of Pan American World Airways, said.

Speaking before the Town Hall of California, Seawell said, "In March you will be able to fly Pan Am nonstop from Los Angeles to London and back again in a $40 million airplane for as little as $500.

"That is about the tab for dinner for eight at one of the better restaurants, or less than the price of an expensive television set, or, for that matter, less than you would pay for an automatic electric crepe maker for home use."

The airline industry, he said, has been subject to the same inflationary pressure that has plagued all industry. But by heavy investment in efficient equipment and facilities, Seawell said, the airlines have been able to resist those pressures better than the rest of the economy.

Market activity

NEW YORK (UPI) — The stock market, disturbed by a hike in the prime lending rate, headed lower Wednesday, although bluechip issues trimmed earlier losses. Trading was fairly active.

The Dow Jones industrial average, down nearly five points at the outset, was off 2.95 points to 839.05 shortly before noon EDT. The closely watched average plunged 9.96 points Tuesday, after having risen 17.24 the previous three sessions.

Analysts said the market was being helped somewhat by short covering, the replacing of borrowed shares sold earlier.

Early selling was a carryover from Tuesday's rout that was triggered by the decision of Wells Fargo, the nation's 11th largest bank, to boost its prime rate a quarter point to 7½ per cent. The prevailing rate is 7¼ per cent. Other banks are expected to follow suit soon.

The rise, which put the prime at its highest rate since November, 1975, could hinder business by making money tougher to obtain. The prime hike clouded a brightening economic picture shown in a rise in the government's leading economic indicators and durable goods orders.

Against this background, declines outnumbered advances, 608 to 379, among the 1,548 issues crossing the tape. The 561 unchanged issues reflected considerable investor uncertainty about the course of the market and the economy.

New York Stock Exchange turnover at the two-hour mark amounted to about 8,000,000 shares, compared with 9,510,000 traded during the comparable period Tuesday.

Sony Corp. was the most active NYSE issue, up ⅛ to 8 following two block trades of 100,000 shares each at 8. Sony signed a contract to provide RCA with certain technology and equipment.

International Telephone & Telegraph was the second most active issue, off ¼ to 31⅝ and ITT preferred N stock was third, off ¼ to 39⅜.

Centex was ahead ¾. The company said the Murchison family of Dallas, which owns 50.4 per cent of the firm, has offered to swap 3.25 million shares for $52 million Centex 6 per cent subordinated debentures.

Singer Co. was off 1½ in active trading even though the company said Tuesday it expected to report strong third-quarter and overall 1977 earnings.

Prices were lower in moderate trading of American Stock Exchange issues.

V-8 engine said on way out

BEVERLY HILLS (BW) — The V-8 engine will soon be a thing of the past, predicts J.G. Barrier, president of Ajax Rent A Car, America's largest and fastest-growing independent car rental system.

"General Motors already has made six-cylinder engines standard on most of its cars and Ford has made eight-cylinder engines optional rather than standard in most of its vehicles as well. American Motors and most other automakers already have begun to favor smaller engines."

Carter fails on report card

NEW YORK (AP) — Tired of mere lip service, an association of independent business people last year decided to keep a report card on the promises by the two major presidential candidates.

The group, the National Small Business Association, persistently extracted from each candidate his views on small-business issues, such as correcting what was felt to be unequal treatment versus big business.

The first report card, on Jimmy Carter of course, is in, and it appears the President didn't pass. "No substantial progress" was marked beside 7 of 11 issues measured.

The 50,000-member organization concedes the President has three years in which to pull his marks up to a graduation level, but they want him to know they are watching him — and Congress too.

Feeling that the very largest corporations, unions and big government have grown at the expense of the independent sector, the association sought from Carter last October a promise that the growth of small business would be pushed.

Carter responded with this message: "It will be the goal of my administration to have the growth rate of small business exceed the growth rate of big business and government." The organization was elated.

It now reports: "No substantial progress."

Carter also promised that "As president, I would introduce and support concrete programs which would have as high priority the expansion of the independent small business sector of the economy." Again, "No substantial progress.

And so it goes through the first four categories before the President' receives a favorable notation.

The commitment: "As president, I will see that small business has a strong voice in the White House. ... My objective is to establish closer ties with small business."

The accomplishment: "Substantial progress. Good lines of communication have been established with the President and his staff. March meeting between President, key aides and small business reps have been followed up with on-going meetings at high levels."

The administration also was credited with some progress in correcting inequities in government procurement, on freeing business people from routine record-keeping by a regulatory agency, and on minimizing the impact of an antiprice maintenance report.

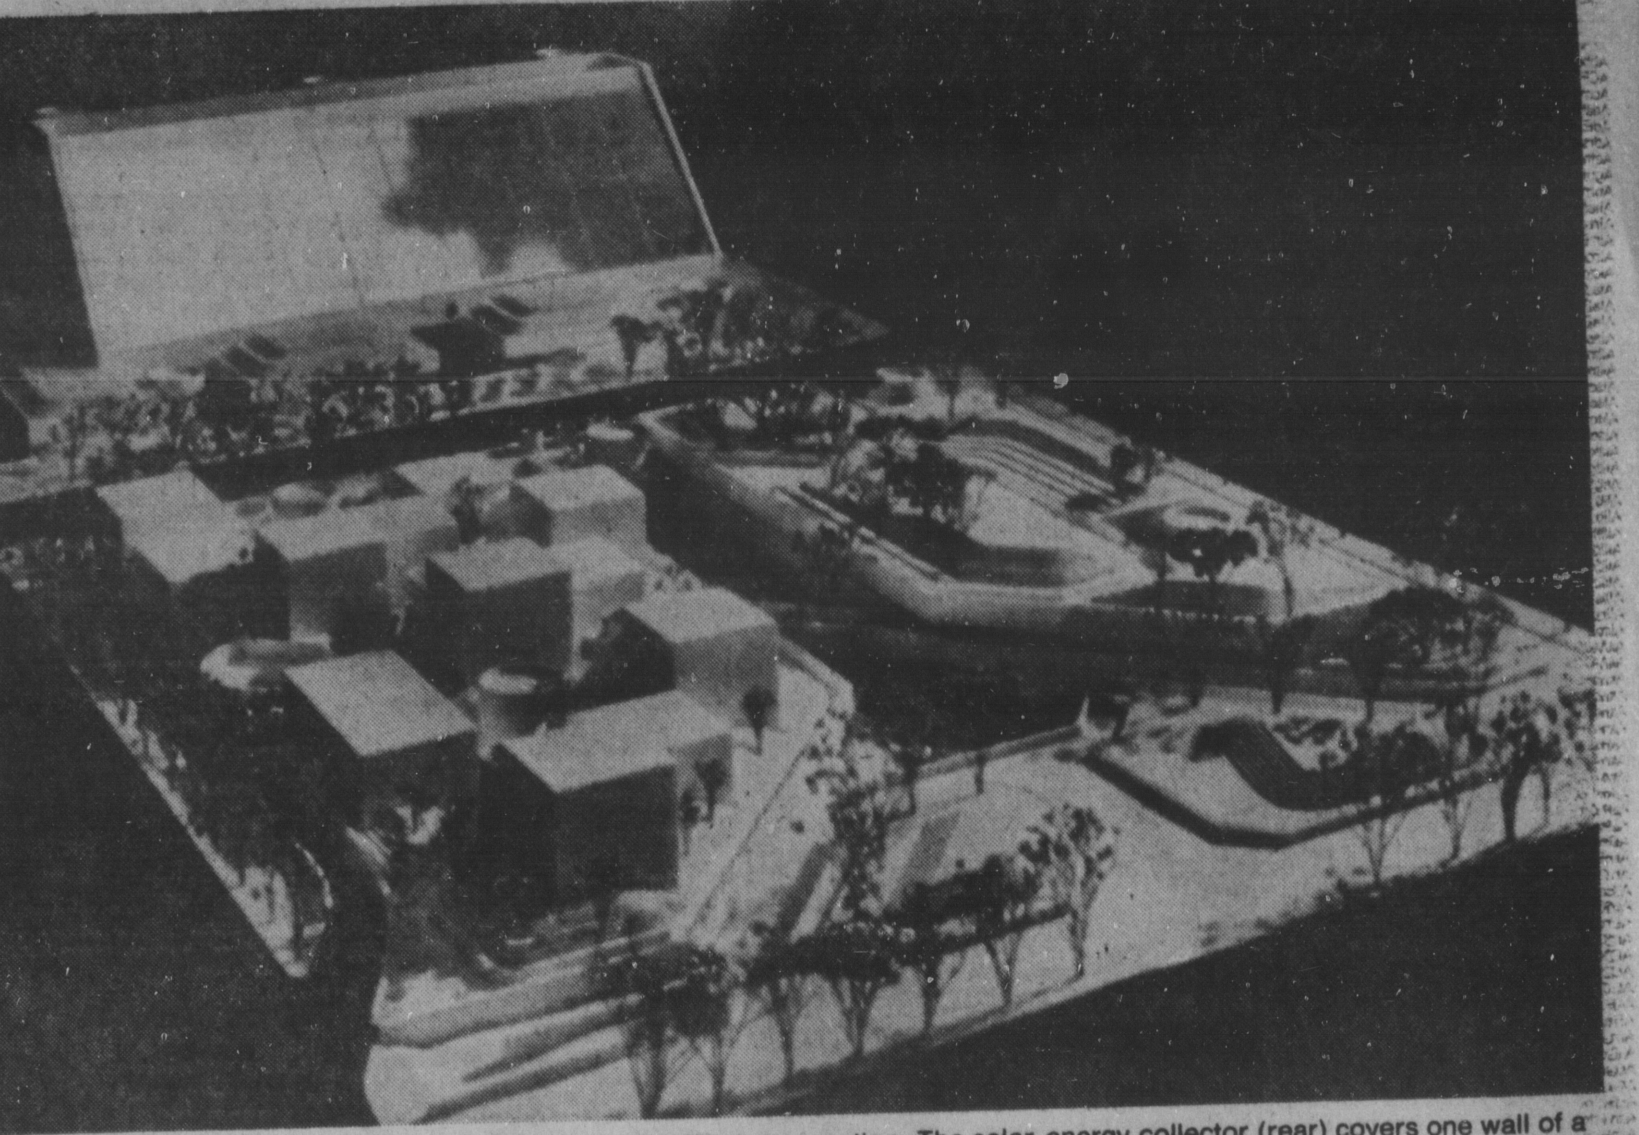
But that ubiquitious "no substantial progress" was recorded against his promise to involve small business in science and innovation, on his promise to develop yardsticks to measure small business growth, on Federal reorganization, on his promise of a better climate for raising capital, and on tax reform.

On the latter, the independent business people conceded that the President's tax reform proposals might change their estimate, but not in time for the first year's report card.

Bargain fares asked

LOS ANGELES (BW) — Seeking air fare discounts up to 40 percent, Air Canada has renewed its application to the Civil Aeronautics Board for bargain air fares between Los Angeles and eastern Canada.

Available for travel beginning Nov. 1, the airline's bargain fares proposal includes: Los Angeles/Toronto return transportation Monday through Thursday for $222, Friday through Sunday for $245. Bargain fares for Montreal or Ottawa would be $245 weekdays and $275 weekends.



WINS SOLAR SWEEPSTAKES — Benham Blair & Affiliates of Los Angeles won a major architectural competition in Sacramento with this design that will give California's capital one of the most extreme energy-saving office buildings in the nation. The solar-energy collector (rear) covers one wall of a six-story segment of the complex, half of which will be underground giving room for a park.

Steel firm seeking relief

United States Steel Corp. has filed a petition with the U.S. Treasury Department seeking relief from the dumping of certain carbon steel products into the United States by Japan.

In filing the petition, U.S. Steel emphasized the lost employment to steelworkers and the continuing severe impact on the American steel industry caused by these imports. The petition seeks relief under an existing antidumping statute by imposing special dumping duties on certain Japanese steel products: structurals, plate, hot and cold rolled sheet, galvanized sheet and welded standard pipe.

The petition was filed in the midst of employee layoffs and facility shutdowns currently being announced by some domestic steel producers.

In commenting, U.S. Steel chairman E.B. Speer said, "imported steel has been pouring into this country at a rate of about 20 million tons a year. If that rate continues," he warned, "it will set a new record for steel imports, in a year that will be far from a record for domestic steel consumption." It has been estimated that 20 million tons of steel is the equivalent of more than 100,000 jobs.

"It will mean that one out of every five tons of steel used in this country in 1977 will have been produced overseas," he said. "This results in a substantial loss to the American economy in jobs, in consumer spending, in related products bought and sold, in tax revenues and all the rest."

Continuing, he said that the American steel industry is the "low-cost producer of steel for sale in our own domestic markets . . . foreign producers, however, in cooperation with their governments, are selling steel in this country below their full production and transportation costs.

"They're doing it to maintain good levels of employement in their own countries — with no regard for the unemployment it generates here. They're doing it to boost their own economies — with no regard for what these unfair trade practices are doing now and will do in the future to the American economy.

"Our Government," he said, "is helping foreign industries at the expense of steel companies and steel employees here at home by ignoring the fact that most of this steel trade is unfair and illegal. It can also lead to dangerous consequences if this situation continues unabated and makes our economy dependent on foreign steel. The steel shortage of 1974-75 gives testimony to this intolerable, very real possibility," he said.

There is no new water; only water that has been reused

SAN FRANCISCO (BW) — There's a good chance that Cleopatra swam in your morning coffee. Or that your last rinse at the dentist's office may have once helped keep Noah's Ark afloat.

"There is no new water, only old water reused," said Joseph Rossillon Ph.D., Monday to members of the dental profession at the 1977 San Francisco scientific session of the California Dental Association.

"In 15 years Americans will be using seven times more water than is available from underground sources, therefore we will need to recycle our water continually," said the director of the Freshwater Biological Institute, located in Minnesota.

Since the creation of the earth, our world has the same number of drops of water, said Rissillon. Only 1 percent of all the water in the universe is freshwater, and only one-tenth of this is in lakes and streams. Underground supplies contain six-tenths of the available freshwater; however, 80 percent of this is inaccessible to man.

"Man is responsible for the problems which are threatening our freshwater supply," he claims. "Each year we use more and more and don't return it in the same state that we found it and used it.

"Remember two key points," said Rossillon. "Our surface water is already contaminated and you cannot clean water, you can only purify it and thereby alter the quality of the water, leaving behind a residue, smell or taste. Water is purified through the addition of chemicals or boiling."

"The major question in recycling water then is not the quantity you can recycle, but rather the quality of the water after the procedure. There is almost no water anymore that is fit to drink without purifying it."

"Some kind of conservation or preservation is necessary," said Rossillon. Also needed are a correction effort to dissipate whatever pollutants we now have in our water, an effort to keep the problem from occuring again and a reversal of our current practices which will involve going back and getting rid of the residue left over from previous practices.

"We are convinced that the current administration in Washington will be the first to put money into fundamental research to learn and identify the freshwater problem," he continued.

"We don't have a freshwater crisis in the United States," he said. But we are heading for one in the near future, said Rossillon.

"We need to get a basic understanding of not only water, but all the things in water. Everyone is involved in the subject of water, because nobody can live more than three days without it," he said.

OLDSMOBILE'S CUTLASS — The Cutlass Supreme Brougham, shown here, is among the Oldsmobile 1978 models. By substantially reducing length and width and using lighter materials, Oldsmobile has taken an average of 657 pounds out of its Cutlass sedan and coupe models to produce more fuel-efficient cars for 1978.

Critical of lobbyists

Carter in harsh response to attacks on energy plan

By BROOKS JACKSON
AND
EVANS WITT
Associated Press Writers

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senators and members of their staffs streamed in and out of the ornate anteroom near the Senate floor last week, huddling with lobbyists waiting there for a brief moment's conversation.

Although the lobbyists represented diverse interests, they repeated a remarkably consistent plea: President Carter's plan for higher, but still regulated, natural gas prices is a bad idea.

The representatives of the natural gas industry argued against Carter's plan, saying federal price controls should be removed — and prices allowed to rise — to encourage new production.

But consumer advocates said the energy prices in his package are too high, not too low.

And a myriad of other groups — from florists to papermakers — have tried to make their objections to the President's plan heard as the Senate has struggled through day after day and night after night of debate on regulating natural gas prices.

The opposition from this broad range of groups was a major reason that last week was not a good one for Carter's energy package.

And the President responded with harsh criticism of the lobbyists.

"I call on the Senate to act responsibly in the interests of the great majority of Americans to reject narrow special interest attacks on all segments of the national energy plan," Carter said. "The lobbying efforts of the oil and gas industry on deregulation itself show how the special interests are trying to block enactment of the entire energy program."

The industry has been lobbying hard against many parts of Carter's plan. And their efforts have been influential in some areas.

But the consumer groups, some unions and various industrial associations have also been fighting segments of Carter's energy package, particularly where it would raise fuel prices for consumers and industry.

On the other side, of course, has been the President and his allies.

Carter and Vice President Walter F. Mondale have telephoned and met with many members of the Senate on the energy package in the last two weeks.

And Energy Secretary James R. Scheslinger was a familiar figure in the halls of the Capitol as he went from meeting to meeting with senators.

Among the diverse groups opposing the President on natural gas pricing there have been no coalitions — not even informal ones — or other coordination of effort.

"They (the natural gas producers) don't even want the same thing we do," said Ellen Berman, head of the Consumer Federation's energy policy task force. "They want deregulation and higher prices. We are against deregulation."

But there have been at least four meetings since Aug. 11 among groups that usually oppose each other to talk about fighting another part of Carter's energy package, the tax on domestic crude oil.

Joining representatives of at least two major oil companies, Mobil and Gulf, were lobbyists for the Teamsters union, the Consumer Federation, the cotton growers, the airlines and a dozen other farm, labor and business groups.

All feared the oil tax, but each for their own reasons.

This opposition has put the tax in trouble, with it losing a narrow initial vote in the Senate Finance Committee.

The lobbying on natural gas pricing has been intense. And the result has been a stalemate that has left the Senate paralyzed.

"The natural gas lobby has been everywhere," said Sen. Henry Jacks, D-Wash., a key Carter ally in the battle. "They worked every angle. They are doing an efficient job."

When the Senate spent all of Tuesday night trying to untangle the situation, the Natural Gas Supply Committee had its people standing in the Senate's public anteroom, waiting to help. They stacked position papers and documents on one of the padded benches, ready to provide anyone who asked with information.

As opponents of deregulation proposed amendment after amendment, the staffs of senators favoring deregulation — such as Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, and Sen. James Pearson, R-Kan. — constantly sought information from the lobbyists.

The natural gas committee even had a computer terminal set up in their downtown office to analyze the effects of the opponents' amendments. These "instant economic displays" were then rushed to the Capitol.

This help from lobbyists sparked a sharp exchange between Sen. James Abourezk, D-S.D., and Sen. James A. McClure, R-Ida.

"Your side isn't helped much by the story ... of lobbyists' waiting outside, feeding information," said Abourezk, one of the leaders of the filibuster against deregulation last week.

"It helps to have facts to argue with," retorted McClure. "My friend from South Dakota has never been burdened by the need for facts."

Some of the deregulation proposal's opponents have been sharply critical of the producers' tactics.

"The oil and gas lobby has been unbelievably successful in scaring this body into thinking that there will be a gas shortage next winter" without deregulation, said Sen. Dale Bumpers, D-Ark.

But the major natural gas producers have not been the only group lobbying for deregulation.

The small, independent producers have been pushing for deregulation only for their part of the industry, saying it is the only competitive sector left.

And a wide range of farm and business groups who believe deregulation would assure them of needed energy supplies are also pushing for removal of federal controls.

A group of 30 farm organizations, including the American Farm Bureau Federation, the National Grange, the International Apple Institute and the Society of American Florists and Horticulturists, recently signed a letter supporting deregulation.

Many industrial users of natural gas also are pushing for an end to government controls over newly discovered gas.

But if the natural gas lobby has been evident during the debates, so has the administration.

"I've been called by the administration several times," said Sen. John Melcher of Idaho. "And I've seen Dr. Scheslinger.

The bumblebee is a large, fuzzy, black and yellow bee that buzzes loudly when it flies.

The bumblebee gets its name from the old English word "bumblen," meaning "huming," because of the humming sound it makes.

Bumblebees live in most countries of the world, and may be seen flying from blossom to blossom during the summer.

Like the honeybee, bumblebees are social insects. This means they live in colonies (groups).

But bumblebee nests are very different from those of honeybees. They do not build hives of honeycombs. They make their nests in a hole in the ground, a thick tuft of grass, or even in a deserte mouse nest.

Bumblebees also mak honey, but it is not used by pe ple. Bumblebee honey is stor in waxen cells calle "honeypots." It is almost as th as nectar and will sour in short time.

Bumblebees help pollina many plants which are imp tant as food for farme livestock.

Administration gambling on peace parley push with Russ?

WASHINGTON (AP) — The unprecedented decision by the United States to join the Soviet Union in promoting a Geneva peace conference based on Palestinians' "legitimate rights" represents a gamble by the Carter administration. It may not pay off.

What the President and his closest advisers are betting is that Israel, having no big ally other than the United States, will sit down against its better judgment and negotiate a homeland for the Palestinians.

The invective directed at Israel during the current U.N. General Assembly session in New York by the Communist and Arab blocs and the socalled Third World dramatizes the loneliness of the Jewish state on the world scene.

But despite its unique military and economic reliance on this country, Israel remains a sovereign state. It could decide that disagreement with the United States is less of a risk than a Soviet-backed Palestinian state run by the Palestine Liberation Organization on its border.

If Israel chooses to buck Jimmy Carter, as its initial negative response to the U.S.-Soviet formula suggests it may, then the President's strategy urged on him by proponents of an "even-handed policy" in the Middle East will have backfired.

Carter might have his Geneva conference by Christmas but without substantive negotiations.

If the pressure tactics work, however, the President will be hailed in much of the world for overcoming Israeli resistance and viewed at home as a determined leader who achieved a break-through in the Middle East.

There was little reason to suspect as Carter campaigned for the White House that he would be so tough on Israel or that so many differences would develop between the two countries. He needled Gerald Ford and the Republican adminstration for delaying arms shipments and for making Israel the 'scapegoat" of U.S. Middle East policy.

Once on the job, however, Carter adopted the view of Arab specialists in the State Department and a key White House adviser that Palestinians posed not only a refugee problem but were an indentifiable people who deserved a homeland carved out of Israeli-held territory.

Carter also became convinced that Egypt, Jordan and Syria as well as their banker, Saudi Arabia, were finally resolved after four wars to a Jewish state in a Moslem world provided Israel returned virtually all the territory the Arabs lost in 1967.

The onus was put on Israel to relinquish the land, though there was no peace before 1967 when it was in Arab hands.

The Israeli government is prepared to test the theory that its neighbors want peace by negotiating treaties with them at Geneva. The alternative is a continued state of war debilitating to the Israeli and Egyptian economies. But Israel says it will not negotiate with the PLO, the sponsor of terrorist raids against Israeli civilians.

Carter's Middle East policy rests on the idea that peace in the area depends on a Palestinian homeland. Israel's backers are convinced that the opposite is true, that the PLO will find in U.S. acceptance the strength to renew its determination to dismantle the Jewish state.

The PLO remains committed in its charter to that goal. Promises of recognition by the United States for implicitly recognizing Israel have not worked their seductive charm.

Senate vote on natural gas a defeat for Carter

WASHINGTON (AP) — The cost of cooking and heating with gas is going up, whatever a congressional conference committee decides on the controversial issue of federal price controls over the fuel.

The Senate broke a lengthy impasse on Tuesday and voted 50-46 in favor of deregulation of natural gas prices. The overall bill then passed on a voice vote.

It was the most serious setback to date for Jimmy Carter's energy program, and the President immediately labeled the measure unacceptable.

"I will not sign an unfair bill," he said.

Despite the defeat for Carter, the President's congressional supporters predicted that negotiations in a House-Senate conference committee will produce continued controls at a higher price.

The conference committee is expected to begin work next week on what could be a long, bitter struggle.

Sponsored by Sens. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, and James Pearson, R-Kan., the Senate plan would set the price at $2.48 for two years, then allow the marketplace to determine what producers can charge for new gas.

The price ceiling for natural gas now is $1.46 per thousand cubic feet.

Controls, first imposed 23 years ago, would remain on offshore new gas for five years.

The House, in a close vote of its own, went along earlier with Carter's plan to continue natural gas price controls. It adopted the President's suggested ceiling of $1.75 per thousand cubic feet of newly discovered gas.

The President, speaking through Press Secretary Jody Powell, termed the industry-supported Senate plan "an injustice to the working people of this country."

In New York to address the United Nations General Assembly, Carter said he expects the conference committee will approve "legislation that provides adequate production incentives while protecting the interests of American consumers."

To offset charges that the bill amounted to a consumer ripoff, Pearson and Bentsen included a provision to give residential users priority over older and cheaper natural gas reserves until they run out.

But energy specialists say the cheaper gas will be exhausted in about four years, when all customers will pay higher deregulated prices.

Supporters of deregulation say heating bills would rise only slightly, with one conservative estimate suggesting an increase of only $1.80 to $3.60 annually.

Ribicoff says Carter should redraft plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter's energy plan is in such deep trouble in the Senate that it should be withdrawn and redrafted, a senior Democrat on the Senate Finance Committee said today.

Sen. Abraham Ribicoff, speaking in the wake of a major administration defeat on natural gas pricing and a continued impasse on energy taxes, said Congress should still try to pass the energy bill this year.

But he said, "Shouldn't the President admit his energy plan is in a shambles ... and that it's just not going to fly?"

"The administration should go back to the drawing boards and come up with a new program," said Ribicoff, D-Conn.

TV STUNT LOOKS REAL

Special effects men of the TV series "Emergency" staged this $45,000 explosion for the movie cameras Tuesday as they simulated an airliner hitting a row of houses during filming of an episode for the show. Prop men placed the fuselage of an old DC8 amid the wreckage of some homes that were being demolished for a future development. Dynamite and 210 gallons of gasoline provided this scene and two additional explosions.

Judge says statute unconstitutional, dismisses charge

By CONRAD CASLER
PB Staff Writer

At least three city and county agencies were meeting today in an effort to wipe out a question mark in the health code book after a Pomona Municipal Court special judge declared the county's and San Dimas' fly control statute unconstitutional.

Siskiyou County Justice Court Judge Howard E. Jones Tuesday afternoon issued his judicial ruling after two days of testimony in the case of San Dimas egg rancher Neil Sheehan, charged with harboring and breeding flies on his Okaway-Ghent area ranch.

The judge declared the county statute vague and unenforceable since the average man with average intelligence could not determine what he was allowed to do and not to do under the regulations.

Under the statute, no one is allowed to have any flies, nor allow any flies to breed on his property.

Noting this is an impossibility and the fact the statute did not outline what a reasonable number of flies would be, Jones handed down his decision.

At Tuesday night's San Dimas City Council meeting, City Administrator Bob Poff said he and his staff will confer with officials of the county Health Department Thursday afternoon in an effort to determine if a new county statute should be written or San Dimas should write one of its own.

San Dimas' ordinance was declared unconstitutional, along with the county's. It was word for word the same health code law.

Meanwhile, Deputy Dist. Atty. Cliff Garrott, who attempted to uphold validity of the ordinance during the two day of trial, said he will turn the decision over to his superiors to determine if the case will be appealed by the district attorney. Until a Superior Court Appellate Division upholds and publishes Jones' decision, it will not become a precedent and other judges can ignore it, Garrott said.

Jones' decision effectively blocked any prosecution of Sheehan who faced a maximum fine of $500 and/or six months in jail. The judge said Sheehan's right to due process of law had been violated and dismissed the case before it could go to trial on its merits.

Sheehan was cited three months ago on complaints of a neighbor during a long-standing neighborhood dispute. He said after walking out of court free of charges, the same neighbor earlier turned him into Los Angeles County Fire Department for maintaining a fire hazard in the form of 3,000 6-foot tall pine trees he planted on his property to beautify the 2.8-acre ranch.

"The fire department did not cite me and declared the complaint ridiculous," Sheehan said.

The same neighbors are expected to appear on opposite sides at next Tuesday's 7:30 p.m. San Dimas City Council meeting when councilmen tackle the horse trails ordinance which has split the Oakway-Ghent area into two opposing camps again.

Morris Dam transfer rescinded

For a couple of hours Tuesday, the giant Morris Dam and reservoir was the property of Los Angeles County — but then Supervisor Kenneth Hahn gave it back to the Metropolitan Water District, at least for the time being.

At 10 a.m., the supervisors voted, with Baxter Ward dissenting, to accept the dam from the MWD free of charge. The water district claims it no longer needs the seven-billion gallon reservoir 12 miles northwest of Pomona.

Hahn, who believes the transfer would cost the county too much money, surprisingly voted for acceptance without any comment.

At noon he became aware of what he had done and called for reconsideration.

"My mind must have been somewhere else," he admitted. "I can't let an important issue like this go by without debate. I still want some answers before I can approve the transfer."

The board, as a courtesy to Hahn, then rescinded its approval and reset action for next Tuesday.

Hostage expert claims Japanese have given terrorists 'tremendous uplift'

LOS ANGELES (AP) — By acceding to the demands of leftist hijackers, the Japanese government has "reversed what happened at Entebbe" and given terrorists a "tremendous uplift," says an expert on hostage negotiations.

While the $6 million ransom paid to the Japanese Red Army members may be retrieved, the encouragement of future terrorism "is something you don't get back, and this is the really frightening loss," said H. Anthony Cooper, professor of criminal justice at American University.

"This (loss) is something for which we have not found the answer," Cooper told the 48th annual convention of the International Association of Chiefs of Police.

Solutions must be found by law enforcement officials themselves, he told several hundred police chiefs at a workshop. "One of the problems is to think that someone in Washington is busy working away on the problem . . . ladies and gentlemen, there ain't no such beast," Cooper declared.

Cooper appeared at the meeting along with Irving Goldaber, a Brooklyn College sociologist. The two are consultants to the IACP, training heads of law enforcement agencies in dealing with hostage-takers.

Cooper did not agree with a statement that the Japanese government had advertised its willingness to pay terrorists large ransoms.

"They have done what anyone schooled in the martial arts would do—they have chosen to bow with the wind rather than break," he said. But he said this was not necessarily a precedent, adding, "I feel that the Japanese government will act with far greater freedom in the future."

Cooper remarked that the conference was being held at a "disappointing time" because of successful terrorist operations since the Israeli raid that freed hostages at Uganda's Entebbe Airport.

"We had appeared at the time to have gained a mastery over those who were challenging the power of the legitimate forces of law and order throughout the world," he said.

Califano asks federal drug law overhaul

WASHINGTON (AP) — HEW Secretary Joseph A. Califano Jr., today called for a "top-to-bottom, thorough overhaul" of the federal drug law to lift the secrecy from government proceedings and streamline the process for getting new drugs on the market and taking dangerous ones off.

In a speech prepared for Ralph Nader's Public Citizen Forum, the secretary of health, education and welfare criticized physicians for writing too many wasteful and unnecessary prescriptions. And he said the Food and Drug Administration should help educate consumers about the drugs they take and their potential hazards.

"The major problems that confront us in drug regulation lie in the basic, 40-year-old statute under which the FDA operates and in the resources available to the FDA to perform increasingly difficult tasks," Califano said.

He criticized the present law for perpetuating "time-consuming, repetitive processes that are closed to effective public review" and said the system unnecessarily increases the price of drugs and keeps consumers from knowing what they are taking.

Carter, Dayan agree on peace parley formula

NEW YORK (AP) — Israeli Foreign Minister Moshe Dayan, sidestepping a controversial American-Soviet declaration, announced today he and President Carter have agreed on a tentative formula for holding a Middle East peace conference in Geneva.

Dayan, facing reporters in the early hours of the morning following marathon talks with Carter, emphasized the formula must be accepted by his government and by Israel's Arab neighbors. He said it might well be amended in the process.

The surprise announcement was coupled with the reading by White House spokesman Jody Powell of a joint statement that pushed into the background last Saturday's American-Soviet declaration of principles intended as a guide for a Geneva conference.

A TRAGIC END

The high speed police chase is a necessary part of law enforcement, says experts, but it scenes like this — a Los Angeles police car wrapped around a telephone pole — that makes it essential that great care and discretion be used whenever a pursuit occurs.

Desert nuclear plant still in the study stage

SACRAMENTO (AP) — The proposal to build the Sundesert nuclear power plant in southeastern California should get the go-ahead to take it halfway through a three-year state review, the Energy Commission staff says.

The staff report Tuesday recommended approval — with conditions — of San Diego Gas & Electric Co.'s proposal to build the two-reactor complex near Blythe.

Approval of the notice of intent would not OK construction of the $2.3-billion plant on Palo Verdes Mesa. It would trigger another 18-month study before a final decision.

But acceptance of the staff report means acceptance of SDG&E's proposal that the energy from the plant is needed. A decision by a committee of the commission is due Nov. 3, and a full commission decision is due Dec. 21.

Then, unless alternatives like coal, oil or geothermal are feasible, a recently passed law would allow the Legislature to give the final go-ahead next spring.

The staff concluded that the electricity from the 1,950-megawatt complex is needed in Southern California in the mid-1980s and "The proposed plant will be generally safe and reliable."

But Loyd Forrest, commission executive director, said:

"The staff recommendation...is neither clear cut nor beyond dispute due to the complexity of the matter. We have conditioned it by further study and the fact the application for the certification phase of the approval process will give the public the opportunity to further explore questions about the plant."

The staff recommendation would approve SDG&E's primary site, 16 miles southwest of Blythe in Riverside County. Alternative sites were Palo Verde in Riverside County and Milpitas Wash in Imperial County. A fourth proposed site, outside Energy Commission authority, is Parker Valley, Ariz.

The staff also recommended that:

—The Commission examine whether participants in the project, including Los Angeles Department of Water and Power and a number of other Southern California agencies, have considered solar power and conservation measures to lessen the energy requirements.

—SDG&E reduce its share of the plant from 50 per cent to 33 per cent. SDG&E's capability of financing such a large project has been questioned at hearings.

—Further environmental studies be done on proposed transmission line routes.

—The commission further study nuclear safety and reliability issues as required by state law.

The staff opposed a proposed transmission route across Imperial County because of its environmental impact.

It found acceptable, with some exceptions, SDG&E's preferred northern corridor and Devers-to-Rainbow corridor for two 500-kilowatt transmission lines.

SDG&E, which submitted its notice of intent on Sundesert in June 1976, proposes to begin operating the first reactor in 1984.

Sundesert is the first nuclear plant proposed since 1974 legislation created the Energy Commission with sole authority over power plants in the state.

But that authority could be short-circuited by the Legislature because last year's nuclear regulatory laws have clamped a de-facto moratorium on future nuclear plants.

California's nuclear regulatory laws of 1976 ban new construction unless the Legislature accepts Energy Commission findings that spent fuel can be reprocessed and radioactive wastes can be stored.

But President Carter's reluctance to proceed with reprocessing has made a moratorium out of the state's laws.

Under the recent law backed by SDG&E, the Legislature could approve construction of Sundesert if the commission finds, in a Jan. 16 report, that the energy is needed and there are no alternatives. The staff report noted that the commission will continue to study oil, coal and geothermal as alternatives to nuclear at Blythe.

Police chase: necessary, but always dangerous

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Thrilling police chases with tires squealing and red lights flashing might be fun in movies and on television, but in real life they can end tragically.

In two Los Angeles incidents within four days' time, children were struck and killed by vehicles fleeing patrol cars.

"It's tragic, but this sort of thing happens so rarely that it's not enough to necessitate any change in our policy," said Asst. Police Chief Daryl Gates following the two deaths.

The policy, drawn up in 1971 and revised several times since, states:

"A pursuit shall be discontinued when there is a clear danger to the public or to the pursuing officers. A clear danger exists when speed dangerously exceeds the normal flow of traffic, or when pedestrian or vehicular traffic necessitates unsafe maneuvering of the vehicle."

Most chases, Gates stressed, end without incident. Out of 786 pursuits in Los Angeles last year, only 37 accidents resulted, a rate of less than four percent, he said.

A study done for the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration found that, out of an estimated 250,000 police pursuits each year, between 6,000 and 8,000 result in crashes, killing 300 to 400 persons and injuring 2,500 to 5,000.

"You've got to remember that it isn't the police that initiate the pursuits," Gates said. "The pursuits are initiated by those who want to escape. Typically, this is an individual who really doesn't have any regard for other drivers or for pedestrians."

According to the NHTSA study, men under 24 with poor driving records are the most likely to flee police. Furthermore, 15 percent of those involved in chases were driving without a valid license, and more than half had had their licenses revoked or suspended.

Critics of chase policies say persons wanted for misdemeanors such as minor traffic violations should not be pursued if the chase would endanger innocent lives.

"Obviously, if a guy is just double-parked for a couple of minutes, it isn't worth risking anybody's life over," commented Fred Okrand of the Los Angeles chapter of the American Civil Liberties Union.

In one of the chases, Hajah Faraidy, the 12-year-old daughter of a Saudi Arabian diplomat, died Sept. 24 in a three-car crash on the Santa Monica Freeway. The auto in which she was riding was rammed from behind by one being chased by police.

The other child who died was 8-year-old Joe Mena, who was waiting for his mother, Erolinda Carranza, outside a San Fernando Valley supermarket Sept. 27 when a pursued car careened across the parking lot and struck him.

"I really don't believe you can have a policy that will eliminate those kinds of accidents," Cypress Police Capt. Jerry Shumart commented after another chase in his suburban jurisdiction left two innocent motorists dead and two injured.

Gates also noted that the hair-raising police chases and roadblocks depicted in such films as "The French Connection" rarely occur.

He pointed out a section of the policy that states: "There shall be no attempts by police units to stop pursued suspects by 'boxing in,' 'heading off,' or driving alongside the pursued vehicle."

Also, the policy says officers generally must not chase a car the wrong way on a freeway and no multi-unit "caravans" of patrol cars shall chase a fleeing suspect. Chases are limited to a primary unit and one back-up unit.

The California Highway Patrol, whose chase procedures are similar to those of Los Angeles police, also discourages caravans. "We attempt to limit the numbers of units as part of our policy," Lt. Ken Rude said.

However, he said, the CHP will use their cars in roadblocks in some instances.

"If the pursued vehicle is going at a low speed, blocking is okay," he explaned. But no attempt is made to stop a rushing vehicle capable of sending expensive patrol cars flying like matchsticks.

Despite the restrictions, chases can be exciting, and some officers will admit they might be reluctant to give up such a chase.

"Once you get involved in these things," CHP Commissioner Glen Craig confided, "the pitch of the siren, the involvement of the chase . . . the flow of adrenalin is so high and people get so keyed up that it's sometimes very difficult to make the decision that says 'Hey, I've gone far enough.' "

Civil rights case lawyers may collect public reward

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The state Supreme Court has ruled that lawyers who successfully try cases that have wide benefits to citizens may be awarded reasonable legal fees by California courts.

The high court ruled Tuesday that a lawyer acting as a "private attorney general" may receive attorney fees from the state.

The 5-2 decision upheld a Los Angeles Superior Court ruling that awarded $800,000 to law firms which represented John Serrano Jr. and others in the Serrano versus Priest public school financing litigation.

That 1968 lawsuit led to the 1976 California Supreme Court decision which found the state's public school financing system invalid.

The Supreme Court said the attorneys' efforts resulted in the protection of constitutional rights which benefited a large number of people.

The trial court had awarded $400,000 to Public Advocates Inc. and $400,000 to the Western Center on Law and Poverty, two groups receiving public or tax-exempt charitable funding.

A dissent by Justice William Clark said courts are neither equipped nor empowered to award attorney fees in such a situation.

John McDermott, Western Center on Law and Poverty, hailed the decision as "the single biggest boon to public interest law that has ever taken place in California."

The 1976 Serrano-Priest decision affirmed the 1974 Superior Court ruling the school financing system was invalid because it violated equal protection under the state constitution. It also ordered school finance reform within six years.

Changing standards could hurt minorities

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Proposed University of California admissions standards increasing the weight given to test scores would have disqualified a substantial number of minorities, the university says.

If the standards had been in effect in 1976, 23 blacks, or 8.8 per cent of the total number of blacks admitted, and 25 Mexican-Americans, or 6.7 per cent, would have been ineligible for regular admission, says a UC study revealed Tuesday.

For the entire first-year class, 265 students, or 1.9 per cent, would have been ineligible.

But a top UC official says the figures don't mean minority enrollment will drop if the standards are adopted, in part because they will make some minorities eligible who weren't before.

However, protest from minority groups is expected when the regents consider the standards Oct. 20-21 in San Francisco.

Eligibility is now based almost solely on high school grades. But high schools have been criticized for "grade inflation," an increase in averages while scores on standardized tests decline.

So the UC Academic Senate has proposed placing greater reliance on standardized test scores for applicants at the lower range of eligibility, starting in 1979.

The effect would be to require high school students with a B average — 3.0 to 3.03 on a 4-point scale — to get a higher score on the Scholastic Aptitude Test of English and mathematics than they now need to qualify for admission.

At the same time, students with slightly lower averages, in the 2.85 or 2.9 range, could qualify with high SAT scores, an avenue that isn't open to them now.

State briefs

Influenza vaccine

SACRAMENTO (AP) — The state Health Department says influenza vaccine is to be distributed to county health departments this month.

Health Director Jerome Lackner said Tuesday the shipments will amount to 200,000 doses, which are recommended for high-risk persons, mainly chronically ill adults and children, and persons over 55 who are not allergic to the shots.

This year's vaccine contains A-Victoria-75 and B-Hong Kong-72 viruses, the prevailing strains this flu season, which generally runs from November through March.

He said that before being vaccinated, patients must read and sign statements explaining the benefits as well as the risks.

Immunizations also are available from private doctors.

Black's Beach

SAN DIEGO (AP) - A vote on banning nudity at Black's Beach was delayed until later today by the City Council after hearing a barrage of arguments from supporters.

A ballot proposition to prohibit all nudity on city beaches was approved by San Diego voters two weeks ago. Council members, as a result, were expected to rescind their 1974 resolution setting aside Black's as "swimsuit optional."

Civil defense study

LONG BEACH (AP) — The National Security Council has ordered a study of the nation's civil defense because survival rates in a nuclear attack could become a factor in U.S.-Soviet arms negotiations, says an aide to President Carter.

Greg Schneiders said Tuesday that civil defense could be a significant point in the Strategic Arms Limitations Talks. "We may offer to slow our civil defense developments, for example, if they will cool theirs," he said.

"What we don't want to develop is a situation where one nation can go underground and safely push a button," he added.

Schneiders' remarks came during a break in the annual convention of the United States Civil Defense Council. He and Bardyl R. Tirana, director of civil preparedness for the Department of Defense, addressed the meeting.

Eyeglass advertising

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The 2nd District Court of Appeal has ruled that California's law forbidding advertising of eyeglasses is unconstitutional.

The ruling, issued last Sept. 15 and made public Tuesday, comes in the wake of two federal court decisions overturning similar advertising bans.

The appellate court ruled that Terminal-Hudson Electronics of California was correct in challenging the advertising prohibitions.

The ruling reversed a decision handed down by Superior Court Judge Charles Phillips in April 1976 and ordered Phillips to formally declare the advertising law unconstitutional.

Police investigation

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Board of Police Commissioners has launched an investigation into the use of on-duty Los Angeles officers during this week's International Association of Chiefs of Police convention.

Asst. Police Chief Daryl Gates told the commission Tuesday he would have a report ready in two weeks.

Learning to love men with a badge

REDWOOD CITY (AP) — The offbeat course is called "I Love a Cop" and it's designed to help wives and girlfriends of policemen do just that.

Offered for the first time at Canada College, the class has become an instant hit with policemen's mates from the San Francisco area and has gained the support of several police agencies.

It took just a few days after the class was advertised to fill its roster and the waiting list for next semester is already long.

"I Love a Cop" is popular simply because cops are so hard to love, says Ellen Anderson, the 38-year-old psychotherapist who runs the class.

"When a rookie cop graduates from the police academy," she says, "his wife or girlfriend may get a corsage — but that's often the last time anyone in the department pays any attention to her."

And like the fictional cops in Joseph Wambaugh's "The Choir Boys," police wives need to have soul searching sessions — choir practices — to air their own special problems.

Mrs. Anderson, the wife of a police psychologist, says the aim of "I Love a Cop" is to fill that void of silence, to give the wives a "room, chairs to sit on — and the emotional space to share their experiences in an atmosphere of trust and support."

She says cops balk at hashing out their job-related tensions and frustrations with their wives because they don't want to "contaminate the little woman."

As a result, says Mrs. Anderson, police wives often must cope in "desperation and isolation" with family troubles spawned by their husband's own cop hang-ups.

"Policemen are always running into their own bad sides out there in the streets," she says. "...and that can lead to destructive behavior against loved ones unless it is resolved.

"Officers are never off-duty and the pressures of that situation affect everyone in the family."

Teamster convicted

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Edward Grady Partin, the powerful business manager of a Louisiana Teamsters local whose testimony helped convict former Teamsters boss James Hoffa, has been convicted of three counts of conspiracy to obstruct justice.

Partin was charged with hiding two witnesses against him in a 1972 obstruction of justice trial in Houston, Texas. Partin was acquitted in that case, which dealt with an alleged threat against former Teamster official Wade McClanahan in 1970.

The two witnesses — Richard Baker and Claude Roberson — had earlier told a federal grand jury in New Orleans that they had overheard the threat.

Testimony in the trial, which resulted in Tuesday's conviction, indicated Baker stayed at a hunting camp in south Louisiana with one teamster and that Roberson stayed out of sight at a motel and horse ranch in southern Oklahoma during October 1972.

Partin was the principal government witness in the jury-tampering trial of James Hoffa in the 1960s.

Partin faces a maximum eight-year sentence imposed in an earlier trial in Alexandria, La., by federal Judge Nauman Scott. That conviction was overturned by the U.S. Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals in New Orleans.

Dog bite victim looking for help

A Pomona woman bitten by three dogs in Weber Street Park Sept. 29 is searching for the animals to determine her need for a rabies inoculation.

Loretta Puster, 1230 Pavilion St., Pomona was walking her two small dogs in the park when the dogs attacked her smaller animals. In breaking up the fight, Mrs. Puster was bitten by one of the attacking animals.

The dogs were described as two boxers and a pit bull, all of which may have come from the same litter. The boxers were said to be smaller and of a lighter color than the normal boxer. The pit bull was said to be a brindle color. One of the dogs had had its ears cropped.

Mrs. Puster's husband, Otto, said the three dogs were spotted on the corner of Weber and Orange Grove Avenue Saturday about 7 a.m.

If the dogs are not found, Mrs. Puster will have to begin the series of rabies shots on Friday.

Sirica ends tenure with compassionate act

Reduces sentences of Erlichman, Haldeman, Mitchell

WASHINGTON (AP) — Judge John J. Sirica, once known as "Maximum John," ended his Watergate tenure with a compassionate act, making it possible for the Big Three of the cover-up to leave prison after serving only one year.

"I guess you can now call me Minimum John," Sirica quipped Tuesday after he reduced the 2½-8 year sentences of John N. Mitchell, John D. Ehrlichman and H.R. Haldeman to 1-4 years. "I'm glad it's the last major decision I'll have rendered in this case."

For Sirica, the ruling was the last of many in the five years since his involvement began in Watergate and its many tangled offshoots. He was known as "Maximum John" by courthouse habitues because of his tough sentences.

No more Watergate criminal cases are pending and the 73-year-old judge is considering taking senior status with a reduced workload.

Sirica announced his decision after listening to impassioned pleas by the three men and their attorneys. Ironically, in a courtroom where so much of the drama has concerned tape recordings, the voices of Mitchell, Haldeman and Ehrlichman were on tape.

The judge had sent a probation officer to question the men inside prison and the playing of the tape was a dramatic surprise.

Ehrlichman becomes eligible for parole on Oct. 28 if federal judge Gerhard A. Gesell, who sentenced him in the Ellsberg psychiatrist break-in case, reduces that sentence also, as is expected.

If not, Ehrlichman's parole eligibility begins next June, along with that of Haldeman and Mitchell.

Ehrlichman, domestic counselor to Richard Nixon when he was president, elected to begin serving his sentence before his appeal to the Supreme Court was decided and entered prison eight months before his co-defendants in the cover-up trial.

He works in the power house at the federal prison camp at Safford, Ariz., and his lawyer, Stuart Stiller, told Sirica: "He went from sitting in the Oval Office and now he sits in the power house."

Mitchell, the 64-year-old former attorney general, suffers from an arthritic right hip that needs replacement — an operation that his lawyer, William G. Hundley, says cannot be performed while he is a prisoner at Maxwell Air Force Base in Alabama.

And Haldeman, the Nixon chief of staff who will be 51 later in the month, is "in charge of the chemistry at the sewer plant" at the federal facility in Lompoc, Calif., his lawyer, John W. Wilson said.

Their release from prison will not be automatic. When their eligibility date nears, each man will be interviewed by parole officers whose recommendation must then be approved by the U.S. Parole Commission.

Without Sirica's action — or intervention by President Carter, which had not been requested — Ehrlichman would not have been eligible for parole until April 1979 and Haldeman and Mitchell not until December 1979.

In the tape interviews, each man spoke of his remorse about the acts that brought his conviction for conspiring to cover-up White House involvement in the Watergate break-in.

"I had an exaggerated sense of obligation to do what I was bidden," Ehrlichman said. "There were all kinds of red flags. I abdicated my moral judgments and turned them over to somebody else. If I had any advice for my kids it would be 'never, ever, assign your moral judgments to anybody.'"

Mitchell said that since the coverup trial in late 1974, he has had considerable remorse and regret that he acted as he had.

"No set of circumstances, whatever they might be, would ever again cause me to perform such actions or lead me to commit such deeds," the former attorney general said.

Haldeman's statement to Sirica was low key, but his lawyer waxed eloquent.

"Society has had its retribution," Wilson told Sirica. "Four and a half years of uncertainty and anxiety as the outcome of an evil act has paid his debt to society...Bob Haldeman has already suffered a lifetime of punishment in the nearly four months that he has been at Lompoc."

Deny link in arrest of illegal migrants, Goldwater strike

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — U.S. Border Patrol officials deny that a raid on the Arrowhead, owned in part by Sen. Barry Goldwater's brother, ranch had anything to do with a strike by about 200 illegal migrant workers.

Agents arrested 11 illegal aliens at the ranch Tuesday and bused them across the border.

The field hands at the ranch in suburban Glendale went on strike Monday for higher wages, more sanitary and better working conditions.

The ranch is owned by Goldmar Inc., owned by Robert Goldwater and the Arthur Martori family of Scottsdale, Ariz. Robert Goldwater is president of the large agriculture and land development firm, but the Martori family reportedly runs the ranch.

The Maricopa County Organizing Project, which spearheaded the strike, accused the Border Patrol of helping Goldmar in the dispute. Patrol officials denied the charge.

There was no comment from Goldmar officials concerning the arrests.

The striking workers said they are seeking $3 an hour, instead of their current $2.20 an hour wage, shelter and sanitation facilities.

Police say illegal aliens fled their open air camps in the ranch's citrus groves Tuesday when four Patrol agents arrived.

The outcome in Atlanta, Cleveland, Albuquerque elections for mayor

By Associated Press

Maynard Jackson, Atlanta's first black mayor, praised the Southern city's race relations as "far superior to any city its size or bigger" after he captured more than 60 per cent of the vote to win a second term.

Cleveland Mayor Ralph Perk, seeking a fourth term, said his defeat was due to tough decisions "I knew would hurt me politically."

In another mayoral race Tuesday, David Rusk, son of former U.S. Secretary of State Dean Rusk, defeated incumbent Albuquerque, N.M. Mayor Harry Kinney, winning more than 40 per cent of the vote as required to avoid a runoff.

Rusk, 37, had come to Albuquerque in 1971 from Washington, D.C., on loan to the city as a federal manpower executive. He resigned from that job in 1973 to go to work directly for the city and most recently had served in the state House of Representatives.

And in Albany, Ga., incumbent Mayor James H. Gray Sr. and City Commissioner Mary Young battled each other into an Oct. 18 runoff in the first election since a federal judge ordered the city's voting districts redrawn to correct alleged racial discriminaton.

Mrs. Young, a 34-year-old black attorney, had filed the discrimination suit three years ago. Gray is white.

Jackson, 39, who was first won office in 1973 in a close election, predicted final results would show he won more than 90 per cent of the black vote in Atlanta, which is 55 per cent black.

He conceded he got only slightly more than 25 per cent of the white vote. He called this "disappointing but very regular as long as we have a nation as it is."

In Cleveland's nonpartisan primary, Perk, 63, a Republican who succeeded the city's only black mayor, Carl Stokes, in 1971, was defeated by two young Democrats who roughly split the city's white and black vote.

The top finishers who will face each other in the Nov. 8 general election are Edward Feighan, a 29-year-old state representative, and Dennis Kucinich, a 30-year-old Municipal Court clerk.

The two Democrats had concentrated on issues of deteriorating neighborhoods, crime, inner-city housing and Perk's support of tax abatements to stimulate downtown development his decision to sell the city-owned Municipal Light Co.

Perk, who once ran for the U.S. Senate and was county auditor for 10 years, said he would like to stay in public service. "Perhaps I have a new role as a civic leader," he said.

An unofficial final count showed Kucinich with 40,134 votes, to Feighan's 39,699 and Perk's 36,260.

Atlanta's Jackson spent an estimated $200,000, 10 times more than any of six opponents, although his campaign never showed signs of weakness.

Political opponents and some union representatives who backed Jackson in 1973 criticized him for firing 1,000 city workers to break a garbage strike this year. Most of the workers were rehired later.

Emma Darnell, the mayoral candidate who hit that issue hardest, came in a poor fourth in the balloting behind businessman Harold Dye and Fulton County Commissioner Milton Farris.

Besides the "strike-busting" issue, several candidates tried to tarnish Jackson's image by frequent reference to cheating on promotion tests in the police department.

With 98 per cent of the precincts reported, Jackson had 52,838 votes, Dye 14,842, Farris 11,736 and Miss Darnell 3,460.

Meanwhile, in New Orleans, a review of voting machines from last Saturday's mayoral primary determined that City Councilman Joseph V. DiRosa defeated state Sen. Nat Kiefer by a mere 265 votes for a place in the Nov. 12 runoff with state Appeals Court Judge Ernest N. "Dutch" Morial.

Morial is the first black to emerge as a serious candidate for mayor in New Orleans' history.

7 jailed in beating over domino game

Pomona police this morning held seven persons, one a woman, in connection with the beating of a man, reportedly following an earlier fight over a $1 bet on a domino game.

The victim, Robert H. Shehee Jr., 23, suffered facial injuries and possibly broken ribs when he was beaten to the ground and kicked after being dragged from his apartment at 1111 E. Seventh St. early Tuesday, said police. He was treated at Pomona Valley Community Hospital.

Police later arrested the suspects and booked them on suspicion of kidnaping, burglary and assault with a deadly weapon. They were stopped as they sped away from the area of the incident in a car being driven without lights.

Police found Shehee lying in the front yard at 1096 Eighth St., severly beaten. They were told that when he refused to see several persons at the apartment, the door was kicked in and he was dragged away.

Two of those arrested were 17-year-old Inglewood and Los Angeles youths. The rest were Pomonans.

Auto slams into tree; pair injured

Two men were injured early Wednesday when the driver reportedly failed to stop for a stop sign at Philadelphia and Pipe Line avenues near Chino and his vehicle crashed into a tree.

The driver, Edgar Asa Neher, 26, 141 Princeton Ave., Claremont, was taken to Kaiser Foundation Hospital in Fontana where his condition is listed as stable. A passenger, Robert Bernard Burke, 27, 780 N. Spruce Ave., Upland, was treated at Chino General Hospital and released.

Highway patrolmen said the car was reported going at a high rate of speed south on Pipe Line. The driver slammed on his brakes at the intersection and the vehicle skidded 94 feet before crashing into the tree, they added.

Man claims locked in van, vehicle set afire

Los Angeles County sheriff's deputies today were investigating a young Los Angeles man's story that he was kidnaped, driven to the San Gabriel Mountains and locked inside his van by a trio who then set the vehicle afire.

The victim, Robert Preciado, 19, was found near his burning, brand-new $7,000 custom van on Glendora Mountain Road, six miles north of Sierra Madre Avenue north of Azusa.

Deputies said that Preciado told them he was kidnaped at knife-point from a dance in the east Pasadena area early today by two men and a woman. En route to the mountains, he said, the trio stopped and bought a can of gasoline. When they reached mountains they locked Preciado inside the van and set it on fire, he said. He managed to free himself.

Man stabbed in Alta Loma street brawl

An Alta Loma man was stabbed Tuesday night during a fight involving eight to 10 other men near Helman Avenue and La Ronda Street, Alta Loma, said sheriff's deputies.

Timothy Allan Curtis, 20, suffered stab wounds in the stomach and arm. He was treated at San Antonio Community Hospital and transferred to San Bernardino County Hospital.

A companion with him was not injured.

Curtis told sheriff's deputies he and his friend were driving east on La Ronda Street when the persons crossed in front of his car.

An argument began, and Curtis stopped his vehicle. A fight was then started, said deputies.

Boy with martial arts weapon jailed

A 14-year-old Pomona boy was arrested late Tuesday afternoon by police who charged that he possessed an illegal Asian martial arts weapon.

The youth, who was held briefly and then released to his parents, was arrested in the 1000 block of E. Phillips Blvd., Pomona. Police said there was a confrontation there of approximately 30 teen-agers.

The weapon, consisting of a pair of wooden handles connected by a length of chain, was confiscated by police.

Carter takes tour of blighted Bronx area

NEW YORK (AP) — President Carter, accompanied by his housing secretary and New York Mayor Abraham D. Beame, made an unscheduled visit today to the South Bronx, an area as bleak as any blighted neighborhood in the nation.

Carter, who came to New York on Tuesday to address the United Nations General Assembly, made the morning auto tour of the area devastated by arson and crime with the mayor and Patricia Harris, secretary of housing and urban development, at his side.

The officials emerged from the presidential limousine twice. At the second stop, Carter stood in the rubble of what once were tenements and ordered that a study be made as to what in the South Bronx "ought to be salvaged and what ought to be torn down."

He told Mrs. Harris to "get a map of the whole area and show me what should be done."

Ontario gas station robbed

A nervous bandit armed with a handgun robbed a service station at 1155 N. Grove Ave., Ontario of a small amount of cash Tuesday.

The robber entered the station office as the attendant was putting money in a safe. The attendant said the robber stood there shaking as he demanded the cash.

The gunman was described as a Latin, 16 to 18 years old, 5 feet 7, skinny, with long, black hair. He had tattoos on both arms and wore a white T-shirt and blue jeans.

Americans willing to pay more for national health care

CHICAGO (AP) — A slight majority of the American public is willing to pay higher taxes for some kind of national health care system, says a former campaign pollster for President Carter.

Fifty-one per cent of a 2,500 persons polled recently expressed a willingness to pay more taxes even "in view of the anti-Washington, anti-government, anti-tax mood," Patrick H. Caddell said in a speech Tuesday at a symposium on National Health Care sponsored by Blue Cross and Blue Shield.

Caddell, now president of Cambridge Survey Research, Inc., and an unofficial Carter adviser, said he expects the President will use data from the survey to develop a plan to expand the government's role in health care and insurance.

Numerous health insurance bills are pending in Congress and Health, Education and Welfare Secretary Joseph Califano has promised to present an administration plan to Carter by early next year.

Cadell says 43 per cent of the public is opposed to increased taxes while four per cent is undecided.

He said that 16 per cent of those polled wanted to keep the current health care system, 26 per cent wanted the federal government to pay insurance premiums for the poor, 34 per cent wanted a national health care program that guarantees medical treatment for all and 18 per cent favored a totally nationalized medical system. Another six per cent was undecided.

Pearl Crummer

Mrs. Pearl M. Crummer of 1565 College Ave., Pomona, died Tuesday in her home following a short illness.

Political arena

Eighteen of 36 city council candidates running for five seats on Rancho Cucamonga council will appear at a Cucamonga Chamber of Commerce question and answer lunch Oct. 12.

Site of the luncheon is Magic Lamp Inn at 8189 Foothill Blvd. in Cucamonga.

Each candidate will be allowed a brief statement of his reasons for running and qualifications.

Last month, 15 of 18 other candidates appeared at a similar luncheon.

Voters in Alta Loma, Cucamonga and Etiwanda will vote Nov. 8 on whether to incorporate as a city. At the same time they will vote for five city councilmen. But if the incorporation measure fails, council elections will be voided automatically.

Legislation by SEN. WILLIAM CAMPBELL, R-33rd Dist., Whittier, creating a small claims court hearing procedure for complaints involving disputed utility charges of $750 or less has been signed into law by GOVERNOR BROWN.

"This legislation will greatly benefit those Californians who are overbilled or who otherwise have legitimate complaints against utilities by allowing them to present their claims to the Public Utilities Commission through this expedited hearing procedure," said Campbell.

"Initiated S.B. 266 when a constituent of mine with 14 years of overcharges by a telephone company was faced with the possibility of retaining legal counsel in order to obtain her money.

"The enactment of this legislation will provide a greatly simplified alternative for consumers in California."

S. B. 266 takes effect in January.

The state general fund ended the 1976-77 fiscal year June 30 with an unrestricted surplus of $1.71 billion, a growth of almost a billion dollars in one year, STATE CONTROLLER KENNETH CORY reported.

The general fund unrestricted surplus was $982 million higher than for the prior year and was in addition to $242 million of federal revenue sharing monies deposited in a special fund until appropriated for use, Cory said.

The total general fund surplus was $1.84 billion from which was deducted $115.3 million as reserve for continuing appropriations, and $11.3 million as reserve for special accounts. The balance of $1.71 billion constituted the unrestricted surplus available for appropriation.

"This unprecedented surplus condition is the product of a year of inflation and economic growth in the state which far outstripped attempts to predict general fund revenues and expenditures," said Cory.

"The surplus gives the general fund a healthy head start in the current fiscal year but we cannot forget that a changeable economic climate carries no guarantee that such a surplus can be maintained."

Cory said a substantial surplus from the prior year allowed the general fund to operate through 1976-77 without internal borrowing to meet cash needs. It was the fifth consecutive year without such borrowing.

"Despite a phenomenal flow of revenues throughout the year, there still were five months when the cumulative cash disbursements exceeded the cumulative cash receipts," said Cory.

"This indicated the potential for cash flow problems still exists if revenues falter or expenditures increase in the future.

The surplus figure was part of Cory's annual preliminary financial statement for the general fund and all other governmental cost funds. Any subsequent changes will be reflected in the complete annual report of the state controller which will contain detailed accounting of all state funds.

Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. has given approval to ASSEMBLYMAN BILL McVITTIE'S efforts to protect property buyers from unscrupulous land sellers.

Signed by the governor was the Assembly Bill 815, which requires people selling land to disclose whether it has been divided in conformity with the Subdivision Map Act. The bill takes effect Jan. 1, 1978.

McVittie, D-65th Dist., Upland, said people purchasing some undeveloped land in California "are being taken for a ride."

"During legislative hearings on the bill, we heard case after case where people spent their life savings on property intending to build a retirement home or vacation retreat, and were then notified of their land's noncompliance with the Map Act.

"In order to bring about compliance, buyers are forced to locate additional money to pay for any required improvements such as drainage and roads," McVittie said.

The new law provides stiff penalties for people caught selling illegally divided land. The purchaser will be entitled to recover from the seller all costs of bringing the land into compliance, or have the sale voided and recover damages. In additon, any seller who violates the new land can be fined $1.000 and jailed for six months.

Spider: move over Miss Muffet

SEATTLE (AP) — Move over, Miss Muffet. It's getting crowded.

The spider population of King County seems to be on the rise, and cooler weather soon will force the crawly, eight-legged creatures indoors, says George Pinyuh of the County Extension Service.

"I have no scientific proof, but this long summer has made more insects so the spiders have a lot more to eat," he said.

Pinyuh says spiders are beneficial, but he's aware of the creature's public relations problem.

The Pinyuh Spider Prevention Plan is simple: "If it bothers you, step on it."

the ALL NEW

1978 BUICK AND OLDSMOBILE

1978 Oldsmobile

Can we build one for you?

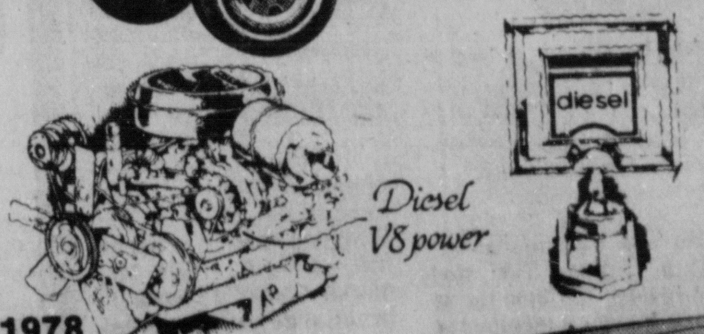
CUTLASS CALAIS

In the cockpit-where it all comes together. You, snug in that reclining bucket seat. Your hands easy on the custom-sport wheel. Full instrumentation tells you what's going on: Tachometer, engine temperature, oil pressure, voltage. All controls within reach. Now find a winding stretch of road. That's where you unmask the imposters and discover the real thing.

CUTLASS CRUISER

It rides much like a Cutlass sedan, works like a wagon, and offers impressive gas mileage.

Open a door and you'll see how easy it is to get in and out. Slip into the comfort of the full-foam seats and you're aware that we've increased front headroom and legroom, front and rear, over its '77 counterpart.



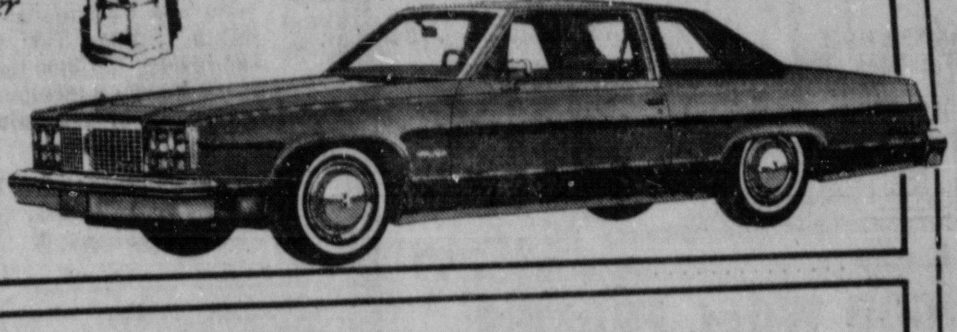
NEW FOR 1978

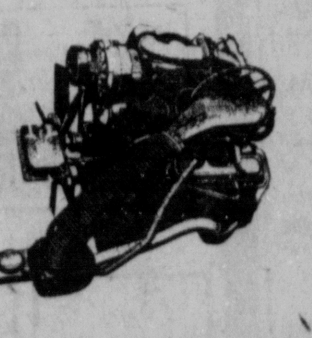
Oldsmobile offers a whole new kind of engine that combines the basic economy of a diesel with performance you wouldn't expect from a diesel.

It runs on money saving diesel fuel, yet it offers surprising acceleration and a liveliness the most powerful diesel foreign cars in America never had.

DELTA 88 ROYALE COUPE

Designed from the ground up to be one beautiful driving car. The shortened turning radius and taut wheelbase contributed to impressive maneuverability in city traffic. Positive caster in the front suspension was increased. Power steering, power brakes and automatic transmission are all standard, of course. And that first drive was an unforgettable experience. What you felt on the road was an exciting, beautiful sense of control. Which may be exactly what attracted so many new buyers in '77.





TURBOCHARGED V-6

Perhaps the biggest engine story since the V-6 itself, has to be the new 3.8 litre turbocharged V-6.

While somewhat unique to production automobiles, turbocharging is a tried and proven method of gaining added power from a given engine displacement. The turbocharger is designed to harness exhaust gases just as they leave the engine. These gases drive a turbine, thus the word "turbo," which in turn drives a compressor that forces an increased air/fuel charge" into the combustion chambers. As a result, this highly pressurized charge of fuel and air delivers more power per piston stroke. Hence the added punch when you put your foot down.

BUICK

A TRADITION FOR 75 YEARS

IF YOUR GOING TO PAY THE PRICE OF A BUICK WHY NOT OWN ONE?

REGAL

This is the 1978 Regal, a beautiful example of how we've employed science to meet the needs of the times. And, at the same time, maintained the magic of Buick's famed luxury ride. Regal for 1978. We've lavished it with science to improve its roadability. And we've touched it with magic to make it luxurious and fun to drive.

CENTURY SEDAN

There are three new Century Sedans: Special, Custom and Limited. These new Sedans also feature fixed, second-seat windows and swingout rear vent windows that provide ventilation for rear-seat passengers. Operation is manual, with a power option available. And if you're used to a smaller car, Century is a great way to get interior room, Buick ride, and still have a car that's a joy to drive.

ELECTRA 225 COUPE

Inside the new Electra, function and opulence coexist happily.

Here there is spacious seating for six. And what beautiful seating it is. Depending on the model you desire, your fabric choice takes in a broad range of materials and colors. Everything from textures vinyl to buttoned-and-tufted crushed velour. The seats themselves feature full-foam construction for comfort.

Your feet rest on deep, cut-pile carpeting. Overhead, the ceiling is covered in elegant fabric.

Master plan is subject of tri-communities tour

Tours of Alta Loma, Cucamonga and Etiwanda areas of San Bernardino County's West End will be conducted by county planning commissioners Thursday followed by a citizens' seminar to discuss the area's growth and general plan.

Purpose of the 7 p.m. meeting with residents of the tri-community neighborhood is to acquaint citizens with the county's overall environmental and growth plan for the region, according to county planning intern Maryann Cordova.

Work on the tri-community general plan began last January, well before citizens of the area filed for an election next month to determine if residents want the area incorporated into the city of Rancho Cucamonga. If voters turn down the incorporation bid Nov. 8, the plan will be adopted subject to county supervisors' approval and amendments.

If Rancho Cucamonga is voted into existence, the newly formed city council can either adopt the county's general plan for the area, portions of it or scrap it altogether and start from scratch, Miss Cordova said.

A building moratorium ended Aug. 1, allowing subdividers to proceed with large developments held in limbo several months. But new restrictions have been enacted effective Aug. 3 which makes winning subdivision approval much more difficult to obtain, Miss Cordova said.

Thursday night's meeting at Alta Loma Elementary School, open to all residents of the tri-community area, will deal with overall generalities and not specifics, Miss Cordova said.

MSAC band in Arizona

The Mt. San Antonio College musical band will appear in the annual London Bridge Days parade Saturday at Lake Havasu City, Ariz.

The parade traditionally inaugurates the climax day of Lake Havasu City's festival which this year celebrates the sixth anniversary of the opening of the London Bridge at this resort city on the Colorado River.

Recycling center goes to market

Offering a more convenient recycling location to serve residents of several communities, Reynolds Aluminum Recycling Co. has moved its mobile collection unit from San Dimas to become a part of Vons Grocery Co.'s environmental program in La Verne.

Each Tuesday from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m., the unit is at the Vons supermarket, 1475 Foothill Blvd. Reynolds pays 17 cents a pound for aluminum cans and other clean household aluminum.

Jim Nutter, Reynolds plant manager, said the new location is less than three miles from the discontinued San Dimas site at 1039 W. Arrow Highway. "We certainly thank San Dimas residents for their support and hope they will continue to recycle at the new location," he said.

Vons, in cooperation with Reynolds, has aluminum recycling collections at participating supermarkets throughout Southern California. Reynolds operates more than 800 outlets.

Montclair gives approval to federal grant projects

By MAE TATE
PB Staff Writer

The Montclair City Council approved Monday a tentative project and appropriations list for the expenditure of $248,572 in Community Development Block Grant Act funds for 1978-79.

The council accepted the recommendations from its Community Participation Advisory Committee, giving the biggest chunk of the available dollars — $150,000 — to housing improvement projects.

The number one priority for housing improvement includes rehabilitation loans and grants and repair service grants.

Housing coordinator Lee McDougal detailed the other project allocations as code enforcement, $40,000; park improvements, $17,000; public improvements, including street and handicapped curb ramp improvements, $23,000; and contingency/local option account, $18,572.

McDougal noted that the total $248,572 is not an exact figure and said the actual allocation may differ 10 per cent one way or the other. He recommended that any decrease or increase in the allocation be channeled from or into the contingency account.

In another CDA issue, McDougal recommended that the council rechannel $64,500 into four other projects because of a previous council decision to pay consulting fees for a redevelopment feasibility study from 1976-77 funds. That study by Urban Projects Inc. had previously been scheduled to be paid for out of community development dollars in the 1977-78 budget.

"Because UPI is being compensated with funds from previous years' grant allocations, it is not necessary to budget 1977-78 CDA funds for this purpose. Therefore, staff is recommending the surplus appropriation of $64,500 be transferred to other ongoing eligible CDA projects," McDougal read from his written report.

The reappropriations are the Central Avenue development program, $12,500; repair service program, $20,000; park improvements, $20,000; and street improvements, $12,000.

Homecoming court for Walnut named

By NORMA ORTIZ
Walnut Correspondent

The senior class of Walnut High School has voted on the 1977 homecoming court. The nominees for homecoming queen and king were announced on Sept. 23. They are princesses Patty Batista, Charise Galbraith, Shelly Hillseth, Karen Motcshall, Jackie Paulson, Cindy Pearson, Sandy Renne, Wendy Saviola, Kim Snyder and Julie Valdez, and princes Andy Crowe, Pat Flaherty, Mario Flores, Steve Green, Brad Hurst, Bill McMillan, Jim Morey, Tony Rossi, Bill Sapulding, and Doug Vind.

The crowning of the queen and king will take place on Friday, after voting by the student body.

TV violence study concludes changes should be demanded

A report on television violence and juvenile crime presented to the Los Angeles County Board of Education concludes that there is "good reason for demanding changes" in television programming.

Presented by Chief Deputy Supt. E. Maylon Drake, the seven-page report summarizes the reasons the Los Angeles County Superintendent of Schools office has taken the position that prevailing concentration of violence on television is detrimental to school-age children.

"One of the major concerns of those involved in television violence research is the blase, unfeeling attitude many children develop toward violent acts, due to the number of such acts they are exposed to on television," the report states.

It further notes "the typical child, upon high school graduation, will have witnessed over 100,000 violent acts, 13,000 of which will be fatal shootings, knifings, beatings, poisonings, etc."

The report, "Television Violence and Its Relationship to Aggressive Behavior," was prepared by the county school office staff in response to a July 12 motion of the county Board of Supervisors that the impact of television violence upon children should be reviewed by the County Superintendent of Schools, Richard M. Clowes.

In a letter to the county supervisor, Clowes wrote: "It is the position of this office that continued emphasis on violence in television programming is detrimental to children, to the educational process, and the development of responsible citizenship in a free society."

Clowes noted that in one evening of standard television fare, a viewer witnesses more violence than the average person sees in a lifetime. Although a casual relationship between this violence and juvenile crime cannot be scientifically established, he added, studies indicate that television violence stimulates aggressive behavior in children.

The report, presented to the county board of education, concludes that a passive attitude toward television programming is not acceptable. Quoting from a 1975 study of the problem, "Television Violence and the Child," by Douglass Cater and Stephen Strickland, the report closes with the warning: ". . . to do nothing is to do something."

O-M schools have parent night

Two schools in the Ontario-Montclair School District have scheduled back-to-school nights for parents on Thursday and Oct. 13.

Cypress Orthopedic School will hold its back-to-school program Thursday at 6 p.m. There will be a potluck dinner.

Vineyard School will have its back-to-school event on Oct. 13 from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. The school's event is being called an open house and ice cream social.

Parents' class offered

A parent effectiveness training program will begin Thursday at 7:30 p.m. at 586 N. Main St., suite 102, Pomona.

The program, sponsored by the Pomona First Baptist Church, teaches skills and methods of relating between the parents and children.

Carol Reinberger, the instructor, worked last summer with Lyman Coleman (Faith at Work) and uses the program in her work with parents in the Ontario-Montclair School District.

The cost will be $100 per couple, or $65 per person. The first session is open to the public at no cost. Classes will meet from 7:30 to 10:30 p.m. Thursdays for nine weeks. For more information, persons may phone the church's Creative Counseling Center at 622-0038.

Underwater films shown

Dr. Alan Menkes, Claremont physician, will show films taken during underwater exploration at the Thursday noon meeting of the Claremont Kiwanis Club at Griswold's.

Dr. Menkes dives into the fascinating world beneath the sea and records what he finds. The films cover trips to Hawaii and Tahiti.

The physician graduated from the Philadelphia College of Osteopathic Medicine and practiced in Michigan and Florida before moving to California in 1976.

Camera Club

The Pomona Valley Camera Club will feature Jo Ann Fitzgibbons of Upland Thursday at 7:30 p.m. at the First Christian Church, Pomona.

She will speak on the fashion field as to its place in photography, with emphasis on color harmony, proper clothes and skin make up that matches the individual.

Club members have won recognition at the Los Angeles County Fair in the field of photography. Elaine Jeche received "honorable mention" in nature division; John Reed, an acceptance in the same division, and Pete Petersen, three awards in the print color division.

The meeting is open to the public and there is no charge.

Language survey

During the week of Oct. 10, Walnut Valley Unified School District will conduct its survey on primary languages spoken in the home.

This survey is required by California law. The same survey will be used by all districts in the state. It was developed by the State Department of Education.

The survey will be sent home with students. Parents are urged to respond to the simple questionnaire promptly so the district can meet the state requirements.

Princess program

The fathers and daughters of the Indian Nation of Y-Indian Princesses of the Diamond Bar-Walnut YMCA will be camping out this weekend at McGrath State Park in Oxnard.

This is a twice a year function of the father-daughter organization. It provides a chance for each father and daughter to share in many rewarding experiences.

For further information about the Y-Indian Princesses, persons may contact the Diamond Bar-Walnut YMCA at 595-5015.

Trailblazers program

The Trailblazers of the Diamond Bar-Walnut YMCA will camp at Aquatic Park in Carlsbad Oct. 15 and 16.

The Trailblazers is an organization of fathers and children, grades four through eight which meets through the guidance of the YMCA.

For further information regarding the Trailblazers, persons may contact the Diamond Bar-Walnut YMCA at 595-5015.

Bilingual program

Pomona Unified School District's Bilingual Education Program recently began operation of its bilingual preschool classes at Lexington, Madison and Philadelphia elementary schools.

The program is accepting applications for enrollment of children three and four years old who do not already participate in another preschool or day care program. No income criteria is involved. For additional information, persons may call the Bilingual Resource Center, located at Roosevelt Elementary School at 623-8997.

Halloween party

The Toddlers, a preschool program of the Diamond Bar-Walnut YMCA, will hold their annual Halloween party Oct. 27 and 28.

This year the Toddler board mothers will also sponsor a free carnival for the students of the preschool where toddlers can pit their talents against the games.

The entire preschool will be converted into haunted mansions and carnival fairways for this event.

Graphic arts class

A class in reprographics (graphic arts) is being offered at the San Dimas High School on Wednesday evenings. Instructor Don Siechert said the class is designed primarily for the working craftsman who wishes to expand or improve skills, particularly in the preparation phase of layout, darkroom work, stripping and platemaking.

Experience on presses and bindery equipment will also be available. The non-refundable tuition fee of $3 is payable at the first or second meeting of the class.

Persons may call the school district at 599-6787 for further information.

DAR has 12 'Madonna' statues

Chapters of the National Society of Daughters of the American Revolution (DAR) are responsible for 12 identical "The Madonna of the Trail" statues across the country, including one at Euclid Avenue and Foothill Boulevard in Upland.

A recent article in the Progress Bulletin explained that Mrs. Marie Kappan of La Verne is the daughter of the baby depicted in the statue.

An article in the October 1969 DAR magazine by Helen Bartlett explains how it all happened.

In 1909, a group of Missouri women decided the Sante Fe Trail should be marked by statues honoring pioneer women. The National Old Trail Road Association was formed.

German sculptor August Leimbach, who had arrived in St. Louis, Mo., in 1910, was retained. Mrs. John T. Moss of St. Louis, National DAR Commission chairman, made some sketches of what the women wanted.

Leimbach, using Amanda Kermott and her two children, Frank, 6, and tiny Maude, as models created the statues from Missouri granite.

He charged the DAR $1,000 per statue. They also had to pay shipping and foundation costs. Each statue is 10 feet tall and weighs five tons. It sits on a 6-foot-high base weighing 12 tons and is mounted on a buried foundation. The statues were erected in 1928-1929.

In addition to the one in Upland, other copies of the statue may be seen in Bethesda, Md., Washington, Pa., Wheeling, W. Va., Springfield, Ohio, Richmond, Ind., Vandalia, Ill., Lexington, Mo., Council Grove, Kan., Lamar, Colo., Albuquerque, N.M., and Springerville, Ariz.

The "Madonna," quoted Mrs. Bartlett in her magazine article, "is a sturdy, work-hardened woman showing fortitude and perserverance, peering into the future."

Tri-community goals aired

Goals for the tri-communities area encompassing Alta Loma, Cucamonga and Etiwanda will be discussed between citizens and San Bernardino County planning commissioners Thursday.

Set for 7 p.m. at Alta Loma Elementary School, commissioners and citizens will hear reports from planning department staff members outlining growth and a new general

Planning department members drafted a new general plan to incorporate solutions to problems brought about by rapid recent growth in the West End communities.

Plans were drafted to be used if the area incorporates in an election set Nov. 8.

All residents of the area may attend the public meeting.

Smithsonian Institution

The Smithsonian Institution was established by an Act of Congress in 1846 as a result of a bequest by British scholar-scientist James Smithson who requested the United States to found at Washington "an establishment for the increase and diffusion of knowledge among men." Mother's little yelpers

By Karen Blaker, Ph.D.

DEAR DR. BLAKER — I absolutely cannot get my children to pitch in with chores around the house. I come home from work exhausted and try to convince them to help. They object, complain and even cry. Over the years, to tell you the truth, I have found that it actually takes less energy just to do everything myself. They are 10 and 12 years old. Shouldn't they be old enough to understand since their father and I were divorced, and I've had to go to work myself, it just isn't like the good old days? Why do they keep making my life so unbearable?

DEAR READER — I imagine that in the "good old days" you DID all the household work. Instead of punishing yourself for the changed circumstances however, you need to ask yourself whether or not the "good old days" way was in fact the best approach for raising your children. I believe that when children adapt to doing certain household chores, they are preparing themselves for the repetitive, sometimes boring, but necessary tasks of adulthood.

Surely you wouldn't want them to turn out like a former patient of mine who never had to take responsibilities at home. He grew up believing instead, in the "infinite variety of life's experiences." But he encountered severe problems in his job as a carpenter. While he loved carving the first leg of a chair, he could not bring himself to finish the other three. It went against his grain, so to speak.

If in the past you have been able to influence your children not to play with knives, or not to take rides with strangers, or not to cheat on exams, you CAN influence them to help you around the house, You can, if you really want help.

It may be that you are more doubtful of your children's love since the divorce and need to continue the "old" kinds of mothering tasks to reassure yourself that you are still a lovable mother. You ask their help but they sense that you are not serious.

A solution: Hold a family meeting. Make a list of the chores. Divide them up. A matter-of-fact approach is the most helpful. Expect them to follow through faithfully and have certain consequences ready for the times they will test you, — as they most certainly will. The less ambivalent you are, the less struggle you will encounter from them. And believe it or not, you will be loved more than before.

A martyred mother clutters a household with guilt, pain and anger. Her anger is a major obstacle to freely exchanged love. Even if your children don't provide you with a spotless house (remember they are not yet adults), the change will have a cleansing effect — emotionally. Good luck.

Write to Dr. Blaker in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 489, Radio City Station, New York NY 10019. Due to volume of mail she cannot reply personally, but questions of general interest will be discussed in future columns.

Hammock use is still popular

WASHINGTON (AP) — About 10,000 hammocks will be sold in the United States in 1977, according to a National Geographic Society survey of the $5-million-a-year industry.

The society says Christopher Columbus and his men were the first Europeans to see a hammock, which was used by the Arawak Indians. They called it a "hamaca." They soon found that the highly portable sleeping device was ideal for island living as well as sea travel.

British sailing tars were allowed 14 inches of width in which to sling their tough canvas hammocks in the heyday of English naval power. Petty officers were given two feet. The U.S. Navy did not give up using hammocks until World War II.

'American Graffiti' alive

Saturday night in Medford for the young

By MURRAY OLDERMAN

MEDFORD, Ore. (NEA) — Saturday night in this southern Oregon lumber center should convince anyone that the whole world is aged 15 to 25.

Or at least that's the way it looks on Central Avenue once dusk settles over the Rogue River country and the neon lights go on to announce beauty shops, vacuum cleaners, hardware and pizza.

By 8 p.m., the traffic is bumper to bumper where Main crosses Central. It has been going on like this for five years, the guy at the Shell Station tells me. And maybe you can blame George Lucas and the film "American Graffiti" — for that signalled the revival of cruising in Medford and Modesto and Walla Walla and maybe 1,000 other small cities in America.

The kids really get brazen, too. Even a middle-aged intruder in nondescript slacks and sneakers is flattered when the blonde in the Camaro shouts as she zips by, "Hey, you're good looking."

In the corner window of Monte's Shoe Store, facing the intersection of Central and Main, Jerry Allen, a local disk jockey for station KYCZ is winding down toward the final hours of a muscular dystrophy marathon broadcast. He's gone without sleep for four straight days, and a young brunette standing behind him massages his shoulders to ease the fatigue.

Half a block down the street, at the Craterion Theater, "Star Wars" is the feature attraction and, miracle of miracles, the line doesn't even extend around the corner. For city folks, it's a perfect time to catch Lucas' latest cinema opus. And, while standing in the modest line for the 9 o'clock show, still watch the motorized parade down Central Avenue.

There's a steady var-r-r-oom of four-wheel drive pickups, jeeps, Camaros, Mustangs, Darts and even one big Mack truck — without the van. They're piloted by boys and girls in flowing hair (both boys and girls). There's no mingling. Boys are with boys as passengers; girls are with girls.

This makes us question Patty and Joannie, who are standing behind us in line, about the phenomenon of unisex. Patty and Joannie are high school freshmen (freshpersons?). Patty confesses that she has seen the movie four times so far because "it's neat."

How come they don't have dates? Where are the guys?

"The guys aren't here," shrugs Joannie, "because they're somewhere else making out."

In front of us are a couple of husky, handsome high school seniors who are also standing in line for the show. Why aren't they cruising?

"Plenty of time for that," scoffs Hank. "It doesn't really get heavy till after the movie lets out. We don't start till midnight."

Thirteen miles down the road from Medford is picturesque Ashland, where a Shakespeare festival reigns all summer and where there isn't a single motel room available.

Patty and Joannie know all about it, but they've never been. "That's for tourists," says Patty. "By the way, what are you guys doing here?"

No motel reservation, it is explained. And no ticket to the Shakespeare Theater. So we had to track all the way to the big city of Medford (population, 28,000) to bunk down at the Red Lion Motel, which had a sunken tub in the room at the princely price of 30 bucks a night and a terrific buffet in the restaurant for dinner — roast beef, fried chicken, spare ribs, with salad bar and dessert, all you can eat, for $5.75 a head.

It's only a short walk to all the action at the intersection of Central and Main. There's only one disconcerting note on this Saturday night in Oregon.

While all the young people are chasing frenetically up and down the boulevards, across the street from where Jerry Allen is broadcasting in the shoe store, in the United Bank building, on the second floor, there's a light on in the office.

A young guy in his 20s, sleeves rolled up, is at a desk. You can see him clearly through the open window. His head doesn't raise once as the little world around him cruises by in that strange, aimless pattern of kids passing time.

The young guy is actually working.

Discharge review ends

WASHINGTON (AP) — Time has run out in the Pentagon's six-month campaign to review less than honorable Vietnam-era discharges.

There will be no more special toll-free numbers, no more operators standing by in St. Louis to handle the calls.

The Pentagon says some 16,227 discharges were upgraded through the end of last week.

Army, Navy, Marine and Air Force discharge review boards still face 8,600 cases pending under the program, announced in April as the second part of President Carter's effort to heal the divisiveness of the Vietnam War.

But beginning today all discharge reviews "will be processed under normal Department of Defense procedures using written application procedures."

Despite the small percentage taking part of almost half a million eligible ex-servicemen, the Pentagon feels the program has been a success.

The possibility of review was open to an estimated 420,000 one-time servicemen who received general or dishonorable discharges between Aug. 4, 1964 and March 28, 1973. Of them, about 60,000 decided to call 800-325-4040, where operators were at work near a military records center in Missouri.

Spokesman John Becher said Monday the Pentagon's most recent figures show undesirable discharges received by 11,364 Vietnam-era veterans were upgraded to general status. He said 1,682 undesirable discharges were reclassified as honorable.

Becher also said 3,181 former GIs had their general discharges upgraded to honorable.

In addition, 1,065 Vietnam-era deserters — out of an estimated 4,560 — inquired about discharges. Of the total, 784 "returned to military control" and received discharges, mostly undesirable, officials said.

"We feel the program is a success from the number of undesirables participating," Becher said, especially because "this is a program whereby the individual had to take the initiative to participate."

One of those who decided against taking the initiative was Jack Carter, the 29-year-old son of the President.

The young Carter received a general discharge in late 1970 after he and 53 classmates were caught smoking marijuana at the Navy Nuclear Power School in Idaho Falls, Idaho.

The President's son said in April he would not seek a review of his case.

Search on for a new county tax assessor

By BOB NAGEY
PB Staff Writer

The Los Angeles County Board of Supervisors began a search today for a successor to county Assessor Philip E. Watson.

Watson is resigning his $49,500 a year job in December.

The county retirement board began consideration of his claim for disability. Watson contends his recent heart ailment was caused by the pressure of his job. If the retirement board agrees, he will be paid $25,000 a year, tax free, for the rest of his life.

The supervisors, who have been conducting a running battle with Watson for the past 1½ years, Tuesday set the format for finding someone to succeed the county assessor.

They agreed to a plan where each would nominate four possible candidates for the position, and then the 20 aspirants would be interviewed publicly. The deadline for submitting applications to the board is Oct. 18.

The supervisors urged all persons interested in the job to submit applications to individual members as soon as possible.

Although the 20 finalists would represent the best of the applicants, some supervisors believe there aren't that many qualified candidates seeking the job.

Supervisor Kenneth Hahn said that although there is "no other office in California that has so much power to affect the taxes, the political plum has turned into a prune that few people want."

The reference was to the scrutiny which the assessor's office has been undergoing in the past years.

Supervisor Peter Scabarum agreed "nobody wants to put his head on the chopping block at this time."

"If nobody wants the job, we may have to draft an assessor," Hahn answered. The supervisors were unanimous in their beliefs that they did not want a "caretaker" until the term expires a year from now.

They defined as a "caretaker" someone from the assessor's office who would serve as a temporary assessor until the next election.

Supervisor Ed Edelman said the assessor's office has had no leadership for the past year or two.

"We need to restore leadership to this important office," he declared.

Pomona teachers' group blasts district leadership

By DAN NIEBRUGGE
PB Staff Writer

Angered over the overcrowding situation in district schools as well as a letter termed "threatening and intimidating" sent to several district teachers, the Associated Pomona Teachers sharply criticized the Pomona school board and administration Tuesday evening.

In separate presentations to the board, APT Executive Secretary Del Pfeifer and APT President Steve Enoch accused the district of administrative incompetence in both areas.

Pfeifer told trustees that several district teachers had received letters from the personnel office informing them that they had not met the district requirements for special training in minority awareness. Pfeifer said that in many instances the letters were completely incorrect and that letters of a "threatening and intimidating" nature had been sent to teachers who had completely met the district requirements and, in some cases, gone far beyond district requirements.

In some cases, Pfeifer alleged, letters had been sent to teachers who had helped develop and certify the programs themselves.

Pfeifer said the teachers had been told they would be reevaluated for their performances last year because they had not met the requirment and the new evaluation would be an unsatisfactory one.

Such a retroactive evaluation, he said, was in violation of the contract between the APT and the district.

The letter gave teachers until Feb. 1, 1978 to come into compliance with the regulations, even though many had already done so, said Pfeifer. He added that the letters had also been placed unjustly in the personnel files of the teachers involved.

"There has been no coordination between the site school, Intergroup or the personnel office in sending out these letters," said Pfeifer.

Enoch was less kind in presenting his complaints about the overcrowded conditions in the schools.

He told trustees of cases where psychologists in the district were working in seven-foot square kiln rooms without windows, heating or air conditioning; that English classes were being taught in long, narrow trailers with inadequate supplies and that an art class was being taught in a cafeteria with no supplies at all, not even a chalk board.

Sole response on the board came from trustee Eugene Whitlock who asked Pfeifer whether he had brought his concern regarding the letter through channels.

Pfeifer said he had and that he wished to also inform the board of the situation in public.

"I'm interested in seeing that nobody tries an end run," said Whitlock.

Central district special vote set

A special election will be held Jan. 17 to fill a seat on the Central school board in Cucamonga left vacant by the recent resignation of Richard Clements.

Petitions filed by residents have been validated by the county registrar of voters, paving the way for the election.

A group of citizens headed by Charles Miller of 7781 Valle Vista Drive, Cucamonga, reportedly is angered by the board's recent appointment of former trustee Patton Lewis to fill the vacancy.

By filing the petitions containing at least 5 per cent of the registered voters who cast ballots in the last election, the citizens have successfully challenged the Lewis appointment. They have forced the special election.

A spokesman for the registrar said prospective candidates may begin filing their papers on Oct. 20. The filing deadline will be Nov. 10 at 5 p.m.

Paint sale protest

Chino amends spray can law

By BOB SWETNAM JR.
PB Staff Writer

The Chino City Council Tuesday night amended a recently passed anti-graffiti ordinance that regulates the sale and distribution of aerosal spray paint cans in the city.

Police Chief Gerald Doyle reported local merchants had objected to an ordinance section that prohibited the sale of spray paint cans from self-help and self-service counters.

The ordinance had also prohibited the sale of spray paint to minors and made possession of such cans by juveniles a criminal act.

Merchants who testified Tuesday night did not object to the section which prohibits the sale and possession by minors. They were concerned that city officials would force them to put spray paint cans under lock and key. They claimed this would be expensive.

The council, on a 3-2 vote, agreed to amend the ordinance to allow spray paint to continue to be sold from self-service counters provided the counters are under direct supervision of store employees.

Doyle said he was opposed to amending the ordinance because it would "water it down to the point of making it ineffective."

He said police were concerned that once the sale of spray paint to minors becomes illegal in Chino the incidence of shoplifting will increase.

"It could become a problem. Kids may try and shoplift the stuff. In some circles, it would even be like a merit badge to steal spray paint," Doyle commented.

Merchants, however, disagreed with the police chief's analysis. They said shoplifting of spray paint had never before been a problem and that merchants could self-police themselves to prevent it. They said present shoplifting laws were adequate to control the situation.

"We find that the anti-graffiti ordinance goes too far," said merchant Barry Johnson. He supported the prohibition of minors possessing spray paint, but said he would be forced to sell his stock of spray paint if anamendment were not passed.

Johnson said that a series of rewards should be offered to help in the apprehension of graffiti offenders.

The idea of rewards, however, did not meet approval by Council member Eileen Carter.

"Rewards haven't caught cold-blooded murderers in this town," she said, alluding to huge rewards offered after two church workers in Chino were slain by unidentified gunmen in 1976.

Mrs. Carter, who strongly opposed amending the ordinance, also had some harsh words for some area merchants. "Some of them are chronic complainers," she said.

The councilwoman said she was disappointed that area businessmen had not taken the lead in trying to prevent graffiti in the city and claimed merchants could not prevent shoplifting as they claimed they could.

Counciiman Angel Martinez also opposed the anti-graffiti amendment, but for different reasons. He sympathized with the concerns of merchants and said adopting the ordinance in the first place may have been a mistake.

"I'm not very happy with this (ordinance)," he said. "I'm a big believer in people governing themselves."

Councilmen Pete Garcia and Leonard Frketich joined with Mayor Bob McLeod in supporting the anti-graffiti ordinance amendment.

The new wording will allow Chino merchants to sell spray paint from unlocked displays, but makes it unlawful to sell the paint from any self-service or self-help counter "that is not constantly supervised by store personnel."

Mayor Bob McLeod recommended Doyle investigate the effect of the ordinance and report back to the City Council at a later date.

If the amendment is unsuccessful, McLeod indicated the council might make the law more stringent.

San Dimas council condemns statewide insurance proposal

By CONRAD CASLER
PB Staff Writer

Condemnation of Los Angeles County Supervisor Kenny Hahn's statewide standardized auto insurance plan was passed in a resolution by San Dimas city councilmen Tuesday night.

City Administrator Bob Poff said Hahn's measure now is being readied for submission to the state Legislature.

Hahn is attempting to standardize auto insurance rates across the state rather than maintaining the present system in which residents of inner cities where more accidents occur pay more for auto insurance than suburbanites.

Councilman Phil Wax blasted Hahn's plan as unfair, citing figures of from 15 to 35 per cent hikes in auto insurance costs for valley residents if Hahn's measure were passed by the Legislature. Suburban drivers now have better driving records with fewer accidents than inner city dwellers. This is reflected in rates paid annually, with outlying metropolitan residents paying substantially lower rates.

"It's totally unfair for good drivers to subsidize insurance for bad drivers," Wax said. He added that Hahn has attempted to force suburbanites to pay for inner city needs for years. "I'm tired of it," Wax said.

The council agreed unanimously to write official city letters to Supervisor Pete Schabarum, who represents the valley, local state assemblymen and senators urging defeat of Hahn's proposed legislation.

In other action, councilmen agreed to set up a joint commission to study sign ordinances on the request of merchants in San Dimas Canyon shopping center. Several merchants charged the city operates a dual standard — one for outlying businessmen and another for downtown merchants in the Early California development district. They charged discrimination in the number and size of signs allowed.

To be formed is a committee composed of members of the planning department staff, one or more city councilmen and members of the Chamber of Commerce.

County investigates judge's actions on drunken driving

The actions of a recently retired Covina judge who dismissed 38 drunk driving convictions on constitutional grounds before he left office Sept. 16 have come under fire by the Los Angeles County Board of Supervisors.

Supervisors approved a full investigation by County Counsel John Larson into what went on in the closed chambers of Citrus Municipal Court Judge William M. Martin in the late afternoon hours after court sessions.

According to Supervisor Kenneth Hahn, who says he is not sure himself, Judge Martin reversed his own decisions as well as the decisions of six other Citrus judges on drunk driving convistions which were two to three years old.

All of the clients reportedly were represented by the same West Covina attorney.

Martin's reconsiderations already have been appealed by Dist. Atty. John Van de Kamp. Deputy Atty. Gen. Jack T. Kerry has confirmed reports that his office is looking into the district attorney's allegations.

But Hahn was not satisfied with those developments.

"I want more than just an appeal," he declared Tuesday. "Appeals are easily forgotten. These are very serious charges, and they should be brought before the public."

Hahn said that if the charges are not true, the judge should be publicly exonerated.

However, if they are true, they represent a "flagrant miscarriage of justice, which deserves a full investigation."

The supervisors concurred.

Tri-community bond hearing tonight

A citizens committee recommendation that a bond measure be sought to build a second high school in the Alta Loma-Cucamonga-Etiwanda area will be the subject of a public hearing tonight.

The hearing, conducted by the Chaffey school board, will be held at 7 p.m. in Merton Hill Auditorium, 211 W. Fifth St., Ontario.

The Advisory Committee to Investigate Ongoing Needs (ACTION) recently presented its report to school trustees, recommending a March, 1978 bond election be called.

Already overcrowded Alta Loma High School could experience an enrollment increase of 1,200 to 1,800 students by the end of 1978, the committee states in its report.

Children's program

Children from three to five years old are invited to a series of stories, finger plays and games at the Chino library, starting Thursday at 10:30 a.m.

Mrs. Carol Christy will be the story teller. The programs will be held each week through Oct. 27. For more information, persons may phone 628-1604.

Coasting into fall

He stood in a trout stream, the cold, clear water running over his rubber boots, convinced that the fish would not bite. But it was Sunday and he was coasting. There was no driving need to bring fish home to eat or even to complete the ceremony of the hunt.

The fish kept their promise and did not bite.

No matter. It was good enough to stand there in the sight of granite mountains on the edge of Rocky Mountain National Park and be alone in the cool air, under a hot sun, with the thick fly line shooting back and forth over his head. He had enough to do with one hand on the rod, the other holding line and his feet trying for balance on the slippery rocks below the water.

The fishing was a few weeks ago. Now those days of ease have left us, slipping away all too quickly. Even September is a ghost, now. The time for coasting is gone.

It is time to get organized. It's time to set the alarm clock a bit early. It's time to get up in the morning, make a list of things to do, eat a quick breakfast and say good words to the kids to cheer them as they go off to the hassle of school.

It's time to confront the piles of things that are not done, the unkept promises that nag and nag, the messages that were never delivered.

But there is still too much of July and August in some. They can be seen in their cars, slipping the gears into neutral as they coast down hills, listening to sweet music on their radios as the other cars zip by. For them, Bert Lance, the SALT talks, slums, the search for manganese nodules on the sea bottom — all mean nothing.

They await the surge of energy that comes at the changing of a season — the brisk crack of heels on sidewalks, the sense of mission and drive that the cooler weather brings in.

Should he wait here for that sense of mission to arrive? On this street corner? In this room? Where's the line to stand in? Or should he force the matter to a crisis, grab hold and hurl himself into it?

Some of the young are angry at us for not forcing them in some direction, for not telling them to be doctors or to play the piano or to order them into college and law school.

"Why am I here?" they ask, as we asked ourselves at a similar age. "If someone would only aim me in some direction . . . "

But wise adults don't interfere. They tell the children to make the choice themselves.

After all, there is only one way. It is up to each of us to decide what to do. It is the burden and the blessing of a free man that he must do it all himself, take hold of his own life and move it, if it is ever to move at all. It is something we try to tell our children, but the words are so hard to say.

But all of us must sadly leave the days of summer coasting behind. We must do it ourselves.

The real pros start early

A study by the Rand Corp. has drawn one of the most useful profiles of the criminal personality we've seen. Paradoxically, there's little chance of putting this information to constructive use.

In a case study of 49 convicted armed robbers in California, the researchers found that there are two types of offenders: "intensive" or hardcore professional criminals and "intermittent" or amateur criminals.

It is the hardcore variety society has to worry about and the majority of the habitual felons in the study said nothing could have stopped them from taking up a life of crime — not the certainty of being caught, not longer sentences, not harsher prison treatment.

The differences between intensive and intermittent criminals show up in childhood, say the researchers. Both types, however, tend to become less criminally active as they grow older.

Thus the study's suggestion that if we could identify intensive criminals early in life and lock them up during their most active years, this might do more to reduce crime than any rehabilitation or prevention efforts.

Although the study used only a very tiny sampling of the nation's prison population, its authors believe their findings are significant and warrant further investigation.

We think so, too, because we certainly can't see society adopting its major recommendation at this time.

For one thing, there is the problem of identifying the budding hardcore criminal. As the study itself points out, the professional is five times less likely than the amateur to be arrested and "a meager arrest record often disguises a very active and dangerous criminal."

And even if we could distinguish between the pros and the amateurs in youth or early childhood, the idea of meting out long sentences to young offenders not only flies in the face of the time-honored penal practice but raises serious constitutional questions.

Age discrimination

Dear Editor:

The new law against mandatory retirement is of little meaning to people who have reached the age of 40 or 45 without a job. Chances are they will never again have a job.

The state and federal laws are so constantly flouted that almost every employer is a criminal, or should be. We have the unique situation whereby anyone who steals food to sustain his life can be jailed, but those who deny him the chance to work are never touched.

This habitual discrimination includes also such public employers as the city of Pomona. The job in question is an entry level position at minimum pay. And I did not so much as get an interview, even though my education and experience are far superior to any they might have in the preferred age bracket.

I have had three full years of graduate training in the field of administration. Anything more would amount to a Ph.D. to become an administrative assistant!

I have had more than 20 years administrative experience, some of it in major corporations. But we have the situation wherein 5 years experience is great, 10 years is less great, and 20 years has a negative value because no public administrator wants his assistant to have more education and experience than he has.

But, if so many public administrators openly violate our laws, why should anyone obey these laws?

We help Soviet spies

WASHINGTON — Not long ago, the General Services Administration cheerfully supplied the Soviet embassy with an "Inventory and Summary" of some of the Pentagon's most sensitive computer locations.

The obliging GSA volunteered, in the spirit of detente, that its staff would be "happy to assist you if there are any questions." No doubt the Soviets are curious about the secret computers, which track ship movements on the high seas and provide the Joint Chiefs with critical information about major weapons systems.

Some experts fear that the computer sites lack adequate controls and that top-secret messages might be intercepted. As early as 1974, the Systems Development Corporation warned that the computers "contain security deficiencies" and that "the entire system is vulnerable."

Our investigation has established, in fact, that various federal agencies furnish the Soviets with a massive volume of technical information. This amounts to over-the-counter espionage, with the cordial cooperation of the U.S. government.

Through this mass espionage effort, the Soviets dredge up tons of raw information. "I would guess 90 percent of it is worthless," one U.S. official told us. "But it's the remaining 10 percent that worries us."

Here's how it works: The two governments have agreed to exchange "official" publications. Each year, the United States delivers between 10,000 and 12,000 government documents to the Lenin State Library in Moscow. The Soviet Union, in turn, sends a similar shipment of Russian periodicals to the Library of Congress in Washington.

In quality if not quantity, the Soviets benefit the most from the exchange. These are documents, however, that neither side regards as sensitive. But the Soviets also receive from Washington a monthly master list of all nonclassified documents that the federal government publishes. Some contain details that would be classified in any other country, such as the location of the computer terminals.

The master list is indexed so the Soviets can easily determine which additional publications might contain valuable information. Soviet agents may purchase these directly or use surrogates to allay suspicion. Here are a few incidents we have uncovered:

— Two Soviet officials made separate approaches recently to the Office of Technology Assessment for a report on nuclear proliferation. They also asked to be put on the mailing list. Now all this office's reports are delivered to the Soviet embassy by the mailman.

— Czechoslovakia and Hungary quietly signed up for 10,000 selective reports each year from the National Technical Information Service. The two countries are completely under Soviet domination; both were put on the mailing list.

— Soviet representatives arranged with the Geological Survey Office to send detailed maps, surveys, geological data and other information to "academies" and "institutes" in Moscow. The agency happily complied.

— The Soviets receive the official Patent Gazette, a weekly publication, which lists all the new patents granted by the government. Agents can pick up the specific patents that interest them.

The locations of the computer sites were listed in an obscure publication entitled "Inventory and Summary of Federal ADP Activities." But the document wasn't so obscure that the Soviets missed it. The General Services Administration received a polite letter from the Soviet embassy.

"I shall appreciate it very much," wrote an embassy official, "if you can spare a copy of your recent publication, 'Inventory and Summary of Federal ADP Activities.' Thanking you in advance for your cooperation." The sensitive document was mailed to the embassy, with an accompanying "happy to assist" letter.

The General Accounting Office, meanwhile, warned the Pentagon in 1975 and again in 1976 that the security of this computer system was inadequate. This caused Reps. John Moss, D-Calif., and Charles Rose, D-N.C., to question the Pentagon about the security problems.

Canal balancing act

By MARTHA ANGLE
and ROBERT WALTERS

WASHINGTON (NEA) — A lot could change over the next few months, but right now it looks as though President Carter has only two chances of steering his Panama Canal treaties through the Senate intact: slim and none.

This is not a prediction that the Senate, come January or February, will refuse to consent to ratification of the twin pacts hammered out by Carter's representatives and the Panamanians after 13 years of on-and-off negotiations.

But it seems increasingly probable that a swing bloc of uncommitted senators will demand some modifications of the new treaties before they will provide the votes needed for approval by two-thirds of the Senate.

Administration officials have known from the outset that the domestic political fight over the new treaties might prove even more difficult than the negotiations with Panama. And their worst fears have been amply realized.

Even without prompting, public opinion has been running heavily against the new treaties. A coalition of conservative groups is now doing its best to deepen citizen opposition and focus it directly on the 30 or so senators who are undecided about ratification.

If they were acting in a vacuum, many of those senators might well be swayed by the detailed, cogently argued case for the new treaties which the State Department, Joint Chiefs of Staff and other administration witnesses began outlining to the Senate Foreign Relations Committee on Sept. 26.

But senators do not act in a vacuum. They read their mail — or at least count the letters "for" and "against." They watch the polls. They stew about the next election.

And that is why they are looking for a way to save face, politically, before they will risk their necks with an unpopular vote in support of the treaties.

Carter and his advisers understand the situation. At the opening day of the Foreign Relations Committee hearings, Secretary of State Cyrus Vance carefully avoided slamming the door on the possibility of modifications to the treaties.

But what the administration is desperately anxious to discourage are any changes by the Senate that could require U.S. and Panamanian negotiators to return to the bargaining table.

There are essentially four ways of modifying the treaties which have already been signed by the U.S. and Panama — two which are acceptable to Carter, and two which are not.

The Foreign Relations Committee and-or the Senate could vote for the treaties as drafted but adopt a separate report detailing the U.S. interpretation of crucial but ambiguous sections of the pacts, such as those guaranteeing the canal's permanent neutrality. Such a step would be acceptable to Carter but would have no legally binding impact on Panama.

Alternately, the Senate could attach to the treaties themselves certain "understandings" that likewise spell out the U.S. interpretation of cloudy points. Under international law, these "understandings" would in effect become part of the treaties themselves unless specifically rejected by Panama.

Vance hinted the administration would not object to the attachment of "understandings," but he left no doubt that Carter will vehemently oppose the other two options: "reservations" or "amendments."

With the first of these, the Senate would vote to ratify the treaty except for certain enumerated sections. Under the second approach, the Senate would actually amend the treaty language. Either technique would require the concurrence of Panama — which is precisely-what the administration fears.

These canal treaties are nearly as controversial in Panama as they are in the United States, and citizens of that nation will vote on the pacts Oct. 23 in a national plebiscite.

Carter is trapped in an extremely tricky dilemma. On the one hand, he will probably have to accept substantial modifications in the treaties to win enough votes for Senate ratification. But if the changes go too far, they may well be rejected by Panama.

It's going to be the neatest balancing act in town.

Just in jest

All I know is what I read in my newspaper; and the more I read the more convinced I become that we Americans are probably the most fortunate people in the world. For one thing, thanks to our high standards of living and fabulous pay scales, many status minded American gourmets think nothing of paying $51 for a 2-ounce dormouse fried in butter. Furthermore, life in these United States is far less subject to censure for females than it is in other parts of the world. Think how underprivileged women are in Malaysia where only a few days ago a woman was sentenced to serve two months in jail for living out of wedlock with a man — a 117 year old man at that. And in this enlightened land even college seniors have it made. A recent poll showed that a surprisingly large number of them think Tongsun Park is a government operated wilderness area. However, that in no way has interfered with their ability to graduate. One smart student, who no doubt went on to graduate summum cum laude, later explained he had meant to answer, government operated "bewilderment" area.

Legislative challenge

By EARL G. WATERS

Some recent vetoes of Gov. Jerry Brown may spur the efforts, as well as add to the numbers, of those solons who are seeking to recapture the legislative powers which have gradually been eroded over the years.

For, in several instances, Brown rejected legislative authority to determine the laws on the grounds that administrators are better able to make such decisions.

That was the case with SB 474 by Sen. John Foran. The measure related to length of notice insurance companies must give to insured when declining to renew auto insurance.

Said Brown in his veto "The ambiguities addressed by this measure can best be corrected by the Department of Insurance through the regulatory process."

Even more challenging to legislative authority was his veto of SB 282 by Sen. Robert Beverly which also related to insurance regulations.

In that veto Brown really tossed the gauntlet declaring: "This bill would reverse a regulation of the Department of Insurance which the Commissioner believes to be in the public interest."

The effect of such vetoes is to make the administrative agencies superior to the Legislature in the matter of lawmaking in complete contradiction of the constitution which clearly vests all power to make laws in the legislature.

Notwithstanding the explicit proviso of the constitution that legislative and executive powers shall be separate and neither shall exercise that of the other, Brown would make the administrator supreme.

His statement that he vetoed the Beverly bill because it reversed a ruling of the Insurance Commissioner is a flat out declaration that the administrator, not the legislature, shall make the laws.

This disposition to take lawmaking away from the 120 elected representatives of the people and place it in the hands of one man, an appointee not responsible to the electorate, illustrates the degree to which bureaucratic power threatens.

It is the difficulty in overturning administrative regulations adopted contrary to legislative policy which led Sen. George Zenovich and Assemblyman Willie Brown to commence a movement to make all administrative regulations subject to ratification by the legislature. They have been joined by numerous other solons in the efforts to control bureaucracy.

As it stands, through powers delegated to the administrative agencies by earlier legislatures, a commissioner or other bureaucrat may adopt regulations without the approval, and often without the knowledge, of the legislature. In some instances these are contrary to legislative desires and even to existing law.

Yet, such regulations have the same force and effect as statutory laws. And, as evidenced by Brown's veto, often cannot be reversed by the legislature.

While Zenovich's measure, as well as others to curb administrative rule making powers, is still pending, it can be expected that such actions as Brown's veto of the Beverly bill will bolster the solons' determination to regain control of their constitutional powers.

Pooch OK'd for wilderness area

DEAR DR. MILLER: Shortly we will be heading into a U.S. Wilderness Area and hope to take our pooch along. Will he be legal there? — A.Y.

DEAR A.Y.: Yes, but he must be on leash in campgrounds and under constant control on the trails. A rabies vaccination is not required but is certainly advisable.

DEAR DR. MILLER: Ever since I was pregnant the first time three years ago, my husband's insisted on cleaning and changing the cats' box every other day. It's a bit of a bore. I think he's being overly fastidious, don't you? — D.N.

DEAR D.N.: Not really. This makes considerable sanitary sense since it breaks up the cycle of feline parasites potentially transmissible to humans. Feline parasites are seldom a threat to adult humans, but yet-unborn and children are most susceptible groups. This simple expedient of frequent cat box changes is by far the most effective method of eliminating any such hazard.

DEAR DR. MILLER: Mama Mia, my little mouse, has done it again! She just had another litter. That makes a litter a month for the last year. Is this some kind of record? — L.R.

DEAR L.R.: Certainly it is for Mama — but not for other mousy mothers, since some have produced as many as 17 litters in a year's time. Even so, Mama has done magnificently and deserves a rest from here on.

DECISION TIME FOR THE BIRDS

Some birds are deciding about now whether to head into normal migratory flight or hang around here where they have been getting daily handouts. It can be a life or death decision for some of them. If you have been feeding birds to the point where they are now dependent on you, you must now make a quick decision to follow through from now until spring or to quit immediately while the migratory birds may still have a choice. Chopping off the chow line now could be tough on the birds but far less so than carrying them through until they are committed to staying for the winter and then leaving that feeder empty. You can't in good conscience feed birds now without planning to continue feeding them through the long tough months which lie ahead. (The dangers of a migratory flight are less for the bird than hanging around here for handouts which may be forgotten at a critical time.)

Astrographs

By Bernice Bede Osol
For Thursday, Oct. 6, 1977
Your Birthday, Oct. 6, 1977

Don't be afraid to be a dreamer this coming year. Dreams can become wishes, wishes can become ambitions and ambitions can become goals that can be attained.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Fresh new projects are favored for you today, especially if they're in the early stages. Lay a solid foundation. They'll produce. Having trouble selecting a career? Send for your copy of Astro-Graph Letter. Mail 50 cents for each and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Astro-Graph, P.O. Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify your birth sign.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Insights or hunches regarding your career or financial matters are reliable today. They can put you a step or two ahead of the pack.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Your strength lies in your philosophical approach today. You see things as a part of the whole, not in their limited and narrow scope.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Be alert today as to the possibility of embarking on a venture with a person in tune with your thinking. A chance remark could spark it.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Even if you have to modify your opinion, it's vital that you maintain harmonious relations today with those important to you.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Conditions look very promising today in matters affecting your career and income. Be ready to move on situations that could be beneficial.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Associate today with people who are of a creative bent. You'll find you'll come up with some very bright ideas yourself.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Take time to think things out very carefully today. The more you dwell on a subject, the more you'll be aware of all its ramifications.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) People find you're fun to be around today. You can show them the lighter side of things they find serious or worrisome.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) In commercial or business dealings today, you're very imaginative. The profit picture you see in your mind's eye could be even better in reality.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You have a natural flair for the dramatic, and today that quality is even more pronounced. This will help you most in selling or public speaking.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Be patient today, particularly if you're waiting for something to hatch that involves material gain. Ships come in over calm seas.

Ann Landers

A wide range of tolerance

Dear Ann Landers: Will you tell me what is wrong with a man who comes home dead drunk at least twice a week? He makes it to the door, then collapses and is unable to walk or talk. I know he is an alcoholic. What I can't figure out is how in the world he can get into such a state of drunkenness on three eight-ounce glasses of BEER!

How is it possible for such a small amount of alcohol to change an intelligent, good-looking, 50-year-old man into an immobilized, drooling, mindless wreck? I'd appreciate an answer. — His Wife

Dear Wife: Some people can get bent out of shape on less than what your husband drinks, while others can put away a fifth of bourbon and scarcely show it. It all depends on the individual's threshold of tolerance — and obviously, your husband's is very low.

Dear Ann: My wife and I have been married for 12 years. I have a good job, we have a nice home and three lovely children.

Trudy is a wonderful woman — a full-time homemaker and mother. I work nights. I came home early a couple of times last week (didn't feel well) and found a man in my house. When I asked Trudy what he was doing there, she said he was just driving by and stopped in to say hello. When I asked her how long this had been going on, she replied, "About six years."

Trudy says the reason she didn't tell me about his visits was because she didn't want to upset me. Now that I know, I am deeply hurt that she lived with this secret for so long. The man involved is a friend we used to spend weekends with. He is also married.

I'd like your opinion on this matter. — New Discovery

Dear New: Now that Trudy knows you don't approve of her entertaining a man while you are at work, that should be the end of it. If she doesn't go along, some joint counseling is in order. (Maybe HIS wife should be included.)

Dear Ann Landers: You said, "Show me a person who is repeatedly taken advantage of and I will show you someone who allows people to kick him around."

Yes, Ann, we do allow inconsiderate clods to kick us around. We are so concerned with being nice and friendly and polite — treating folks the way we'd like to be treated — that we are incapable of protecting ourselves against the heavies.

I am 31 years of age. When I was 20 I hated myself for letting people walk all over me. I tried to improve and, thankfully, I did. Some — but not enough.

You say we allow ourselves to be taken advantage of. You are right. But we already know that. Tell us how not to let it happen. How can we be tactful, say what we are thinking without hurting anyone's feelings — even though they may have insulted us? If you can solve this problem you will have done a lot of good for many. — N.C.

Dear N.C.: The meek may inherit the earth, but they sure get dumped on a lot. Why do you feel you must be tactful when people insult you? I suggest counseling. (Yes — again.) Find out who you are and then you will learn how to deal with others. And don't tell me you can't afford a psychiatrist. There are mental health clinics all over to help you get your head together. Look in the phone book.

How to — and how much? Find out with Ann Landers' booklet, "How, What, and When to Tell Your Child About Sex." For your copy, send 50 cents in coin along with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11995, Chicago, Illinois 60611.

A date to meet a mate

On a recent Sunday morning as I sat amid a welter of toast crusts and shredded football pool cards, my eye was caught by a newspaper advertisement that brought me up sharp. "The next few minutes could be the most important in your life," it said. "You can make a decision which will change the very course of your days — and nights."

Good grief! And I hadn't even shaved yet. There I was, wrapped in a faded bathrobe and gloom, slightly hungover, and the next few minutes were going to be the most important of my life! I dropped the newspaper and fled upstairs, expecting the telephone or doorbell to ring at any moment. I shaved and showered, combed my hair (such as it is) and donned my best suit (such as it is). I was ready.

Back in my private quagmire of spilled orange juice and egg shells, I resumed reading the ad and noted a massive equation: "Boy Plus Intramatics Plus Girl Equals Fun." Something new had been added to the old equation while I was dozing through a quarter of a century of married life. In my hey-hey day it was "Boy Plus Girl Equals Fun." Of all the equations that I was convinced tolerated no improvement, that was it. Nor, judging from the population explosion, was I alone in my estimate.

Intramatics, I read (while waiting for that important moment) is an organization dedicated to "the science of interpretive introduction." Er? A science, eh? Can you do graduate work in interpretive introduction? Get your doctorate, maybe. Sc. I. I. D. Were they proposing that I go back to college to change the very course of my days — and nights?

"Intramatics is not a machine picking mates for a faceless public," intoned the ad loftily, "but rather a machine sorting in moments what it would take many people a lifetime to accomplish — selecting someone compatible."

Aha! Now we're getting to the nub of this interpretive introduction bit — or science. This outfit was going to find a playmate to change the very course of my days — and nights. What would my wife say? (As if I didn't know.)

"Intramatics is no magic carpet to instant ambrosia," said the ad. I had to read that again to believe it — and I still don't. But that's beside the point. Keep your old carpet, Intramatics, also your "instant ambrosia." (Really — that's what it said.) Let's get back to that boy plus girl business.

Apparently the procedure is that I fill out a lot of forms telling all about me (blush, blush) and a lot of girls do the same, and Intramatics screens them and sends me a suitable mosquito — or date. Like native beaters driving game toward the water hole where fat white hunter sit in tree with fan, stengha and .404 Wesson-Bently. Hardly pukka, really.

About then my wife came back from church (why don't services last two hours?) and found me all dressed up, waiting for that important moment with my elbow in a pool of cold coffee. Her crisply suspicious comments on the tableau quickly dispelled my dreams of instant ambrosia, and with the sigh of a man born 30 years too late, I turned to the sports section.

Info on Marfan's syndrome

DEAR DR. LAMB — Would you mind giving us some information on Marfan's syndrome? This has struck close in our family and yet we know so little about it.

DEAR READER — A good place to start — and one which will be of particular interest to you — is to point out that medical evidence suggests that Abe Lincoln was a comparison to the length of the trunk of the body. They may be quite tall.

The lens in the eye may be displaced. The chest may be deformed and the hands are often large with long fingers.

The disease may be limited to the eyes, the skeleton or the heart and blood vessels or it may involve all three systems. The aorta may enlarge or dilate. The valves in the heart may become deformed causing abnormalities in circulation not unlike that seen from aortic valve damage from rheumatic heart disease.

Some historians think that Abe Lincoln would have died very soon from heart involvement if he had not been assassinated. Apparently he already had significant changes in the valves in his heart and there was no way to properly treat that problem in those days.

Half of the sons and daughters of a person with Marfan's disease will inherit the disorder. About 15 percent of the people with Marfan's are new diseases and neither parent has the disease. In this instance there is a new mutation of the gene during genetic development that causes the disorder. Once that person starts having offspring, though, half of his children may have the disease.

DEAR DR. LAMB — My daughter has kidney malfunction. She must drink a lot of water. The only thing she likes to drink is tea. She also does not like milk.

She makes enough tea for a few days. She takes three tea bags and fills the 20 cup electric percolator and percolates it for one hour. The tea is as dark as black coffee. The doctor knows she drinks tea but doesn't know she percolates it one hour. This bothers me. I am afraid she is hurting her kidneys. She also has her cocktails.

Please tell me what you think about tea and especially this strong brew.

DEAR READER — Your daughter may not be getting enough liquids. She should drink enough water to pass a large volume of dilute urine each day. This helps to prevent kidney stones. About four quarts of liquid a day is often recommended or enough liquid to ensure formation of two to three quarts of urine a day. The fluid keeps the unabsorable particles that may form a stone from clumping together.

Tea, beer, fruit juices, cola drinks all may contain soluble oxalate that is absorbed into the blood stream and may make it easier to form some types of kidney stones. One of the best fluids for kidney patients who need to consume lots of liquid to maintain a constantly dilute urine is also the cheapest — plain water. Alcohol is hard on kidneys and is not a very good way for your daughter to get fluid either.

Too much rest can be harmful. For information send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for The Health Letter number 6-6, Effects of Inactivity, Including Bed Rest. Send your request to Dr. Lamb, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

That morning rush could be eliminated if people realized that coffee cooks quicker if put on 10 minutes earlier.

Always ask your wife what she wants for her birthday — so she can change her mind in time.

The Treasury Department is studying how to eliminate the penny. If they'd put more buying power in a dollar the problem would be solved.

Back in the days of Culbertson a certain soap was first advertised as 99.44 percent pure. Ely didn't like to have too many forcing bids. At the same time, he described some Culbertson system bids as 99.44 percent forcing.

Apparently South's jump to three hearts was one of those almost forcing bids. In any event, North did pass. A spade lead would have held South to his contract but West opened a diamond. South got to discard one spade on a high diamond and with trumps breaking 3-3 wound up with an overtrick and a top score of plus 170.

At all other tables in the game, South chose to raise clubs as his second bid. Some North players got all the way to five. Others stopped short of game. West had a natural spade lead. The club bidders made 10 tricks for either plus 130 or minus 100 depending on how they had bid.

This hand is another example of duplicate luck. That jump to three hearts ranges an absolute force with some experts all the way down to a mere invitation to partner to bid again.

A Nevada reader wants to know if notrump has always been scored at 40 for the first trick and 30 for each subsequent trick.

No, it hasn't. In Vanderbilt's original scoring it counted 35 a trick. It was changed to eliminate five point scores.

Few get taste of toothpaste

Few people ever really taste the toothpaste they put in their mouths. Or so U.S. Navy researchers contend. When sailors at sea ran out of toothpaste, they were given cake soap to dab on their brushes. Nobody complained. And that led the military analysts to run further tests from which they concluded that toothpaste flavors almost never actually get back to the tastebuds.

MILLION DOLLARS

Q. "Louie, I've tried your last two suggestions about how I could make a million dollars. Neither worked. What next?"

A. Simple. Design a set of motor-driven, circular, suction brushes that cling to the sides of swimming pools as they sweep away the algae. Make royalty checks payable to this byline, please. No hurry. Send them annually.

Q. "Is there any company in the world that manufactures chastity belts?"

A. Know of none, anymore. Couple years ago, such a British firm, named Ann Hugessen, closed down for lack of sales.

Q. "What's the body temperature of a turtle?"

A. Same as the air temperature around it, or pritnear.

CARTOON

In Italy, early artists drew their preliminary sketches on pieces of pasteboard. The Italian word for pasteboard is "cartone." It's where we got our word "carton." And "cartoon." Our Language man says some word enthusiasts like to think the first cartoonists were so named because they executed their art on leftover cardboard cartons. But that's not quite true. "Cartoon" came to be a rough translation of "pasteboard drawing."

Pet store owners say they, too, have an accurate economic indicator. When rhinestone-studded poodle collars fail to sell, a recession is in the offing, they believe. Understandable. Incidentally, not everybody realizes the original poodles weren't simpering lap dogs but rather fairly fearless hunters with a knack for working in water. The name poodle came from the German word for "splash."

"How long does it take to detect the flavor of a vitamin B-12 injection in the forearm?" inquires a customer. About eight seconds. Tastes sort of peanutty.

Contest queen tells secrets

By Kay Brookshire

CINCINNATI (NEA) — Compulsive coupon clippers and contest-enterers should heed the advice of a woman who's made an art of winning contests.

Be persistent and depend more on pluckiness than luck, advises the contesting pro. She says almost anyone willing to work seriously at contesting can develop winning techniques.

Eighty-one-year-old Mary Garner, a Cincinnati native who now lives in Florida, has won more than 1,000 contest prizes in the past 20 years.

She's won 13 color television sets, more than $5,000 in cash, a $2,500 boat, toasters, wall-to-wall carpeting, roller skates, world-wide vacation trips, rent for a year, 66 cans of dog food, and more.

She gives away most of her winnings to her two sons, their children or her friends.

"I won a trip to Paris, France, which I gave to my son and his wife," she said. "They hadn't been married long. That was from Virginia Slims," said Mrs. Garner, who has entered as many as 500 contests a year.

"I won a trip to Jamaica in a sweepstakes, and I won a trip not long ago to Disney World. I won one to Hawaii once and carpeting for my son's home in Pittsburgh.

"I've won many television sets, washers and dryers, electric stoves and bicycles. You name it and I've won it — everything but a house," she said.

Mrs. Garner started entering contests years ago as a hobby and now it's almost a full-time occupation for the Glendale-born widow.

She publishes a monthly contest bulletin sent to more than 1,000 readers. She travels around the country to contesting conventions and club meetings.

The National Contesters Association are a group of people whose hobby is winning contest money and prizes. They work hard at it by learning angles which most casual entrants don't know. They meet to exchange ideas, experiences and information on the contest circuit.

The contests Mrs. Garner enjoys most are those requiring creativity — writing a slogan, jingle or essay, usually about a home or consumer product or creating a recipe.

She looks disdainfully, however, at sweepstakes, even though she has entered many of them and won some. The difference between a contest and sweepstakes is that a contest involves skill; sweepstakes winners are randomly selected.

"In the good old days, you used to be able to fill in a word, create a slogan or write something. It was more fun to win something that you felt you had actually earned," she said

"But when you enter a sweepstakes, you take your name and throw it in a box," she lamented, leaving most of your fate to luck.

With years of successful contesting experience behind her, Mrs. Garner said her secret to success is a mixture of common sense, knowledge of the English language and mastery of some basic skills about contesting.

"The secret is writing what the contest sponsors want to hear," said Mrs. Garner. "Use plain, everyday English . . . tell them something to make them happy. If I can't say something nice about them, I won't write it," she said. She made a soap company happy enough to give her $100 for a jingle that said: "I'm glad I use Dial — For it's my contention — There's truth in the adage —'An ounce of prevention . . .' "

If it's a skill contest requiring writing, said Mrs. Garner, "I am going to buy it (the product) and use it so I can find out something about it," she said. She does not buy products involved in sweepstakes contests.

Mrs. Garner said recipe contests are "the big thing right now." She admits she doesn't enjoy cooking and "makes up" recipes. She once won $50 from Ladies Home Journal in a recipe contest.

Mrs. Garner has kept at her contesting hobby for many years because she said it keeps her mind alert and it has "paid off."

Right now, she has "sworn off" entering sweepstakes. How long will that last?

"Probably another week or two," she admitted. Such "swearings off" usually don't last long, she said.

"You don't win for a month; then you swear off, like an alcoholic. Then you get a prize," she said, "and you're right at it again!"

Prize winners

By Mary Garner

This one won a bicycle:

"It fuels you up with inner satisfaction!" (Hi Pro, General Mills)

This one won $1,657 in equipment from Lever Brothers:

"Give bad breath and tooth decay the 'brush off' the Pepsodent way."

Both of these won tricycles:

"For the best in 'swirled' O fares." (Frosty O's)

"The cereal you never get fed up with." (Cocoa Puffs)

This one won a television set:

"I like Zenith TV because imprisoned in my downtown apartment by steel skyscrapers, traffic noises and neighboring appliances, I served time watching stir crazy televisions that jumped guiltily at every sound or plunged into gray-black solitary, until beautifully 'arraigned' ZENITH, always on good behavior, commuted my sentences, unlocking the door to distinct viewing pleasure."

Ten tips on how to win

1. Constantly scout our contests. Women's magazines, newspapers, grocery shelves (on boxes and cartons) and contest newsletters are good sources.

2. Enter on time. Note the contest deadline and the required postmark date. Missing this gets you disqualified right off the bat.

3. Follow the rules exactly. If the directions say send entries on a three-by-five card, don't vary the size. Use only original entry blanks, never copies. They're almost always banned. Don't type if it says print.

4. When writing slogans or jingles, say what the sponsors want to hear. Study the product you're writing about. Buy it, if possible. Use it. Analyze its advertisements. Study its label. Then emphasize its selling points in your entry.

5. If possible, study past contest winning jingles and slogans. Some sponsors want sincerity; others cleverness.

6. Keep the writing simple. Always use correct English.

7. Puns, analogies and word plays often help catch judges' attention.

8. Enter often. Some people send 200-300 entries to one contest. Mrs. Garner recommends about 15.

9. Don't send all your entries to one contest at once. Space out the mailings several days or weeks apart. For sweepstakes in particular, most judges take a handful of entries from each mailbag. At deadline time, winners are usually selected in a random drawing from entries that arrived in many different mailbags.

10. Be persistent. After entering one contest, don't sit back and wait to see if you win. Keep "feeding the fire.

Butz picture to cost $5,000

WASHINGTON (AP) — A year after Earl L. Butz resigned from Gerald Ford's cabinet, a $5,000 oil portrait of the former secretary is being readied for hanging in the Agriculture Department.

Butz resigned a year ago today after protests over racial remarks made public at the height of Ford's unsuccessful presidential campaign against Jimmy Carter.

"That doesn't make him (Butz) less of a historical figure and there's no reason not to hang his portrait," one USDA official said, "but don't quote me."

The Butz portrait has been delivered to the department but no date has been set for its hanging in one of USDA's many hallways, officials said.

It was painted by New York artist Everett Wayne Kinstler, a department spokeswoman said. Framing and other expenses will add another $750 to the bill, which will be paid out of tax money.

Although USDA officials say the legal authority for spending tax money on portraits of secretaries of agriculture has been used regularly since 1913, the current secretary, Bob Bergland, will not follow the custom.

An aide to Bergland said President Carter passed the word earlier this year that his cabinet officers will have to be content with more economical artifacts.

Thus, the aide said, a photographic likeness of Bergland is being prepared by a New York firm. It will cost $500 for the first unmounted portrait and $175 for each thereafter in case Bergland wants copies.

New class of unemployed

BELLEFONTE, Pa. (AP) — She didn't qualify for employment aid under any of the existing categories of underprivileged people, so one Pennsylvania woman created a new class.

She hopped into the Centre County Training and Employment Agency dressed in a frog costume and told her stunned audience: "I hope you don't have your quota of frogs yet."

The ploy apparently worked.

Pat Casher, director of the Building Skills program for minorities and disadvantaged persons, interviewed the unusual applicant and gave her a job.

The frog, er, woman, was not identified.

Russ dissidents told to get out

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union is suddenly encouraging, even pushing, dissidents to leave the country as two major dates approach on the political calendar.

The first is next month's 35-nation Belgrade conference, where Western delegations are expected to accuse Moscow of not living up to East-West human rights agreements signed at a summit conference in Helsinki, Finland, in 1975. The other is the 60th anniversary Nov. 7 of Russia's Bolshevik Revolution, a date already billed here as a milestone of Soviet national unity.

In the past several months, about 15 leading figures in the Soviet dissident movement have received permission to leave the country in what seems to be a pattern of encouraging dissidents to get out. Non-conformist artists and other intellectuals also are getting exit visas in addition to "hardcore" political dissidents.

"You had better go now because the door will be closing soon," one dissident said he was told by a KGB security police official. "Just before Nov. 7 we are going to seal this country up and you may not get out for a long time."

One of the departing dissidents, Moscow computer scientist Valentin Turchin, applied to leave temporarily but was told Aug. 30 he should leave for good. Turchin, founder of the unofficial Soviet branch of Amnesty International, will leave within a few weeks to accept a teaching position at Columbia University in New York.

Dissident sources stress, however, that many people have not been able to leave, including most of Moscow's leading Jewish "refuseniks," some 400 people who have been waiting up to seven years for exit visas, and reportedly thousands of other persons throughout the country.

In an interview, Soviet dissident leader Andrei D. Sakharov speculated that "of course there is a link, some thought out policy" behind the sudden availability of exit visas to some dissidents.

There is no indication that the current gestures toward dissidents represent a long-term Soviet policy of moderation.

In a rare public speech Sept. 9, KGB Chief Yuri V. Andropov lumped dissidents into the same category as common criminals.

"Both are inflicting harm on our society and that is why they should bear punishment in complete accordance with the demands of Soviet law," he said.

Andropov sounded relatively optimistic about the dissident problem, asserting that "the number of such people is becoming fewer and fewer." The number of dissident events and press statements in Moscow has indeed gone down in recent months, but dissidents attribute this mainly to emigration and arrests, rather than a change in their views.

Still in jail awaiting trial after seizure by police this year are leading dissidents from several parts of the Soviet Union.

They include Moscow Jewish activist Anatoly Shcharansky, seized March 15; Helsinki Human Rights Committee Chairman Yuri Orlov, Feb. 10; and Alexander Ginzburg, a close friend of Alexander Solzhenitsyn, Feb. 3. Solzhenitsyn, exiled in 1974, lives in the United States.

A Ukrainian court on Sept. 15 upheld the 10-and 8-year prison sentences of Ukrainian civil rights activists Oleska Tikhy and Mykola Rudenko. Two other members of their group are awaiting trial, along with dissenters in Soviet Georgia and the Baltic republics.

The Soviets' main concern now appears to get leading, vocal dissidents out of the country or out of circulation within the Soviet Union, through jail or internal exile to remote areas.

Dissidents recently permitted to leave include English-language translator Ilya Levin and writer David Darr, among the most vocal dissidents in Leningrad; and Valery Shchukin, another English speaker who publicized dissident causes in Minsk, Byelorussia.

Hustler's publisher put on spot

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Two U.S. congressmen have asked Larry Flynt to put in writing his offer to donate all profits of Hustler magazine to finance a federal study on child abuse and child pornography.

Flynt said Monday he will answer the request from Rep. Tom Railsback, R-Ill., and Rep. Allen E. Ertel, D-Pa., right away.

"This is very encouraging for me because now we're getting them involved," said Flynt, who made his offer while testifying Sept. 20 before a House subcommittee on crime.

Hustler, which Flynt himself describes as a pornographic publication, claims a circulation of three million and cleared $20 million last year. The publisher said his proposal to give all of his after-tax profits to pay for a pornography study was no joke.

But Railsback said Monday that he and Ertel are skeptical of Flynt's offer.

"Al Ertel and I were interested to see if he was really serious, or if he was trying to capitalize on this thing," Railsback said in a telephone interview from his Washington home.

The Illinois Republican said the letter was not sent on the committee's behalf, but rather on his and Ertel's initiative.

"I think, however, that what the committee decides will be determined by his response to us," Railsback said. "If he's really serious about it and kind of charts the areas he would like to see the study consist of, I think Al Ertel and I probably would present it to subcommittee for consideration.

Railsback said he had no idea when the subcommittee might take up the Flynt offer.

"I feel that if I have to give all the profit, it will be worthwhile," said Flynt, who said he tried and failed seven months ago to deliver a $1 million check to President Carter to finance a presidential commission on obscenity and pornography.

Flynt said he wants to finance the federal study because he feels it would be more credible in the public's eyes than any private study he might pay for.

Railsback said there is precedent for a private citizen footing the bill for a governmental project.

"There's no doubt about that," he said. "There certainly are programs jointly funded by government and private interests. But I just don't know if anything is really parallel or analagous" to Flynt's proposal.

Flynt, 33, who is appealing a conviction in Cincinnati of pandering obscenity and engaging in organized crime, often uses his magazine to promote "public service" topics, such as an antismoking campaign and articles exploring child abuse.

Hustler has grown from 160,000 copies in July 1974 to its present circulation. Flynt also publishes Chic, another sex-oriented magazine, and plans to begin publishing a news-oriented monthly called Ohio Magazine by the end of the year.

Administration, not Senate, broke filibuster's back

WASHINGTON (AP) — In the end, it was the Carter administration and not the Senate that broke the back of the most intensive filibuster in 13 years.

And the two senators who waged the delaying action for more than two weeks find that ironic. After all, they claim, they were only doing battle to save the President's proposal to keep price controls on natural gas.

But when Vice President Walter F. Mondale took the chair on Monday in his constitutional role as president of the Senate, Sens. James Abourezk, D-S.D., and Howard Metzenbaum, D-Ohio, knew it was all over.

Mondale, at the behest of Senate Majority Leader Robert C. Byrd, began ruling "out-of-order" a stack of amendments that the two filibusterers had been using as their principal ammunition. A short while later, the two capitulated.

"In view of the White House position, we call off the filibuster effective immediately," a dispirited Metzenbaum told reporters.

Actually, the administration had never openly supported the filibuster, even though both Metzenbaum and Abourezk had claimed it was quietly doing so.

And over the past few days, according to administration and congressional aides, the White House viewed the stalling effort as more and more of a liability — jeopardizing passage of President Carter's energy program and antagonizing would-be supporters.

After a series of setbacks on the Senate floor during the past two weeks, the administration gradually switched its strategy. It decided to concentrate instead on a House-Senate conference committee to salvage the President's plan.

Administration lobbyists still worked to cut losses in the Senate bv backing a series of "compromises" engineered by Sen. Henry M. Jackson. D-Wash chairman of the Senate Energy Committee, the latest of which may be voted on today.

But they knew that these proposals fell far short of the gas price control plan originally drafted by the administration and already approved by the House.

So they sent out signals that the President was relying on the conference committee to back the House version of the legislation, or at least something close to it.

And Carter made his intentions clear by threatening to veto any bill that deregulates natural gas prices — a warning that is certain not to be taken lightly by the conferees.

However, a conference committee cannot be named until both houses have completed action. The Abourezk-Metzenbaum filibuster was delaying the Senate from taking the final action that would set the conference committee in motion.

Their claim over the weekend that they could extend the filibuster for as long as two weeks if necessary made administration allies in the Senate fearful that the result might be no natural gas legislation this year.

So Byrd and other leaders enlisted the aid of Mondale to try to break the filibuster.

Although any senator picked by the leadership to preside could have made the same parlimentary rulings against the filibusterers that Mondale made, "rulings have greater weight when coming from the vice president," said Assistant Majority Leader Alan Cranston, D-Calif.

At one point when a number of senators were questioning Byrd's tactics, the majority leader said, "I'm trying to put a stop to this filibuster. That's why the Vice President is here... He's trying to get the ox out of the ditch."

Mondale defended his own actions, saying "There's no question of my position on the merits of this issue. Nothing is more sacred to me or the President than our integrity. I am not hear to apologize for my integrity."

But Abourezk and Metzenbaum continue to maintain they were doublecrossed. They said the White House hadn't informed them of what it planned to do in advance and they were taken completely off guard.

"We decided that as a result of the action (Monday), which was a complete reversal of the position on the part of the White House," to cancel the filibuster, Abourezk said.

"This has been an active effort on the part of the White House in sending the vice president down to take part in overruling many of our amendments, many of our parlimentary procedures — in effect, removing from us a great many of our tools of filibuster," Abourezk added.

Did the filibuster accomplish anything?

It produced at least one major concession from the deregulation proponents, mostly Republican and oil-state Democrats:

They agreed to modify their proposal to keep interstate gas prices under a lid for two more years and to require industries, and not homeowners, to absorb initially the higher gas prices that deregulation would bring.

Abourezk and Metzenbaum contend that without their filibuster, the Senate would have voted for the full deregulation measure originally proposed, as it did in 1975.

The two filibuster leaders also said their action heightened public awareness of the gas-pricing dispute. Both claim they have been bombarded with telegrams from consumers supporting their actions since the Senate debate began.

They claim that continued controls are needed to protect consumers against skyrocketing utility bills and have said their tactics provided the Senate's first "consumer-oriented filibuster."

W. German officers suspended

BONN, West Germany (AP) — Eleven German army officers who participated in a mock "burning of Jews" last February at the Armed Forces University in Munich have been suspended from duty, the Defense Ministry announced Tuesday.

The young lieutenants were restricted to the school and cannot wear their uniforms during the three-month suspension while an investigation of the incident continues, the spokesman said.

He said the initial investigation confirmed a newspaper report of the incident in which pieces of paper scribbed with the word "Jew" were burned and Nazi salutes exchanged by the officers during a drinking party.

"But at the same time it became clear that the participants did not have a basically anti-Semitic point of view," the spokesman said.

However, the incident was viewed as "abhorrent" by their superiors, the spokesman said. Jews had demanded the dismissal of the officers involved.

In disclosing the Feb. 16 incident last Thursday, the Frankfurter Rundschau newspaper said school authorities did not punish the officers and failed to report the incident to the Defense Ministry, as required by military regulations.

Brezhnev labels new constitution victory for socialist democracy

MOSCOW (AP) — President Leonid I. Brezhnev presented the final draft of the Soviet Union's new constitution today with a 90-minute speech that defended Soviet human rights policy and said it is still too early to create a classless society.

The 70-year-old leader told the Supreme Soviet, the 1-500-member national parliament, that the new constitution is a victory for "socialist democracy." The final draft, he said, contains 150 changes from the first version published for nationwide discussion June 4.

The Supreme Soviet will approve the charter this week and it will replace the Stalin constitution of 1936.

Foreign diplomats spotted Nikolai V. Podgorny, who was ousted from the Soviet presidency June 16, sitting among the rank-and-file parliament members. It was the first public reappearance by Podgorny, 74, since his political downfall.

Brezhnev, frequently citing Western newspaper reports, attacked "bourgeois" critics who claim the constitution's promises of the right of free speech and free press are hollow.

Western critics have noted that the constitution says citizens must not exercise their rights in ways harmful to the state. Brezhnev replied that a strong state is necessary for the security of its citizens' rights.

The Soviet leader said "rights" in Western society include "the right for millions of people to be unemployed and for sick people to be without medical care, which costs enormous sums."

He stressed that the new Soviet constitution, unlike those in the West, recognizes the right to a job, medical care and housing supplied by the state.

Brezhnev said some of the 400,000 citizens' recommendations on the constitution's first draft called for equal wages and pensions for everyone, or for determining wages on the basis of labor seniority without regard for skills or quality of work.

He rejected these suggestions for a classless society based on the Communist principle of "from each according to his ability, to each according to his needs." He said the Soviet Union was now at a stage of "developed socialism" and must follow the principle "from each according to his abilities, to each according to his work."

Wages in the Soviet Union range from 100 rubles a month, or $134 at the official rate, for the least skilled workers to more than ten times that for leading figures. Since Stalin's first years in power, Soviet leaders have been saying equal wages were a long way off.

Brezhnev said the constitutional commission, which he heads, also rejected proposals to abolish private farm plots and other small private enterprises which provide much of the Soviet food supply.

He said the new document reflects the desire of citizens who called for stronger language against "slackers" and others who violate labor discipline and abuse state property.

Brezhnev said 140 million people, "more than four-fifths of the adult population," participated in 1.5 million meetings or rallies to discuss the new constitution.

"Never before has this country had popular activity on such a scale," he said.

Panel mulls payroll tax hike to aid S.S. system

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House Ways and Means Committee is working on a plan to keep the Social Security system solvent through substantial payroll tax increases, especially on higher paid workers and their employers.

The proposed changes, still subject to amendment and vote, would require persons earning at least $19,900 next year to pay an additional $133.10 in Social Security taxes.

By 1981, those earning as much as $27,900 would be taxed $1,841.40, about $461 more than the present law provides. This year, no one pays more than $965.25.

The committee planned to continue debate on proposed changes in Social Security today, while its counterpart in the Senate, the Finance Committee, was considering its own plan.

The Senate panel is discussing a proposal to force employers to pay more in taxes than their workers do. Current law calls for equal taxation of both groups.

Energy independence equals U.S. freedom

By Dr. Joseph P. Sternstein

WASHINGTON (NEA) — Americans have a tendency to give their full attention to a crisis for a day or two and then return to life as usual."

When President Carter introduced his message on energy to the American people in April, he spoke about a crisis that could overwhelm us. How often since then have Americans riveted their attention on what they can do, along with the government, to cope with a situation that is putting into jeopardy America's freedom to conduct its international and domestic affairs free of foreign pressures?

Do Americans really understand the new force that has been created in world politics? It is not a country, or even a realignment of countries. Rather, it is a three letter commodity — oil!

This new force has shaken world alliances and upset the economies of large and small nations. As a result of dependency on imported oil, the foreign policies of Europe and Japan have been influenced to satisfy the political attitudes of the Arab oil-producing countries. And, because of America's constantly increasing consumption of foreign oil, we are being subjected to the same pressures.

The oil weapon has been used through the Arab boycott measures, to interfere in the internal democratic processes by which the United States conducts its trade and business operations. Manipulation of oil prices and implied threats of a reduction in the supply of oil from the Mideast have put the greatest democracy in the world in the grip of Arab nations which are determined to influence our future and our relations with Israel, America's only democratic ally in the Middle East.

So, a sound U.S. energy program is a vital necessity which transcends partisan persuasions. The American economy requires huge supplies of energy. Without it, the tools and machinery of defense and of our industrial and agricultural production become idle; subsequent unemployment could be disastrous.

Economic upheaval has a special and ominous connotation for minority groups, to which the history of Jewish communities all over the world can attest. Potential demagogues have always capitalized on economic and social disorder, in the process of which scapegoats are created to distract the population from real and valid issues. It is an inevitable conclusion, then, that the U.S. simply cannot afford to be so dependent on such a distant and unstable region as the Middle East for energy supplies which are vital for its defense and home needs.

One must ask, then, "What are the options?" Certainly, the President's call for massive efforts for energy conservation must meet with firm and strong support from all Americans. President Carter has recently stated that if other measures fail, gasoline rationing might be imposed — certainly an equitable and effective step in the battle against excess consumption.

No single change in American habits is the final answer, but a combination of efforts can give us important relief. Along with conservation, there must be an expansion in the production of alternate energy resources. Coal, offshore oil, shale, natural gas and nuclear power must be exploited as quickly as possible if we wish to wrest ourselves from the hold which OPEC has on us.

Of these, probably nuclear power offers the only long-term viable answer. However, it is the least understood, and because of that, the most controversial of proposed energy programs. The fact is that there are now 64 licensed nuclear plants in the U.S. with a proven record of safety, reliability and economy. And, the arithmetic speaks for itself. Each nuclear power plant in operation saves the equivalent of 10 million barrels of oil each year!

Considering all the serious challenges we face, it is impossible to disregard these figures and what they represent in realistic terms.

In the light of recent evidence that France, West Germany, the United Kingdom, Japan and the Soviet Union have committed themselves to further research and development of nuclear breeder reactors, and in the case of several of these countries, to their eventual sale abroad, one must wonder about U.S. opposition to development of these reactors in this country. Since the breeder reactor theoretically creates more plutonium than it burns, it is estimated to use nuclear fuel nearly 60 times more efficiently than the current "light water" nuclear plants in use today.

President Carter's objections to the breeder reactor are based on his fear that plutonium might be diverted by terrorists for use in weapons.

Nation's long-term drought suggests change in climate

WASHINGTON (LENS) — As if New Yorkers, who until recently were soaking in fire hydrants to cool down, or western farmers, who are surveying their second year of parched fields, were not sufficiently aware of the weather, the National Academy of Sciences has just issued a report on many years of research into the climate. The findings are disturbing. The weather, it seems, is getting warmer, and not simply in the Bronx; by the next century, in some places, it may be 10 degrees centigrade hotter.

According to the report carbon dioxide, produced from burning fossil fuels, is settling like a blanket in the atmosphere. The culprits in the American landscape are smokestacks, closely followed by every industry which, heeding President Carter's energy proposals, intends to turn to coal as its main source of fuel.

The academy report is the latest contribution to a year when the weather has constantly made news. The winter in the East was the worst for three decades. It has been followed by broiling summer temperatures, in many places the highest since the 1940s, in the East and the Midwest. New York City's blackout was a symptom of it; so, too, was the storm that tipped nine inches of rain in a night on Johnstown, Pennsylvania, taking 58 lives. These are the more startling disasters.

In the West, over an area covering 11 states, a drought which has already lasted two years is forecast to run for a third. Every summer it sparks forest fires; the worst and most recent in Santa Barbara, Calif., destroyed 700 acres and 400 homes before it burned itself out. Signs of drought are also appearing in the Southeast, from Virginia to Florida, where the water shortage is more severe than at any time for 25 years.

The heatwaves in the East are not so worrying; meteorologists say they have seen the pattern before, in the 1950s, and that this is the sort of phenomenon from which the country can make a smart recovery. In the West the story is different. The drought has been so consistent that it suggests a long-term change in climate — a symptom, perhaps, of the global warming predicted in the academy's report — that may eventually return the West to the desert it used to be and, under the fountains of Phoenix and the sprinkled lawns of Los Angeles, it still is.

Throughout the west not only the topsoil, but now the subsoil, has lost its moisture. Pasture and range lands are too dry everywhere, except in Nebraska and Kansas; in Wyoming, farmers are losing money on stock sent to market prematurely. Water has become a political issue. The Secretary of the Interior Cecil Andrus now mentions it with as much respect as other politicians mention energy. There is already too little water, in many parts of the West, to sustain some industries. There may be too little in the near future to sustain the new communities still mushrooming in Arizona, where individual water consumption is the highest in the country.

So far, the onus of dealing with the weather has been on the governments of the states affected. An emergency drought assistance bill, specifically for the West and the Great Plains, passed Congress in April, and there has been federal assistance since for 1,600 thirsty counties in the Southeast.

But just as nature is capricious, so too are the attempt of federal government to cope with it. Little time and money has been spent, so far, on the sort of long-range forecasting and temperature study that could predict a drought. And there are too many groups in government with a different, and often amateur, interest in the weather; among them the Departments of the Interior, Agriculture and Commerce, the Environmental Protection Agency and the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration.

Congress has now begun hearings on a bill which, if passed, would knit together all government functions concerned with weather into a single agency.

Three rescue paraplegic after fall into river

BOSTON (AP) — A paraplegic whose motorized wheel chair rolled out of control and into the eight-foot-deep Charles River was rescued by two policemen and a jogger.

Lawrence D. Pass, 27, of Everett, was pulled unconscious from the murky water Monday after his chair rolled off a boat landing on Soldiers Field Road.

He was in serious condition Tuesday at St. Elizabeth's Hospital.

David L. White, 26, of New York, was jogging nearby when he saw the wheel chair plunge into the river. He dove in after Pass.

"I never had to do anything like that before," said White. "But I didn't even think about it. I saw him go in, and I ran to help him."

White was unable to raise the man, so he called for help, and Metropolitan District Commission police arrived a few minutes later.

The policemen, Lloyd L. Smith and Edward J. Seabury, pulled Pass, still strapped to his wheel chair, out of the water. Then they administered mouth-to-mouth and cardiopulmonary resuscitation until breathing and pulse were restored.

Pass' legs had been paralyzed since he fell from a ladder while picking oranges in Florida last year.

In 1975, Democratic Sen. Frank Church declared that the CIA had made several attempts to assassinate Cuba's Premier Fidel Castro.

Ten years ago: Five masked men invaded the Miami, Fla., mansion of Willis Harrington du Pont and escaped with cash, jewels and coin collections valued at $1.5 million.

Five years ago: The African nations of Tanzania and Uganda announced they had settled a dispute which arose when Uganda accused Tanzania of launching an invasion.

One year ago: The U.S. government announced that radioactive fallout from a nuclear test in China had been detected.

Today's birthdays: Former French premier Georges Bidault is 78 years old. Theatrical producer Joshua Logan is 69.

Thought for today: A simple life is its own award. — George Santayana, Spanish writer and philospher, 1863-1952.

Union political contributions reported

WASHINGTON (AP) — Various maritime related unions contributed nearly a half million dollars to the 1976 election campaigns of 215 current members of the House of Representatives, Common Cause reported Sunday.

Common Cause, the self-styled public interest lobby, said the top legislative priority for the unions is passage of the cargo preference bill which would increase the percentage of imported oil that would have to be carried by U.S. ships.

The lowest maritime union contribution listed by Common Cause was $200, while the largest single contribution of $18,138 went to Rep. Leo Zeferetti, DN.Y.

Common Cause said the total amount contributed by the unions was $449,410.

Among congressmen receiving large contributions were: Zeferetti, Rep. Thomas Ashley, D-Ohio, $18,000; Rep. John Dent, D-Pa., $13,000; Rep. Lloyd Meeds, D-Wash., $11,800; Rep. Frederick Richmond, DN.Y., $12,647; Rep. John Murphy, D-N.Y., $11,200; and Rep. John Burton, D-Calif., $10,200.

House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill, D-Mass., was given $7,500.

Fine Arts Foundation lists season's events

The Fine Arts Foundation of Scripps College will open its 1977-78 season on Thursday, at 1:30 p.m. when David Steadman, director of the Galleries of The Claremont Colleges, will speak on "Observations on Works on Paper 1900-1960."

Members of the Fine Arts Foundation and the Rembrandt Club of Pomona College will meet jointly in Lyman Hall to hear Dr. Steadman speak about the current exhibit in the Montgomery Gallery at Pomona College.

FAF President Mrs. Charles S. Holmes has announced a full schedule of activities for the year, including speakers Richard Armour whose latest book "It All Started With Nudes," will serve as the title of his talk on Nov. 1; James Brashler, assistant director of the Institute for Antiquity and Chrisitanity, who will speak on "The Tutankhamun Exhibition" on Dec. 6; Elizabeth Fryberger, curator of prints and drawing, Stanford Art Museum, who will discuss the J.M. Whistler Exhibition scheduled for the Montgomery Gallery on Feb. 2; Olga Ogden, who will speak on "Porcelain Through the Ages" on March 14; and Joan Hartley, vice president of Sotheby Parke Bernet, who will address the group on April 4 on "Auctions and Auctioneering."

Museum tours, always a special feature of the year's programs, will include the Pacific Asia Culture Museum on Oct. 11 to view the Tang exhibit and to have a catered Chinese lunch at the museum; the Newport Harbor Art Museum on Feb. 14, and the Sotheby Parke Bernet Auction Gallery in the spring.

A special event for members of the Fine Arts Foundation will be a tour of the King Tutankhamun Exhibition at the Los Angeles County Art Museum on March 4, 1978.

Each year a well-known artist is commissioned by the Fine Arts Foundation to design a work for reproduction for sale to members. This year's edition is a portfolio of lithographs by Jean Ames, prominent Claremont artist, whose imaginative and sensitive work has won her wide recognition.

The purpose of the Fine Arts Foundation is to stimulate public interest in art and to support opportunities for the study of art at Scripps College. The group welcomes new members from the community who may call Membership Chairman Mrs. J.J. Castleberry at 624-5151 or Mrs. William Hamilton in Cedar Glen at (213) 337-5314, for more information on activities and dues.

Other members of the board of directors for the 1977-78 season include Mrs. Holmes of Claremont, president; Mrs. John Esterline, Claremont, vice president; Mrs. Floyd Ethridge, Upland, secretary; Mrs. James Leonhard, Claremont, treasurer; Mrs. Betty Hare, Claremont, college representative; Mrs. Mel Hodell, Upland, and Mrs. David B. Welsh, Claremont, publicity; Mrs. Kenneth J. Friedenbach, Cucamonga, and Mrs. Howard C. Metzler, Claremont, docents; Mrs. James R. Johnson, Claremont, and Mrs. George M. Gibson, Upland, limited edition; Mrs. Ralph Canter, Upland, and Mrs. Donald McDonald, Claremont, openings; Mrs. Karem Monsour, Claremont, and Mrs. John Sauter, Claremont, special events; Mrs. Winfield Foster, Claremont, faculty party, and Mrs. L. Donald Middleton, Claremont, past president, ex-officio.

GOP unit schedules luncheon gathering

Pomona Valley Republican Women's Club, Federated, has planned a luncheon and program Thursday at Sir George's Royal Buffet in Pomona.

Mrs. Betty Southworth will present the program, "From Uncle Sam's Bicentennial to the Queen's Silver Jubilee — Learning English," following the 11:30 a.m. meeting and luncheon.

The Bill Southworths have long been active in international relations and exchange student programs. Their oldest son, John, was a Rotary Foundation Fellow at the University of Bristol, England. Mrs. Southworth will show slides and review their three-week visit to several homes in England this past summer.

The meeting has been advanced because of the state GOP Women's convention in Fresno next week.

Mrs. Charlotte Stevenson will report on the membership quota being reached and will accept membership applications from persons interested. Activities to be reported on will be a recent rummage sale, work at the county fair, and a collection of petitions sponsored by the Committee for Citizens' Rights and endorsing a constitutional amendment "Prohibition of Strikes by Public Employees."

Reservations are requested for the meeting and may be made by calling Mrs. Speier, 629-0434.

MRS. SOUTHWORTH

PEO unit will meet Thursday

A luncheon meeting is scheduled for members of Chapter MG, PEO Sisterhood thursday at the home of Mrs. Charles Richardson, 2630 San Angelo Drive, Claremont.

Assisting hostesses for the noon event will be Mrs. Ernest Geddes and Mrs. George G. Palmer. The program will be presented by Paul Hertz.

Fashion show set Oct. 19

The Diamond Bar Woman's Club will meet Wednesday, Oct. 19, at the Diamond Bar Country Club at 10:30 a.m.

A fashion show will be presented and plans will be finalized for an upcoming Christmas bazaar and a "Las Vegas Night".

For further information, persons may contact Mrs. Delvin Krueger at 598-1105, or Mrs. Lester Bausman at 595-4382.

Joyce Brothers

Urban vs. rural

DEAR DR. JOYCE BROTHERS: My husband just learned that we have to move back to the city. This will be hard on all of us since we've been living in a rural area that we love. The children, especially the two eldest, are really coming down hard on us with hideous tales of crime, rape, murder and mayhem. They may be doing this to kid us, but they may also be expressing real fears. I worry about the younger children because I know it's just not as healthy for them, but there's really nothing we can do about it. — A.Y.

DEAR A.Y.: The city has its advantages just as the country has but because of the bad press, people often forget this. The city has great cultural and other resources that can provide a stimulating atmosphere to help your children enlarge and achieve their potential.

Help your family prepare for the move by taking a positive attitude and pointing out the many advantages that city life offers. Your family is fortunate because they have been able to enjoy the beauty of country living and now they have an opportunity to increase their perceptions about life and life styles.

As for crime, remember 70 percent of the murders committed in the U.S. are by persons who knew their victims. Thirty percent are committed by another family member and in a great many of these cases, alcohol was an important ingredient.

Prepare your family to enjoy their new home and the chances are they will.

DEAR DR. JOYCE BROTHERS: We recently moved to a new suburban community. When my husband and I went to our first party, we were surprised by the number of people who were freely using several drugs as well as alcohol. Cocaine and marijuana seem to be commonplace among the more sophisticated adults. Having and offering cocaine is a status symbol. Because it's so expensive, it lets your guests know that you have plenty of money. I know that the kids also are into drugs. This worries me because we have children. Any suggestions? — M. O'B.

DEAR M. O'B.: I suggest you introduce the subject and encourage your children to give you their views. Try not to express great shock if they tell you they've already used drugs. If you do, the conversation may end abruptly. They may be afraid to tell you more.

Under the circumstances you describe, it may be very difficult to keep your children from using drugs. I believe the best course is to make them as self-assured and self-confident as possible so they don't turn to drugs for an ego prop.

Bring in as much literature as possible about the physical side effects of drug use. Above all, keep the channels of communication open.

Republicans schedule Saturday barbecue

A western hacienda barbecue will be held by the Claremont Republican Women's Club at the Old Padua Hills Theater in Claremont on Saturday, beginning with a social hour at 6:30 p.m.

The menu has been planned by the food chairman, Mrs. Roger Wells. Entertainment will feature "Louisa" and her dancers.

The bi-annual affair is held to help defreay expenses for educational activities such as seminars and workshops for club members, staffing headquarters during elections and precinct work in general, including voter registration drives. Members also contribute to support the work of other local community organizations according to Mrs. Dennis O'Connor, president.

Chairman is Mrs. Luther Chambers. Assisting her are Mmes. Dennis Corbiel, Donald Cross, Mortin Grothe, Robert Barlow, Robert Shacklett and Al Moore.

Dress for fun in casual or western wear.

For reservations call Mrs. Walter Phares, 626-4320, or Mrs. Al Moore, 626-8443. Tickets also will be sold at the door.

Top it off

An oversized top is one item you can match with pants and skirts, even jeans. Wear it solo at the beach for still another look.

National Council on Alcoholism warned all pregnant women to stay off alcoholic drinks or risk hurting their unborn child.

Dr. Joseph Cruse, University of Southern California Obstetrician-Gynecologist, said, "The dangers of drinking during pregnancy are so great that therapeutic abortion is indicated when a pregnant woman can't control her intake."

Evidence showing alcohol as a contributor to more than 6,000 birth defects a year recently brought warnings from Dr. Ernest Noble, head of the National Institute on Alcohol Abuse and Alcoholism.

6 plays planned at UCR

The theater department of UC Riverside will present six plays during the 1977-78 season.

Beginning with the musical "Stop the World, I Want To Get Off," which opens Nov. 9, the schedule includes Milan Stitt's thriller "The Runner Stumbles" the Tony Award-winning "Kennedy's Children," Ibsen's classic "A Doll's House," Susan Miller's Drama "Cross Country" and Oliver Goldsmith's comedy "She Stoops To Conquer."

Anthony Newley and Leslie Bricusse wrote "Stop the World" as a kind of modern-day Everyman in a new and different musical style. UCR's version, directed by Eric Barr, will play Nov. 9 through 12 and 16 through 19 at 8:15 each evening, with a 2:30 matinee on Nov. 12.

"The Runner Stumbles" is a suspense tale about duty and conflict based on an actual murder trial.

WHAT'S COOKING? — Ballet superstar Rudolf Nureyev gives Dinah Shore some advice as she cooks a steak for him at her Beverly Hills home. The singer is considered one of the best cooks in show business. Nureyev will make one of his rare TV appearances on her talk show, "Dinah!" on Oct. 12.

Four operas on television

Following last year's successful telecast of "La Boheme," the Metropolitan Opera will televise live performance of "Rigoletto," "Don Giovanni," and the double bill of "Cavalleria Rusticana" and "Pagliacci" over the Public Broadcasting System (PBS) during the 1977-78 season.

The funding of the three live simulcasts will be made possible by a major grant from Texaco, which has sponsored the Saturday afternoon radio broadcasts of the Met for 37 years and last season sponsored its first full telecast on PBS.

The first telecast will be the Metropolitan's new production of Verdi's "Rigoletto" Nov. 7. James Levine, music director of the Metropolitan, will conduct. The cast will include Ileana Cotrubas as Gilda, Florence Quivar as Maddalena, Cornell MacNeil in the title role, Placido Domingo as the Duke, Justino Diaz as Sparafucile and John Cheek as Monterone.

Mozart's "Don Giovanni" will be presented March 16 with Joan Sutherland as Donna Anna and James Morris in the title role. Julia Varady will be heard as Donna Elvira, Huguette Tourangeau as Zerlina, John Brecknock as Don Ottavio, Gabriel Bacquier as Leporello, Allan Monk as Masetto, and John Macurdy as the Commendatore. Richard Bonynge will conduct.

All three telecasts will begin at 8 p.m. EST and will be simulcast in stereo on FM radio stations in major cities, hosted again, as last year, by Tony Randall.

Crafts festival slated at adobe

The Historical Society of Pomona Valley and the City of Pomona will sponsor Fiesta de Artesanias, a festival of crafts, at the Adobe de Palomares, Orange Grove Avenue and Arrow Highway, from 9:30 a.m. to 6 p.m. Oct. 15. Admission is free.

The purpose of the program is to demonstrate the skills from the era of the Palomares adobe, 1850-1875, so that younger generations can appreciate them and possibly take them up. The festival will include demonstrations of blacksmithing, spinning, weaving, silverworking, pottery making, stitching, lace making and leather working.

Taking part will be Joe Henry, pottery; Mary Weissel, weaving, spinning and dyeing; Lorna Crosby, lacework; Jim Leos, a mission Indian, silverwork; and Borthwick Kaeser and Associates, old-time photography.

Entertainment will include Early California dancing, Spanish folk dancing, Cahuilla Indian dancing and guitar music. Taking part will be Folklorico Beltran del Valle de Pomona, Ballet Folklorico Mexico from Chaffey High School and the Cahuilla Dancers and bird song singer.

ART cancels comedy

Because of illnesses in the cast, the Actors Repertory Theater has cancelled three scheduled performances of "Where to, Turelu?" at the Claremont Playhouse this weekend.

The play was to have been presented by the Children's Theater at 11 a.m. and 2:30 p.m. Saturday and at 2:30 p.m. Sunday.

Final performances of "The Innocents" will be staged at the Playhouse at 8 p.m. Friday and Saturday.

Luau set at Catalina

An authentic Polynesian luau will be held on Catalina Island Saturday, with entertainment provided by 60 top Polynesian performers and guest stars from Hawaii. Orchid leis will be given to all guests.

Catalina boats will leave San Pedro at 1:30 p.m., returning about midnight. Cost of "Day in Polynesia," including roundtrip boat fare, is $25.

Reservations can be made at (213) 549-0808.

Easy, economical goodies

Chocolate-coated pretzels for snacks

If the kids in your life say "any flavor just so it's chocolate," here are three chocolate goodies to satisfy their cravings.

Each is deep chocolatey good, each takes little of your precious time to produce, and none will make a dent in the family food budget.

Orange-Kissed Chocolate Cupcakes and Apple-Nut Chocolate Brownies are simply put together with the help of economical canned chocolate flavored syrup. Both make super after-school nurishing snacks with a pitcher of cold milk. Chocolate-Coated Pretzels, a popular adult snack, are easily made by melting dark chocolate flavored Mini Chips with a four-ounce milk chocolate bar to coat your favorite pretzels.

CHOCOLATE-COATED PRETZELS

1 cup chocolate flavored mini chips
1 large milk chocolate bar (4 ounces), broken into pieces
2 tablespoons shortening
1 package (9 to 10 ounces) unsalted pretzels

Combine chocolate flavored mini chips and broken chocolate bar in top of double boiler; melt completely over warm water. Cool, stirring occasionally, until coating is lukewarm and slightly thickened (96 Degrees F.). Dip pretzels with a fork into melted chocolate. Gently tap fork on side of bowl to remove excess chocolate. Cool on waxed paper-covered cookie sheet until coating is firm or chill 15 minutes. (Coating temperature should be maintained at 94 degrees F. while dipping; reheat over warm water, if necessary.)

ORANGE-KISSED CHOCOLATE CUPCAKES

1½ cups unsifted all-purpose flour
1¼ cups sugar
¼ teaspoon baking soda
¼ teaspoon salt
1 can (1 pound) chocolate flavored syrup
½ cup butter or margarine, softened
4 eggs
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 package (6 ounces) milk chocolate kisses (36 kisses)

Combine flour, sugar, baking soda and salt in a large mixer bowl. Add chocolate syrup, butter or margarine, eggs and vanilla. Blend on low speed 30 seconds until all ingredients are moistened; beat on medium speed 3 minutes. Line muffin cups (2½ inches in diameter) with paper bake cups; fill just ½ full with batter. Bake at 350 degrees for 20 to 22 minutes. Cool completely; fill and frost cupcakes with Orange Cream Frosting. Top with a milk chocolate kiss. Makes 32 to 34 cupcakes.

ORANGE CREAM FROSTING

¼ cup unsifted all-purpose flour
½ cup milk
¼ cup butter or margarine
¼ cup shortening
1 tablespoon finely grated orange peel
2 teaspoons orange juice
¼ teaspoon salt
4 cups confectioner's sugar
Red and yellow food color (optional)

Combine flour and milk in a saucepan. Cook, stirring constantly with wire whisk, until mixture thickens and just begins to boil; cool and chill thoroughly.

Cream butter or margarine and shortening, until light and fluffy; add orange peel, orange juice and salt. Blend in chilled flour mixture. Gradually add confectioners' sugar to creamed mixture. Stir in food color. About 3 cups frosting.

To Fill Cupcakes: Spoon filling into pastry tube with open star tip; insert tip into center of cupcake. Squeeze gently until cupcake begins to peak; cover top with swirl of filling. (OR cut a 1½-inch cone from top of cupcake. Fill cavity; replace cone. Swirl filling over top.)

APPLE-NUT CHOCOLATE BROWNIES

½ cup butter or margarine
1 cup sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla
2 eggs
1¼ cups unsifted all-purpose flour
¼ teaspoon baking soda
¾ cup grated apple
¼ cup applesauce
¼ teaspoon cinnamon
⅛ teaspoon baking soda
¾ cup canned chocolate flavored syrup
½ cup chopped nuts

Cream butter or margarine, sugar and vanilla until light and fluffy. Add eggs and beat well. Combine flour and ¼ teaspoon baking soda; gradually add to creamed mixture.

Combine ¾ cup batter, grated apple, applesauce, cinnamon and ⅛ teaspoon baking soda in small bowl. Add chocolate syrup and nuts to remaining batter. Spread chocolate-nut batter in a greased 13 x 9 x 2-inch pan. Spread apple mixture carefully over chocolate. Bake at 350 degrees for 25 to 30 minutes or until brownie begins to pull away from sides of pan; cool completely. Spread with Chocolate Bar Glaze. Garnish with chopped nuts, if desired. About 30 brownies (2½ x 1½ inches).

Chocolate Bar Glaze: Melt one 4-ounce milk chocolate bar with 1 tablespoon plus 1 teaspoon water in top of double boiler over warm water. Stir until chocolate is completely melted. Spoon onto top of brownies and spread evenly.

Beefy barbecue wrap-ups tops

One of the best occasions for easygoing all out fun is a tailgate picnic before a rousing afternoon of football. The colorful game time atmosphere is the perfect background for sharing good food with good friends.

No elaborate plans are necessary. Handy cans of meat spreads, eggs, cheese and other kitchen staples can be turned into an impromptu picnic in a matter of minutes . . . suitable for eating in the stadium parking lot or in the stands during the half time entertainment.

Plan according to the weather. If the day is blustery, pack up Deviled Omelet Picnic Bundles. Hollow out rolls to make then spill proof, spread with deviled ham and fill with a lightly seasoned scrambled egg mixture. Wrap them in foil and heat through in the oven. An insulated container or layers of newspapers over the foil will keep them warm from oven to stadium.

Beefy Barbecue Wrap-Ups are also warmed in the oven before packing — split onion rolls layered with roast beef spread, chopped green pepper, barbecue sauce and sliced American cheese melted on top.

On the other hand, if the afternoon temperatures are still soaring, play it cool with Chicken Salat Pitas. If you bring the ingredients in separate containers, they can be put together on the spot for crunchy results.

Keep the rest of the menu as casual as these sandwiches. Bring a large thermos of hot water for coffee, tea or a variety of instant soups. Slices or cubes of assorted cheeses packed in plastic bags team up easily with crackers or fresh fruit. If they're drained first, pickles and olives can be nibbled right from the jar.

For dessert, sneak in a bag of store bought cookies. No one's going to care if you haven't baked when it's fourth down and a yard to go!

DEVILED HAM PICNIC BUNDLES

6 rectangular French rolls
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
3 tablespoons minced onion
2 tablespoons dried chives
8 eggs, lightly beaten
¼ teaspoon black pepper
1 can (4½ ounces) deviled ham

Preheat oven to 375 degrees. Cut rolls in half lengthwise and scoop out the insides.

In a skillet, over medium heat, melt butter or margarine. Cook onions and chives until soft. Pour in beaten egg, and cook, turning gently, until softly scrambled. Spread deviled ham evenly in bottom halves of rolls, top with egg mixture, and roll tops. Wrap each in foil; heat in oven 15 minutes until hot. Makes six servings.

BEEFY BARBECUE WRAP-UPS

1 can (4¾ ounces) roast beef spread
2 tablespoons chopped green peppers
2 tablespoons barbecue sauce
4 onion rolls, split and toasted
½ cup shredded Cheddar cheese

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. In a bowl, mix together roast beef spread, chopped peppers and barbecue sauce. Spread on bottom halves of onion rolls; top with shredded cheese. Close with tops of rolls. Wrap in foil and bake 10 to 15 minutes. Serve warm. Makes four sandwiches.

CHICKEN SALAD PITAS

1 can (4¾ ounces) chunky chicken spread
2 tablespoons chopped onion
4 loaves pita bread
4 slices tomato, cut in half
1 cup shredded lettuce
1/3 cup Russian dressing

In a bowl, mix together chicken spread and onion. Cut an opening in pita bread and fill with chicken spread. Top with tomato slices, shredded lettuce and Russian dressing. Makes four sandwiches.

Beef stew discovery nutritious

In the days when great galleons toiled home beating the offshore breezes in the Gulf of Genoa, their first hint of land was the wind-carried scents of the herbs carpeting the green hills above Genoa. Those same gusty winds, that carried famous explorers like Columbus, whipped up appetites that inspired culinary achievement in the Mediterranean countries. Today in turn, appropriate inspiration for creative endeavor in food preparation in our country can come from Italian cuisine.

In the spirit of Columbus Day why not do a little discovering of your own and serve a tasty new entree of Italian ancestory. One creative cook did this and the same tempting aroma of days past drifts from her kitchen when she prepares "Beef Stew Discovery." When an Italian flavor accent is applied to boneless beef cubes, a most delicious stew results. A blend of tomatoes, cream of mushroom soup and grated Parmesan cheese plus egg noodles also give this dish global appeal.

Italian cooks are known for thrifty as well as flavor and this stew is easy on the budget as well as inviting. The basic ingredient — beef for stew — is an economical market choice. Conveniently packaged and ready for the pot, these boneless pieces of lean meat provide the good flavor and important food nutrients of beef at a bargain price. Beef for stew supplies the same high quality protein and important vitamins and materials as the more costly cuts. Since stew is known for its hearty and satisfying characteristics, it makes appealing cool weather table fare.

BEEF STEW DISCOVERY

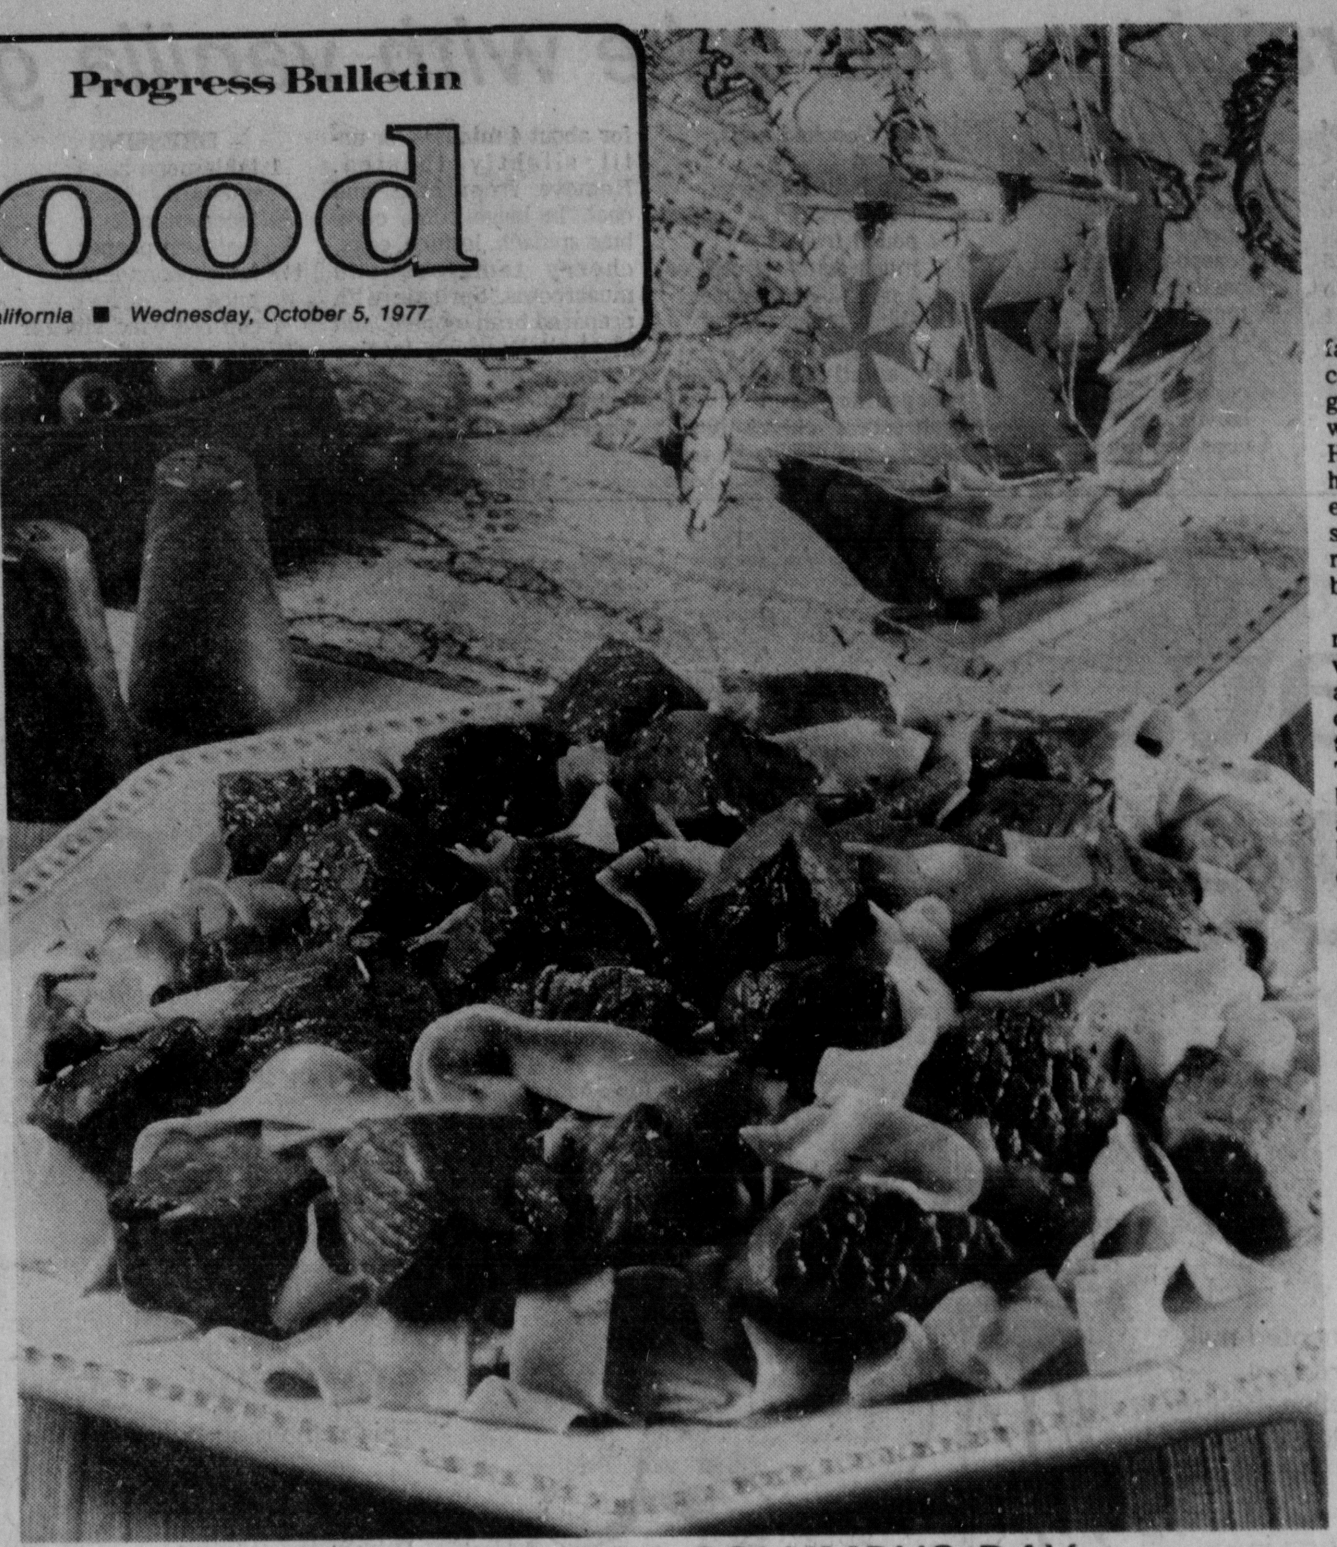
2 pounds beef for stew
3 tablespoons flour
1 teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon paprika
⅛ teaspoon pepper
3 tablespoons cooking fat
1 bouillon cube, crushed
¾ cup hot water
1 medium onion, chopped
1 teaspoon rosemary, crushed
1 can (16 ounces) tomatoes
1 can cream of mushroom soup (10¾ ounces)
½ teaspoon garlic salt
1 package (8 ounces) cooked egg noodles
½ cup Parmesan cheese, grated

Cut meat in 1½ inch pieces. Combine flour, salt, paprika and pepper; dredge beef cubes. Lightly brown in cooking fat; pour off drippings. Dissolve bouillon cube in hot water; add bouillon, onion and rosemary to meat, cover tightly and cook slowly 1½ hours. Combine tomatoes, mushroom soup and garlic salt; stir into beef cubes. Cook slowly 10 minutes. Fold in cooked noodles and Parmesan cheese.

With generously ladeled servings of stew, little else is needed for a nourishing dinner. For the supplementary vegetable choose zucchini squash or Italian green beans. Include thinly sliced mushrooms in a green salad, tossed with Italian dressing. The aroma of warm garlic bread drifting from the kitchen is sure to add to the dinner excitement. Then finish off the Columbus Day celebration with spumone ice cream.

Peaches in a sandwich

Here's a great idea for simple summer treats — spread slices of nut bread with cream cheese. Top with thin slices of fresh California peaches and a sprinkling of cinnamon-sugar. Remember to dip peaches into an ascorbic acid mixture or citrus juice to prevent darkening.



BEEF STEW FOR COLUMBUS DAY

Future eating trends studied

Selected Los Angeles County residents are helping to determine future eating patterns in America by participating in the largest government study of food consumption ever undertaken.

At least 375 households in this area are reporting the deatils of their eating habits as part of the year-long project, which is being directed by the U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) and conducted by the National Analysts Division of Booz, Allen & Hamilton. Another six area residents are also involved in the study as interviewers.

Los Angeles County is one of only 114 areas across the country chosen for this survey. It was selected as being representative of similar areas in this part of the country. Families from this area will be joined by more than 23,000 others from all 50 states and Puerto Rico in the massive study of Americans' dietary and nutritional patterns.

The survey will reveal how changes in the American life style affect the way we eat. Smaller families, greater numbers of older people, different life styles, the number of people who eat away from home, the growing number of women working outside the home, the increasing popularity of home-produced food to offset rising food costs — all may be factors in changing dietary and nutritional patterns.

Data from this survey will be used in many nutrition and education programs, and are a primary source of statistical information used in evaluating and developing national food and nutrition policies.

The real significance lies one step beyond finding out what, when, how much, and with whom Americans are eating. It lies in what's done with that mass of information. And past USDA food studies are leading examples of translating research into action.

Former USDA food studies have been a factor in the development of such concrete consumer benefits as various school lunch and food assistance programs, food fortification and enrichment programs, nutrition education programs and dietary guidance materials, and special assistance plans for such high nutritional risk groups as the young, the elderly, and the poor.

It's too early to predict what the current study will uncover. But it's safe to say that a number of Federal agencies which administer programs on the adequacy of diets and food safety will be watching the results carefully.

The cooperative nature of this particular study assures that the results will extend beyond USDA programs and policies. Joining Agriculture in the research are the Commerce Department and several agencies of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, notably the Food and Drug Administration and the Social Security Administration.

As USDA and National Analysts point out, the ultimate success and usefullness of the study depends on the willingness of the more than 20,000 families to devote a portion of their time to supplying the necessary information. Their reward, of course, lies in better food information and programs affecting the health of all American families.

Hearty ravioli stew is for two

Football games, hikes, fall bicycling, even sailing, call for hearty meals. The great out-of-doors does wonders for appetites. Here's the answer for a hungry twosome; try an easy but full-bodied ravioli stew. Canned ravioli in a rich tomato sauce is the basis of this dish.

Combine meat filled ravioli with everyday vegetables such as carrots and onions, plus some zucchini or other squash, and the results are unbeatable. The stew can be prepared before hand, in minutes and placed in a thermos to keep hot. Or, if you're the camping type, it can be warmed on a portable stove. However you eat it, with wine for an Italian atmosphere, or with coffee to be strictly All-American, it's delicious.

HEARTY RAVIOLI STEW FOR TWO

2 frankfurters, sliced
2 tablespoons chopped onion
2 tablespoons chopped green pepper
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
1 can (7½ oz.) beef ravioli
2 tablespoons dry white wine or dry vermouth (optional)
1 can (7½ oz.) sliced carrots
1 zucchini, sliced
Dash garlic salt
¼ teaspoon basil

Saute frankfurters, onion and green pepper in margarine. Add remaining ingredients. Cover, simmer for 7 to 10 minutes. Serves two.

Try bran—pancakes, raisin coffee cake with vanilla glaze

Adopt a sensible, healthful high fiber diet by starting with nutritionally complete breakfasts and fiber-rich combinations for lunch and dinner. Listed below are eight such recipes. Also included are five imaginative and easy party ideas with two recipes.

Small amounts of bran are easily added to standard servings of cooked and dry cereals, pancakes, cakes, quick breads or muffins. Most standard bread recipes can be adapted to incorporate bran in addition to or as part of the flour.

When used in cookies, cake or pie crust, the natural flavor of wheat bran cereal is enhanced by the addition of almond or other nut flavorings. The addition of bran to a variety of foods allows the intake to be spread throughout the day.

A complete breakfast gives the day a good start. This meal is a natural spot for the inclusion of wheat bran cereal, either in the cereal bowl with milk or in wake-up foods the family will enjoy, like pancakes, muffins or coffeecake.

BRAN PANCAKES

4 cups wheat bran flakes cereal
1 cup pancake mix
2 eggs
2 cups milk
2 tablespoons salad oil

Crush cereal to make 1 cup crumbs; combine with pancake mix in medium bowl. In small bowl beat eggs with milk and oil. Make a well in the center of the cereal mixture, add liquid and stir until batter is almost smooth. Heat lightly greased griddle or skillet over medium heat. Pour ¼ cup batter for each pancake onto griddle and cook until golden brown on both sides, turning once. Makes 12 pancakes.

BRAN AND RAISIN COFFEECAKE

¾ cup regular margarine or butter
1 teaspoon grated lemon rind
1 cup sugar
2 eggs
1 cup sour cream
1½ cups wheat bran flakes cereal
1½ cups unsifted all-purpose flour
1 teaspoon baking powder
¼ teaspoon salt
½ cup raisins

In large bowl cream margarine, lemon rind and sugar until light and fluffy. Beat in eggs one at a time, beating well after each addition. Mix sour cream and wheat bran cereal; let stand 1 to 2 minutes until cereal is soft. Mix flour, baking powder and salt; add alternately with cereal mixture to creamed mixture. Stir in raisins. Turn into greased 9-inch tube cake pan. Bake in 350 degree oven 55 to 60 minutes or until cake tester inserted in cake comes out clean. Cool 10 minutes, remove from pan and cool completely. Frost top of coffeecake with Vanilla Glaze. (Recipe follows.) Makes one 9-inch coffeecake ring.

VANILLA GLAZE

1 cup unsifted confectioners' sugar
1 tablespoon soft margarine or butter
4 to 6 teaspoons milk
½ teaspoon vanilla

Beat all ingredients until smooth, using enough milk to make a spreadable consistency.

"What's for lunch?" That is the question heard coast-to-coast everyday. Answer with imaginative recipes that include fiber-rich wheat bran cereal, one of the best sources of dietary fiber, which helps regulate the digestive system.

All-bran cereals are a nutty-sweet tasting ingredient in Barbecued Branburgers and part of a savory topping for fresh spinach salad. And wheat bran cereals will enhance a spicy Applesauce Bran Bread.

BARBECUED BRANBURGERS

2/3 cup chili sauce
¼ cup finely chopped onion
¼ cup finely chopped green pepper
2 tablespoons prepared mustard
½ cup shreds of wheat bran cereal
1 teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
1 pound ground beef

In medium bowl mix chili sauce, onion, green pepper and mustard. Measure ½ cup sauce and reserve for basting burgers. Stir wheat bran cereal into remaining sauce. Let stand 5 minutes to soften cereal. Stir in salt, pepper and ground beef; mix well. Shape into 6 patties. Place on broiler rack set 5 inches from heat. Brush with some of remaining sauce, and cook 5 minutes. Turn, baste with sauce, and cook 3 to 5 minutes. Turn, baste with sauce, and cook 3 to 5 minutes longer or to desired degree of doneness. Makes 6 servings.

BRAN SPINACH SALAD

¼ cup margarine or butter
1 cup shreds of wheat bran cereal
1½ teaspoons chopped chives
1 teaspoon dried leaf basil
¾ teaspoon paprika
½ teaspoon dried dill weed
4 cups torn spinach leaves
4 cups torn lettuce leaves
6 hard-cooked eggs, sliced
1 cup halved cherry tomatoes
¼ pound fresh mushrooms, sliced, or 1 can (2 or 3 ounces) sliced mushrooms, drained

In small skillet melt margarine. Add wheat bran cereal, chives, basil, paprika and dill weed; mix lightly. Stir over low heat for about 4 minutes, or until slightly toasted. Remove from heat and cool. In large bowl, combine spinach, lettuce, eggs, cherry tomatoes and mushrooms. Sprinkle with prepared bran topping, add Mustard Dressing (recipe follows) and toss lightly. Serve immediately. Makes 6 servings.

MUSTARD DRESSING

1 tablespoon hot mustard
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
1½ tablespoons lemon juice
¼ cup red wine vinegar
½ cup salad oil
1 tablespoon chopped parsley

In small bowl mix all ingredients, or shake in jar with tight lid.

APPLESAUCE BRAN BREAD

½ cup regular margarine or butter
1 teaspoon cinnamon
¼ teaspoon cloves
¾ cup sugar
2 eggs
1 and 2/3 cups unsifted all-purpose flour
1 teaspoon baking soda
¼ teaspoon baking

Say... "Cheese", Please!

By any other name it would smell as sweet.

Basically, cheese is concentrated, fermented milk. All cheeses contain the same milk ingredients, but the amounts vary in the different varieties. Been confused by all the names and labels like cheese "food" and cheese "spread", "natural" cheese and "processed" cheese? These names have to do with the amount of butterfat and moisture in the product. So-called "natural" cheeses must have 30% butterfat, or more. Processed cheeses should contain at least 30%. Cheese food, at least 23%. Cheese spread, at least 20%. "Imitation" cheeses must contain (in some degree) protein and fat from a non-animal source. And harder cheeses contain less moisture than the softer varieties. Definitions or no, it's often difficult to tell the difference from one kind to another by taste or looks alone. But no matter which you choose, cheese is a tasty and versatile way to provide protein, minerals and vitamins for your family.

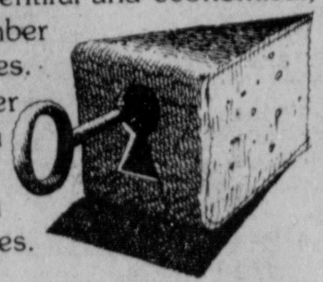
O, to be a giant mouse.

This remaining hulk of cheese with craters in it, doesn't go to waste. It's melted down and pasteurized and mixed with whey and sugar, and stabilizers to keep it from crumbling. The result is that tasty variety known as processed cheese. You've heard of whey in the Miss Muffet nursery rhyme. Well, 100 lbs. of milk makes 10 lbs. of cheese (curds) and 90 lbs. of liquid whey. Dry whey powder is not only high in protein, it's a good binding agent for candies and processed cheeses, among other products.

Focus on cheddar.

Originally from Cheddar, England, much good cheddar now comes from Wisconsin, as well as a few other areas across our nation. It's a hard, smooth, firm cheese. The taste can be mild, all the way up to sharp (read the label to avoid surprises). Color may shade from pale yellow to rich orange. Cheddar is made of cow's milk, and aged anywhere from two months to a year. The longer curing produces the sharper flavor. Cheddar was once made in cones, wheels or horn shapes. But now squares are more usual since they're easier to transport around the globe. Folks had gotten used to the half-moon shape of Longhorn Cheddar, though, so today's manufacturers actually cut out the half rounds from a huge block.

Key Buys of the Week.



We hope we've directed your attention to the cheese, by now. It's plentiful and economical, and we can pass along a number of manufacturers allowances. (Look for the Key Buy sign.) We offer lots of other good values to help you round out your shopping list. Here's more than 50 good prices to get you started. There's more in our stores.

Different dessert ideas

Try icy island yogurt, sour cream date drop cookies

Imagine the taste of warm tropical sunshine, of refreshing tropical showers; the taste of a fresh juicy peach and a sweet ripe Crenshaw melon. Surprisingly, all of these luscious qualities can be found in one golden fruit — the exotic papaya from Hawaii.

Sent from the Islands almost daily, Hawaiian papayas are becoming a welcome addition to many Mainland tables. If you haven't yet sampled a spoonful of the delicious papaya, treat yourself! Try slicing Hawaiian papaya in half, adding a squeeze of lime juice and eating like a melon. Simply wonderful and wonderfully simple! The papaya also becomes an edible bowl when filled with all kinds of goodies — favorite salads, scoops of cottage cheese, ice cream and even frozen yogurt.

Hawaiian papaya is a versatile — and healthful — fruit. At a mere 78 calories per half (approximately 7 ounces) and rich in vitamins A and C, papaya makes a satisfying, yet diet-safe treat, too. When teamed with protein and calcium rich dairy products, the Hawaiian papaya is a nutritious, anytime pick-me-up.

Our Icy Island Yogurt, a super refresher and great make-ahead dessert, is a heavenly combination of fresh Hawaiian papaya and tangy yogurt, churned in an ice cream freezer then scooped out and served in papaya boats. Since papayas don't darken when cut, you can even prepare the papaya halves ahead and keep refrigerated until serving time. Topped with a dollop of yogurt and capped with a strawberry, this frozen yogurt is truly a tropical delight!

As a tasty go-with, try baking up a batch of Sour Cream Date Drop Cookies. Cake-like on the inside, crunchy on the outside, these sure to please cookies are given a distinctive flavor boost with the addition of dairy sour cream.

Selecting fresh Hawaiian papaya is easy. Just look for the golden-yellow color that indicates ripeness. A yellow-green papaya will ripen in a few days if left at room temperature. Be sure to keep the ripe papaya in your refrigerator where it will stay in top-notch condition for about a week. Also keep in mind that the average Hawaiian papaya weighs about a pound and will yield two generous servings, making them ideal purchases for single or two person families.

ICY ISLAND YOGURT

2 eggs, separated
¾ cup sugar
Dash salt
6 papayas
3 tablespoons fresh lime juice
2½ cups plain yogurt
Whole strawberries for garnish (optional)
Sliced pineapple rings
Sour Cream Date Drop Cookies (recipe follows)

Beat egg yolks, ¼ cup of the sugar and salt until light and lemony. Peel, seed and puree 2 of the papayas; stir into beaten yolks with lime juice and ¼ cup more sugar. Beat until sugar has dissolved. Stir in yogurt. Beat egg whites with remining ¼ cup sugar to soft peaks. Fold into papaya-yogurt mixture. Churn freeze in hand crank or electric ice cream maker following manufacturer's instructions. Halve and seed remaining papayas. Scoop forzen yogurt into cavities. Garnish with a dollop of yogurt and whole strawberry, if desired. Serve with pineapple rings in a sundae dish. Accompany with Sour Cream Date Drop Cookies. Makes 8 servings, about 1 quart frozen yogurt).

NOTE: Frozen yogurt can be stored in freezer until needed. Let stand at room temperature 15 to 20 minutes before serving.

SOUR CREAM DATE DROP COOKIES

1 cup butter
2 cups firmly packed brown sugar
2 eggs
3½ cups flour
1 teaspoon of each baking soda and salt
2/3 cup dairy sour cream
1 cup chopped dates
Egg white, lightly beaten
Sugar

In mixing bowl, cream together butter, sugar and eggs. Stir in sifted dry ingredients alternately with sour cream. Mix in dates. Drop by teaspoonfuls onto greased baking sheets. Brush with beaten egg white, and sprinkle with sugar. Bake in 400 degree oven 8 to 10 minutes or until lightly browned. Cool on racks. Makes about 5 dozen cookies.

NORWAY PIZZA

Tastes combined

Try a 'Norway' pizza as snack

By Aileen Claire
NEA Food Editor

A blend of two worlds makes a good snack for a teen-age party or a late nibble for adult sports fans.

Taking a tip from the Italians, we combine sardines and sour cream as suggested by some Norwegian friends and top this with cheese slices.

Use a cheese-pizza mix or your own pizza dough made ahead. Whatever, you'll find this particular filling a favorite for those who like their pizza "around-the-world."

NORWAY PIZZA

1 package (16 oz.) cheese-pizza mix
1 can (3¾ oz.) Norway sardines, drained
½ cup sour cream
1 egg yolk
1 tablespoon capers
4 fresh mushrooms, sliced or 1 can (4 oz.) sliced mushrooms, drained
⅛ teaspoon oregano

Preheat oven to 425 degrees. Mix dough for pizza, following instructions on package. Pat out to a rectangle 9 by 12 inches on a cookie sheet. Arrange sardines on dough, spacing them about one inch apart. Blend sour cream, egg yolk, capers, mushrooms and oregano. Pour about two-third can of the pizza sauce with sour cream mixture and swirl lightly. Spread over dough. Sprinkle generously with the grated cheese (included with the pizza mix). Bake in preheated oven 20 to 25 minutes, or until bubbly and golden. Cut into slices and serve at once. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

Bran pancakes, coffee cake tasty and nutritional—

powder
½ teaspoon salt
1 cup applesauce
1 cup shreds of wheat bran cereal
1 cup raisins

In large bowl cream margarine, cinnamon, cloves and sugar until light and fluffy. Beat in eggs. Mix flour, baking soda, baking powder and salt. Mix applesauce and wheat bran cereal. Blend flour into creamed mixture alternately with applesauce and cereal. Stir in raisins. Turn into greased 9 x 5 x 3-inch loaf pan. Bake in 350 degree oven 55 to 60 minutes, or until cake tester inserted in center of loaf comes out clean. Cool 10 minutes. Turn out of pan and cool completely. Wrap well and store overnight before slicing. Makes 1 loaf.

It's easy and smart to add bran cereals to hearty supper main dishes. We'll show you how with Chicken and Bran Stuffed Pepper and Stuffed Cabbage Leaves with Curry Sauce.

For your grand finale, serve a rich, moist and spicy Bran Carrot Cake.

CHICKEN AND BRAN STUFFED PEPPERS

8 green peppers
Water
1 can (1 pound, 12 ounces) tomatoes
2 cups cut-up cooked chicken
¼ cup chopped onion
1/3 cup chopped celery with leaves
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon dried leaf basil
⅛ teaspoon pepper
1 cup shreds of wheat bran cereal
1/3 cup package precooked rice

Cut off tops of green peppers and remove seeds. Cook, uncovered, in large kettle of boiling water for 5 minutes, drain and set aside. Coarsely chop tomatoes, reserving liquid. In medium bowl combine tomatoes, liquid and remaining ingredients. Spoon into prepared green peppers. Place in shallow baking dish and add just enough water to cover bottom of pan. Bake in 350 degrees oven 30 minutes. Makes 8 servings.

STUFFED CABBAGE LEAVES WITH CURRY SAUCE

8 large or 12 medium cabbage leaves
Water
½ pound pork sausage
¼ cup chopped onion
1 cup chopped, pared, cored apple
½ cup chopped cabbage
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
¼ teaspoon dried leaf thyme
½ pound uncooked ground beef
1 cup shreds of wheat bran cereal

Add cabbage leaves to kettle of boiling water and cook for 6 minutes or until leaves are pliable and easy to roll. Drain and pat dry on paper towels. In large skillet break up sausage over medium heat, add onion and cook until onion is tender and sausage lightly browned. Add apple, chopped cabbage, salt, pepper and thyme. Cook 10 minutes over medium heat. Remove from heat; stir in uncooked ground beef and wheat bran cereal. Place ½ cup meat mixture in the center of each cabbage leaf. Fold sides of the cabbage leaf to make a small bundle. Fasten with wooden picks. Prepare Curry Sauce in large skillet, add cabbage rolls, cover and simmer 35 minutes, or until rolls are tender. Spoon sauce over rolls occasionally during cooking. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

CURRY SAUCE

2 tablespoons margarine or butter
½ cup chopped onion
1 teaspoon curry powder
2 tablespoons flour
2 cups chicken broth (or 2 chicken bouillon cubes dissolved in 2 cups water)
2 teaspoons lemon juice
¼ cup raisins

In large skillet melt margarine over medium heat; add onion and curry powder, and cook until onion is tender. Blend in flour; stir in chicken broth and lemon juice. Cook, stirring constantly, until sauce thickens and comes to a boil; stir in raisins.

BRAN CARROT CAKE

1 cup regular margarine or butter
1¾ cups sugar
3 eggs
2½ cups unsifted all-purpose flour
2 teaspoons baking soda
1 teaspoon baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
2 teaspoons cinnamon
½ teaspoon ground cloves
1½ cups mashed, cooked, pared carrots (1 pound carrots)
1 cup shreds of wheat bran cereal
1 cup raisins

In large bowl cream margarine and sugar. Beat in eggs, one at a time. Mix flour, baking soda, baking powder, salt, cinnamon and cloves; blend into creamed mixture alternately with carrots. Stir in wheat bran cereal and raisins. Turn into greased 10-inch tube cake pan. Bake in 350 degrees oven 60 to 65 minutes, or until cake tester inserted in cake comes out clean. Cool 10 minutes, remove from pan and cool completely. To serve, sift confectioners' sugar over top of cake. Makes 18 servings.

Having a party? Foods you make yourself outshine all others. Here, Bran Crackers have the nutty-taste of bran cereal enhanced by tangy caraway and onion. A Bran Cheese Ball, combining cream cheese, cottage cheese, and blue cheese, has easy spreading consistency with lots of texture from wheat bran cereal.

BRAN CHEESE BALL

1 package (8 ounce) cream cheese, softened
½ cup pot cheese or dry cottage cheese
2 tablespoons blue cheese
4 teaspoons chopped chives
1 teaspoon lemon juice
½ teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon cayenne pepper
1 cup shreds of wheat bran cereal, divided

In small bowl beat cream cheese, pot cheese and blue cheese until smooth. Stir in chives, lemon juice, salt, cayenne and ½ cup wheat bran cereal. Chill until firm. Shape into a ball. Roll in remaining ½ cup wheat bran cereal. Chill until ready to serve. Serve with crackers. Makes 8 appetizer servings.

BRAN CRACKERS

½ cup shreds of wheat bran cereal
¼ cup milk
¾ cup unsifted all-purpose flour
½ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon grated onion
½ teaspoon caraway seeds
¼ cup regular margarine or butter

Mix wheat bran cereal and milk. Let stand 1 to 2 minutes or until almost all liquid is absorbed. In large bowl mix flour, salt, onion and caraway seeds. Cut in margarine until mixture resembles coarse meal. Stir in bran. Gather dough in a ball. Roll out 1/16 to ⅛ inch thick on pastry cloth or waxed paper. Cut into 2-inch circles or shapes. Place on ungreased baking sheet. Bake in 350 degree oven 10 to 12 minutes or until lightly browned; do not overbake. Remove from baking sheet and cool on wire rack. Makes approximately 3 dozen crackers.

Try blue 'cheese' cake as dessert

If you like to set trends, serve this Blue Heaven Cake next time you entertain. You'll have everyone asking for the recipe, and you'll really pique their interest when you tell them that the secret ingredient is — blue cheese!

When you are a hostess, it's fun to serve something out of the ordinary. And the Blue Heaven Cake is not a lot of work because it calls for a packaged cake mix. Start with an angel food cake mix that is done in two steps. Add crumbled blue cheese during the last minute of beating time. In the finished cake, the flavor contribution of the cheese is subtle but distinctive. It gives angel food cake a whole new personality!

Of course, blue cheese is no stranger to the hostess. It is a buffet table favorite, served on crackers, or mixed with other ingredients for dips and spreads. The blue cheese flavor is a natural with vegetables. Carrots, celery and other crisp vegetables cut julienne-style are given flavor enhancement with a blue cheese dip.

And on the dessert circuit, fresh fruit tastes better with a side offering of blue cheese. Nothing could be simpler, and the flavor marriage is perfect.

But for something out of the ordinary, do try Blue Heaven Cake. And to be at the head of the procession, serve it before word gets around!

BLUE HEAVEN CAKE

½ cup crumbled blue cheese
1 package (14.5 oz.) deluxe angel food cake mix, 2 steps
1 package (8 oz.) cream cheese, softened
1 pound box powdered sugar, sifted
1 teaspoon vanilla
2 teaspoons lemon juice
½ teaspoon salt

Prepare cake according to package directions, adding blue cheese during final 1 minute of beating time. When cake is cool, beat cream cheese. Gradually add powdered sugar. Add remaining ingredients and beat at high speed about 3 minutes. Spread on cake.

Garden yield

When gardens yield fresh vegetables, speed them to the table with quick cooking and simple seasonings. Here are some Herb Butters which make good combos: savory with snap beans and succotash; basil with peas and/or tomatoes; oregano with zucchini or tomatoes; mint with peas and carrots; paprika, thyme or marjoram with corn.

Delicate cheese and spinach dumpling

Malfatti is easy tabletop cookery from Italian repertoire

Next time you're planning to serve a fancy chafing dish meal, think Italian. Many dishes from Italy's gastronomic repertoire are excellent choices for easy tabletop cookery, including malfatti, a delicate cheese and spinach dumpling.

Meaning "badly made," malfatti bears a most inappropriate name since it has all the sophistication indicative of most northern Italian cuisine. And, it's a cinch, to boot!

It's believed malfatti was so named because the cheese and spinach mixture is poached and then sauteed without being wrapped in pasta or dough as are ravioli or gnocchi. But instead of being poorly made, the dish is actually easier and more elegant to prepare and serve than the wrapped offerings.

Since much is done ahead of time, final preparation at the table is simple. To make things go even smoother, be sure to use canned heat. A solid fuel, it is smokeless, odorless and spill-proof. The flame is easily controlled, too, an important element of success.

Malfattis is best when the mixture is allowed to "rest" in your refrigerator overnight or at least several hours. Poaching can be done in advance, and the finishing touches are put on at the table.

This version calls for sauteed scallops and tomato rings, perfect compliments to the delicately-flavored dumplings. Malfatti also may be served without the scallops as an appetizer or as an interesting side dish to almost any meat.

Fettuccini Florentine is another Italian favorite that can be beautifully adapted to chafing dish cookery. Serve it as a separate pasta course or as an accompaniment to chicken or veal.

MALFATTI

3 eggs
1 pound ricotta cheese
1/3 cup grated Parmesan cheese
2 teaspoons dried leaf basil
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon nutmeg
¼ teaspoon pepper
1 pound fresh spinach, cleaned and finely chopped
½ cup chopped parsley
¼ cup finely chopped onion
1 clove garlic, minced
2½ cups soft bread crumbs
½ cup flour
¼ cup butter or margarine
Additional grated Parmesan cheese
2 tomatoes, sliced and halved
1 pound scallops, sauteed in 2 tablespoons butter or margarine for 3 minutes
Additional chopped parsley

In large bowl, beat eggs until well mixed. Add ricotta and Parmesan cheeses, basil, salt, pepper, nutmeg, spinach, parsley, onion, garlic and bread crumbs. Mix well and chill several hours or overnight. Drain off any liquid. Form into 8 oval dumplings. Coat lightly with flour. Half fill a large kettle with lightly salted water and bring to a boil. Add dumplings to water, in one layer, and simmer until they rise to the surface. Simmer 5 minutes longer. Remove dumplings and drain well.

At serving time melt butter in large crepe pan over canned heat. Add dumplings to butter and turn to coat well; arrange outside of crepe pan, and heat. Sprinkle with Parmesan cheese. Arrange halved tomato slices inside ring of dumplings and top with sauteed scallops. Sprinkle with additional chopped parsley. Makes 8 servings.

FETTUCCINI FLORENTINE

1 pound bacon
1 pound fettuccini noodles
3 teaspoons salt, divided
½ cup butter or margarine
1 package (10 ounces) frozen chopped spinach, thawed, drained
1½ cups heavy cream
1 egg, slightly beaten
2 cups grated Parmesan cheese
¼ teaspoon pepper

Cook bacon until lightly browned, drain and crumble. Cook noodles according to package directions, using 1 teaspoon salt in water. In a large crepe pan or chafing dish over canned heat, melt butter. Add drained spinach and bacon; cook until heated through. Add cooked noodles to chafing dish and toss lightly. Combine cream and egg; add to noodles with grated cheese, remaining 2 teaspoons salt and pepper. Toss to mix well. Cover and cook for 5 minutes, to heat through. Makes 8 servings.

Almond cheese bread recipe

Whether you're an experienced bread-baker or have never baked a loaf of bread in your life, here's a recipe to treasure: Almond Cheese Bread.

This savory loaf, redolent with onion, cheese and oregano, is further enhanced by the flavor and texture of finely chopped almonds. Slice it to serve warm or at room temperature with a salad of fresh fall fruits such as pears, apples, oranges and grapes. Spread slices with sweet butter as a treat with tea or coffee. Pop a slice or two into the toaster and treat yourself at breakfast time.

Because this is a bread everyone is certain to like, you might keep the recipe in mind as a gift from your kitchen at Christmas time. It takes well to freezing, so you might make several loaves as time permits and stash them away in your freezer, ready to tie with a ribbon when Christmas is suddenly upon us.

ALMOND CHEESE BREAD

1 cup slivered almonds
1 package (8 oz.) cheese crackers (50 two-inch)
1 cup sifted flour
3 teaspoons baking powder
1½ teaspoons onion powder
¾ teaspoon salt
¼ cup sugar
¾ teaspoon oregano, crushed
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
3 eggs
½ cup milk

Chop almonds in food processor or electric blender, stop-stir-and-go fashion, until finely chopped but not ground. Crush crackers fine with rolling pin or use food processor or blender, a portion of crackers at a time. (You should get two cups cracker crumbs, packed.)

Into medium bowl, sift flour with paking powder, onion powder and salt. Mix in almonds, crumbs, sugar and oregano. Cut in butter until well distributed. Beat eggs with milk, pour into dry ingredients and stir until well-mixed. Pour into greased and floured 8 by 4½ by 2¾-inch glass loaf pan. Bake in center of oven at 325 degrees for 40 minutes, or until done. Makes 1 loaf.

Canned peaches

Use your imagination when canning peaches. Add cinnamon, cloves or your favorite spices to the sugar syrup for an intriguing flavor change. A quarter cup brandy will also add a new dimension to home canned fruit.

ZUCCHINI WITH PASTA

Zucchini with pasta zesty

There's an old saying grandmother used to use, "Cheese closes the stomach." That's something to think about if you've considered vegetarian meals on occasion and then discarded them, thinking they might not satisfy a hungry family.

Adding cheese to the meal will certainly provide satiety value, which is what the saying means. Cheese satisfies so it literally closes the stomach to more food. And cheese can be added to a meal in so many ways: shredded in a stick-to-the-ribs chowder, cheese and crackers for a snack, a super sandwich, a wedge with pie, cheesecake or in an entree.

When you combine a vegetable with cheese and pasta, it's a very tasty combination, especially when that vegetable is economical and readily available zucchini. Try it with some sweet red pepper or pimiento for color and shell macaroni for interest. Butter and cream help add richness to this main dish as well as the two Italian cheeses, Provolone of the smoky taste and Mozzarella, the stretchy cheese we know from pizza.

A garden salad of lettuce, tomatoes and green onions adds a crunchy note to the meal, while baked apples or pears would be perfect for dessert. Chilled milk is the ideal beverage with these foods.

ZUCCHINI WITH PASTA

- 2 tablespoons butter
- 4 cups thinly sliced zucchini
- ½ cup chopped sweet red peppers or pimiento
- 1 teaspoon salt
- ½ teaspoon oregano
- Dash pepper
- 8 ounces shell macaroni
- 2 tablespoons butter
- 2 tablespoons light cream or half and half
- 1 cup (4 oz.) shredded Provolone cheese
- 1 cup (4 oz.) shredded Mozzarella cheese

Melt butter; add zucchini and red pepper and saute just until tender, 10 to 15 minutes. Add salt, oregano and pepper. Cook macaroni according to package directions; rinse and drain. Stir in butter, cream and Provolone cheese. Divide mixture into 4 gratin dishes or individual shallow baking dishes. Divide zucchini mixture over macaroni; top with Mozarella cheese. Broil 3 to 5 inches from heat until lightly browned. Makes 4 servings.

When Italians, or their menus, speak of "fettuccine," they mean the flat, ribbon-like noodles. One of their favorite ways of preparing them is with butter ("burro"), cream and cheeses. Not only do the butter and cream add flavor to the noodles, but also satiety value. Both Parmesan and Romano cheeses are used with this dish for a subtle and elegant flavor. They add protein (nine to 11 grams protein per ounce).

Serve this dish with a crisp green salad, adding artichokes, and perhaps a few anchovies, with an Italian dressing. Fresh pineapple or pears with Provolone cheese, or pineapple and green grapes with Gorgonzola, a blue-veined cheese, provide a superb though simple dessert.

FETTUCCINE AL BURRO (Egg Noodles with Butter and Cheese)

- ½ cup (1 stick) butter
- ¼ cup whipping cream
- ¼ cup grated Parmesan cheese
- ¼ cup grated Romano cheese
- 1 pound fettuccine or linguine noodles
- Salt
- Pepper
- Mushrooms

Cream butter until light; add cream gradually, beating constantly. Beat in cheeses. Cover and set aside. (If butter-cheese mixture is not to be used at once, refrigerate. Let come to room temperature before using.)

Warm serving bowl and plates by placing in oven set on lowest heat. Cook fettuccine noodles according to package directions; rinse and drain. Pour into warmed serving bowl. Add creamed butter-cheese mixture and toss with the fettuccini with two forks until well-coated. Season to taste with salt and pepper. Garnish with sauteed mushrooms, if desired, and pass extra Parmesan cheese. Serve at once on warmed plates.

The perfect peach

In choosing peaches for any kind of preserving, look for a fresh, creamy yellow color. That bright rosy blush, characteristic of some varieties, does not necessarily indicate ripeness. Avoid peaches with blemishes or traces of green

Tasty treat for toting along

Brown bag apple pear pie is a two-fruit dessert

Riddle: What's even better than a fruit dessert? Answer: One made with two fruits.

And right now, there are two fresh fruits at the peak of ripeness in your local market — tangy apples and succulent pears. While both are prized for eating out of hand, they also complement each other beautifully when cooked together, according to the United Fresh Fruit and Vegetable Association.

Brown Bag Apple Pear Pie, contrary to what its name implies, does not belong at the bottom of a lunch sack. Rather, it is baked in a heavy paper bag (the color is incidental) to seal in its natural juices and prevent messy spillovers.

It's an easy pie to make since it requires only an unbaked shell for pastry. The brown sugar topping serves as a sweet liaison between the tangy apples and mellow pears. Baked in the bag for 30 minutes, then uncovered until the apples are tender, this pie keeps its juicy goodness to itself rather than sharing it with the oven floor.

Another harmonious combination of these harvest favorites is Spicy Apple-Pear Compóte. Zesty and golden, this duet will sing its own praises anywhere on the menu. Serve as a light, refreshing dessert, pleasing even to dieters since it contains no sugar. It also makes an excellent relish with roast chicken or pork. And save some for breakfast — it's wonderful on waffles and pancakes.

Select bright, firm unbruised apples that are well colored for the individual variety. Pears for baking and cooking should be firm and slightly under-ripe; for immediate eating, however, they should respond to gentle pressure of the hand.

Fresh apples and pears are healthful as well as delicious. Both fruits contain a variety of vitamins and body-building minerals essential to good health. Apples are also a valuable source of bluk-producing fiber.

BROWN BAG APPLE PEAR PIE

- 3 apples, pared, cored and sliced
- 3 pears, pared, cored and sliced
- ¼ cup sugar
- 4 tablespoons flour
- ¼ teaspoon ground nutmeg
- Dash ground cinnamon
- 1 unbaked 9-inch pastry shell
- 1 large brown paper bag

Heat oven to 400 degrees F. In large mixing bowl combine apples, pears, sugar, flour, nutmeg and cinnamon. Turn into prepared pastry shell. Prepare Brown Sugar Topping and spread over fruit slices. Slide unbaked pie into the paper bag; fold ends over and secure with paper clips. Bake 30 minutes. Remove pie from bag and continue to bake 30 minutes longer or until apples are tender.

BROWN SUGAR TOPPING

- ½ cup flour
- ½ cup brown sugar
- Dash cinnamon
- ¼ pound butter

Combine flour, brown sugar and cinnamon; cut in butter until mixture is smooth. Makes 8 servings.

SPICY APPLE-PEAR COMPOTE

- 3 large apples
- 3 large pears
- 2 cups sugar
- 3 cups water
- 6 thin lemon slices
- 3 whole cloves
- 1 tablespoon grated orange rind
- 1 inch piece cinnamon stick
- 2 teaspoons cornstarch
- ¼ cup cold water

Pare, core, and slice apples and pears. Combine sugar and water in medium saucepan, bring to boiling. Add lemon slices, cloves, orange rind and cinnamon. Add apple and pear slices. Simmer, uncovered, over moderate heat until apples are tender, but still firm. about 15 minutes. Turn the fruit once during cooking.

Remove apple and pear slices to serving dish. Garnish with lemon slices. Bring syrup to a rolling boil and cook until a thin syrup forms, about 5 minutes. Meanwhile, dissolve cornstarch in cold water. Add to sugar syrup. Cook 2 minutes until slightly thickened. Cool; pour over fruit slices.

Makes 6 servings.

Serve teriyaki kabobs

Fall entertaining time is here again. This cocktail party find time for last minute primping and spend more time with your guests than in the kitchen. Serve these marvelous "Teriyaki Kabobs."

They can be prepared ahead (just marinate three hours) and at serving time you spend all of about five minutes in the kitchen. You simply need to pop them into the broiler. The man of the house might even want to do them on the grill. Unlike some appetizers, "Teriyaki Kabobs" are hearty appetite-pleasers — chunks of juicy sirloin, shrimp, pineapple and green pepper. They are colorful, attractive and have a delectable, delicate flavor but still offer your guests more to sink their teeth into than a dainty canope.

TERIYAKI KABOBS

- ½ cup soy sauce
- ½ cup honey
- ¼ cup cream sherry
- 1 can (6 oz.) tomato paste
- ½ cup water
- 1 teaspoon grated orange rind
- ½ teaspoon garlic powder
- 2 pounds sirloin steak, cut into 20 cubes
- 20 large raw shrimp, shelled and cleaned
- 1 can (20 oz.) pineapple chunks, drained
- 5 green onions, cut into 2-inch pieces
- 1 large green pepper, cut into 1-inch squares
- 20 skewers (6 inch)

In a large bowl, combine first 8 ingredients; mix thoroughly. Add beef and shrimp; cover and refrigerate at least 3 hours. Drain beef and shrimp, reserving marinade. To assemble kabobs, place cube of meat, shrimp, pineapple chunk, piece of green onion and bell pepper square onto each skewer. Place skewers on rack in broiling pan; brush with reserved marinade. Broil 5 inches from heat 3 to 5 minutes or until meat is brown and shrimp is pink; turn and brush with marinade; broil 5 minutes longer. Makes 20 kabobs.

Plate skirt steak

Plate skirt steak is perhaps a less familiar cut but it's moderately priced and very flavorful. This is a coarse, fibrous muscle weighing about ¾ pound. It is attached to the diaphram inside the rib cage. There are only two skirt steaks per carcass. You may not find them in every market. These steaks are generally rolled and cut into pinwheels. Because they are juicy, this is a good choice for charcoal grilling. Their robust flavor goes well with spicy marinades.

CATFISH ELDORADO

Soul food with Mexican flair

'Catfish Eldorado' de Colorado

Catfish Eldorado De Colorado, featuring farm-raised catfish with a Mexican flair, captured first prize at the 1977 National Farm-raised Catfish cooking Contest.

This highly seasoned dish that can be prepared using either fillets or whole catfish is sure to satisfy even the heartiest of appetites. Part of the preparation can be done in advance, allowing you to spend less time in the kitchen if you're pressed for time or have guests.

Farm-raised catfish used for this delicacy is the product of an important industry that began in the early 1600s. Farm-raising catfish has become a profitable enterprise and a new food delight for the homemaker because her house and kitchen will not have a fishy odor when she cooks farm-raised catfish. This lack of fishy odor, combined with a mild, versatile, delicate flavor from fish grown in a pollution-free environment, is causing more homemakers to serve farm-raised catfish to families and guests.

Since the flavor of farm-raised catfish is delicately balanced, it can be a winner at a fondue pan, a beer bust, or enpapillote at a famous restaurant. Variety in preparation allows you to serve catfish simply or elegantly, depending on the mood and occasion.

Here's how you can treat your family, friends and guests to Catfish Eldorado De Colorado:

CATFISH ELDORADO DE COLORADO

6 skinned, pan-dressed catfish
Lard or bacon drippings
1 medium white onion, diced
1 large clove garlic, minced
1 green bell pepper, diced
1 can (28 oz.) tomatoes
3 dashes liquid hot pepper sauce (or to taste)
1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce
1/3 cup (generous) beer
½ teaspoon basil
1 bay leaf
½ teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
3 eggs
4 tablespoons white flour
2 cans (4 oz.) green chili strips, roasted and peeled (pit, white core, and seeds removed)
6 ounces Monterey Jack cheese (or Longhorn cheddar), shredded coarsely

Saute onion, garlic and bell pepper in 1 or 2 tablespoons lard until softened. Add tomatoes and simmer for 5 minutes. Add liquid hot pepper sauce, Worcestershire sauce, beer, basil, bay leaf, salt and pepper. Simmer, stirring occasionally for 10-15 minutes, (or a little longer if desired). While simmering sauce, prepare catfish. Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Melt lard in a frying pan to lightly cover bottom. Separate egg yolks and whites. Beat egg whites until fluffy. Fold in beaten egg yolks and stir egg mixture briskly in bowl. Wash catfish in cold water, dredge fish, one by one, in flour. Holding fish by tail, dip in egg micture and cover completely. Place fish immediately in moderately heated frying pan and place in non-greased baking disy. Lay 3½ inch wide green chili strips lengthwise on each fish. Cover fish with tomato sauce. Bake in oven about 20 to 25 minutes or until fish flakes easily when tested with fork. Sprinkle grated cheese over each fish during last 5 minutes of baking. Allow cheese to melt. Serves 6.

(Enameled saucepan and non-metalic baking dish are recommended for best flavor.)

1 pound snap beans, tipped and cut in 1-inch lengths
2 tablespoons butter
½ cup finely chopped onion
2 tablespoons flour
2 tablespoons sugar
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1½ teaspoons chicken bouillon granules dissolved in 1 and 1/3 cups hot water
¾ pound seedless green grapes, stemmed, to make 2 cups

In a medium saucepan boil the beans in about 1 cup boiling water, covered, just until tender — 8 to 10 minutes; drain if necessary and reserve. Melt the butter in the clean empty saucepan and add the onion; cook gently until wilted; stir in the flour, then the sugar and lemon juice; gradually stir in the flour, then the sugar and lemon juice; gradually stir in the bouillon; cook gently, stirring constantly, until thickened. Stir in the beans and grapes and reheat. Makes 6 servings.

SPICE ROUNDS

They're rather crunchy and they're eggless.

1 cup flour, fork-stir well to aerate before measuring
½ teaspoon baking soda
1¼ teaspoons apple-pie spice
1/3 cup butter or margarine
1/3 cup firmly packed light brown sugar
2 tablespoons molasses
¼ cup generous, finely chopped pecans or walnuts

Stir together the flour, soda and spice. Cream the butter and sugar; beat in the molasses. Gradually stir in the flour mixture until blended. Chill until firm enough to handle. Using 1 level measuring teaspoon for each, roll into small balls; roll balls in the nuts and flatten slightly. Place, a few inches apart, on greased cookie sheets. Bake in a preheated 375-degree oven until browned — about 12 minutes. Let stand a minute or so before removing with a wide spatula to a wire rack to cool. Makes about 3 dozen. The baking soda produces a slightly crackled top and the spice helps dispel the soda flavor.

Note: The apple-pie spice we used is a combination of cinnamon, nutmeg, allspice and cardamom — all ground.

Toast bread lightly and spread on one side with butter. Stir together the grape jam, catchup, mustard and onion; spread on buttered side of toast. Top with turkey and Mozzarella. Criss-cross bacon over cheese. Broil until bacon is crisp and cheese begins to melt. Makes 3 to 6 servings — 1 or 2 slices per portion.

Chicken celery casserole

By Aileen Claire
NEA Food Editor

Chicken, celery and rice combine in a Dutch oven or heavy saucepan for a delicious dish that requires little attention. This is a good party entre, especially for young couples who are entertaining on a budget. Serve with a mixed green salad and a fresh fruit sherbet.

EVERGLADES CHICKEN AND CELERY CASSEROLE

4 tablespoons salad oil
1 chicken, (2½ to 3 pounds) cut into 8 pieces
1 cup regular cooking rice, uncooked
½ cup chopped onion
1 clove garlic, finely minced
2 cups water
3 chicken bouillon cubes
2 teaspoons paprika
¾ teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon ground black pepper
1 stalk celery
1 tablespoon basil leaves

In a Dutch oven or heavy saucepan heat oil. Add chicken and brown well. Remove chicken; set aside. Add rice, onion and garlic. Saute for 5 minutes, stirring constantly. Add water, bouillon cubes, paprika, salt and black pepper. Bring to the boiling point. Return chicken to Dutch oven. Cover and simmer for 15 minutes. Meanwhile, trim celery, removing sufficient leaves to make one-third cup chopped. Cut celery into 1-inch pieces (makes about 6 cups). Add celery to Dutch oven. Cover and simmer for 15 minutes. Add celery leaves and basil. Continue simmering until chicken and rice are tender, about 7 minutes. Makes 4 portions.

Use this tart-sweet fruit

Spicy plum crumb pie, fresh plum coffee ring 'delicious'

By Aileen Claire
NEA Food Editor

Plums have been abundant this season and this is a good time to enjoy a variety of desserts using this tart-sweet fruit.

Try a plum pie with a spicy crumb topping or a coffee ring that has a streusel topping and an added dash of plum sauce.

Some will get carried away and serve these treats with their favorite cheeses or ice cream or whipped cream toppings, too.

SPICY PLUM CRUMB PIE

2 cups sliced fresh California plums, unpeeled
¾ to 1 cup sugar (according to tartness of plums)
3 tablespoons cornstarch
2 teaspoons cinnamon
Dash of salt
1 unbaked pie shell (9 inch)
Butter or margarine
Spicy Crumb Topping

In mixing bowl, combine sugar, cornstarch, cinnamon and salt. Gently toss in plums. Pour mixture into unbaked pie shell. Dot with butter, sprinkle Spicy Crumb Topping over all. Bake in 400 degree oven 40 to 50 minutes. Makes one 9-inch pie.

SPICY CRUMB TOPPING

1 cup crushed corn flakes
½ cup firmly packed brown sugar
½ teaspoon cinnamon
¼ teaspoon nutmeg
½ cup butter or margarine

In mixing bowl, combine corn flakes, brown sugar, cinnamon and nutmeg. Cut in butter until mixture resembles small peas. Use to top plum pie filling.

FRESH PLUM COFFEE RING

2½ to 3 cups flour
1 package active dry yeast
¼ cup sugar
1 teaspoon salt
¼ cup butter, softened to room temperature
¾ cup hot water
1 egg
Vegetable oil
Plum Sauce
Streusel Topping
1 to 2 tablespoons lemon juice
1 cup powdered sugar

Combine 1 cup flour with yeast, sugar and salt in a mixing bowl. Add butter and water. Beat with an electric mixer 2 minutes. Add egg and one-half cup flour. Beat at high speed for 1 minute. With a wooden spoon, work in enough of the remaining flour to make a soft dough. Turn out on a floured board and knead 8 to 10 minutes or until dough is smooth and elastic. Let rest 20 minutes. Punch down. Roll dough into a rope. Starting in the center of a cookie sheet, make continuous rings, working outward from the center. Brush dough with oil and cover with plastic wrap. Refrigerate for 2 to 24 hours. Preheat oven to 400 degrees. Remove dough from refrigerator and let rise for 10 minutes. Spread Plum Sauce between coils on coffeecake and sprinkle with Streusel Topping. Bake 35 to 40 minutes or until coffee cake is golden. For glaze, blend together lemon juice and powdered sugar. Makes one 12-inch coffeecake.

PLUM SAUCE

4 fresh plums, sliced
¾ cup orange juice
½ cup sugar
2 tablespoons cornstarch

Combine orange juice, sugar and cornstarch in a saucepan. Blend thoroughly, then add plums. Cook over low heat until mixture is thick and clear, about 5 minutes. Remove from heat and cool.

STREUSEL TOPPING

3 tablespoons butter, softened to room temperature
¼ cup sugar
¼ teaspoon cinnamon
2/3 cup flour

Cream butter with sugar and cinnamon until light and fluffy. Work in flour, gradually, until mixture is crumbly.

Phils spoil Ron Cey's dream world

By JIM McCONNELL
PB Staff Writer

LOS ANGELES — For one brief shining moment, all was Camelot Tuesday night at Chavez Ravine.

Ron Cey's game-tying grand slam home run off Philadelphia ace Steve Carlton in the last of the seventh transformed Doger Stadium into a dream world, and Cey into a mythical hero, for the 55,968 fans in attendance.

Unfortunately for the Dodgers and their fans, the Phillies never believed it for a moment.

The Eastern Division champs shook off Cey's dramatic blast to come up with two runs in the top of the ninth and take the National League playoff opener 7-5 over L.A.

It was a game which, anyway you want to look at it, the Dodgers should have and could have won.

Dodger miscues, both mental and physical, gift-wrapped five runs for the visiting Phillies. That turned out to be two too many for Los Angeles to overcome.

The two teams will tangle again tonight (5:15 p.m.) in Game Two. Don Sutton (14-8) will oppose the Phils' Jim Lonborg (11-4).

While Dodger skipper Tommy Lasorda refused to acknowledge that Philly now has the edge in the playoff series in the wake of their win Tuesday, it's obvious the Dodgers are in deep trouble.

After an off-day Thursday for travel, the two teams will resume the series in Philadelphia for the weekend. Since the Phils have been almost unbeatable (60-21) at Veterans Stadium this year, tonight's game is a necessity for L.A. to win.

"Sure, winning the first game is a break for the Phillies," Lasorda admitted under questioning from scribes. "But they still have to win two to win the series. One win is just that, one win. They still need two more."

Phillie outfielder Greg Luzinski, who's mammouth two-run homer helped kayo Dodger southpaw Tommy John Tuesday, had a differing view.

"Sure, I think the Dodgers have to win the second game here," said the confident "Bull". "If they don't it's all over for them. There's no way they can beat us three times at the Vet."

Luzinski's homer, a 430-foot drive to dead center, got the Phillies off to a fast start in the game, but it was the grand-slammer by Cey that commanded most of the attention.

After the Phils had built a 5-1 lead, the Dodgers finally got something going against Carlton in the last of the seventh.

The 23-game winner looked to be in complete command as he fanned Steve Yeager to start the inning, but it was then that magical things started to happen for L.A.

Pinchhitter Jerry Grote walked on a 3-2 pitch, and Davey Lopes singled to left. Bill Russell forced Grote at third for the second out, but Reggie Smith walked, again on a 3-2 pitch, to load the sacks.

That brought Cey, the tying run, to the plate as the Dodger fans took full advantage of the situation to whoop it up.

With the capacity crowd literally screaming on every pitch, Cey and Carlton battled to a 3-2 count and "The Penguin" then fouled off a couple more deliveries to prolong the tension.

It was then that Cey waved his magic wand. He sent a line drive over the 370-foot sign in left for the grand-slammer as the huge crowd went into hysterics.

It took several minutes, and a bow from Cey, to quiet down the crowd sufficiently for the game to continue.

When it did, Steve Garvey kept the magic moment alive with a single up the middle to finish the stunned Carlton.

However, Gene Garber came on to fan Dusty Baker for the final out, and the Dodgers never again put a base runner on against Garber or Tug McGraw.

Ironically, Cey had entered the game with a 0-for-31 batting slump, which he broke in the second inning with a single to left.

Lost in the wake of Cey's slam was the big comeback by the Phils, who put together three straight singles off Elias Sosa in the ninth to win it. Mike Schmidt's one-bagger produced the winning run. Sosa gave the Phils an insurance run when he balked home Larry Bowas later in the frame.

"No, I don't think we were down after Cey's homer," Luzinski claimed. "We've been a come-from-behind team all year long and, sure enough, we didn't die at all after the homer. If anything, it picked us up.

"The big difference was our bullpen," continued "The Bull". "Our guys (Garber and McGraw)) did their job while we got the two runs off of Sosa in the ninth."

Luzinski's homer, after shortstop Russell had committed a throwing error on Mike Schmidt's grounder, gave Philly two runs in the first, and two more scores in the top of the fifth, again set up on a Russell error, finished John.

Russell's miscue in the fifth came as Lopes made a nice play on Bowa's grounder and tossed to Russell for an apparent force of Bake McBride at second. However, second base umpire Harry Wendelstedt ruled that Russell had come off the bag to take Lopes' peg, and called McBride safe.

Thus, instead of a runner at first and two outs, John had to face Schmidt and Luzinski with two on and only one out. He got Schmidt to force McBride at third, but walked the dangerous Luzinski.

The veteran Dave Johnson followed with a line single to center, and the Phils had a 4-0 lead and had kayoed T.J.

L.A. picked up a run off Carlton in the last of the fifth on Lopes' RBI single, but the Phillie southpaw got that score right back himself in the top of the sixth with a run-scoring one-bagger of his own.

That made it 5-1 and set the stage for Cey's grand moment. Unfortunately, it didn't last long enough for the Dodgers.

PLAYOFF PICKINGS — Tuesday's crowd was the second largest in Dodger Stadium history. The only larger crowd was one of 55,974. Quipsters in the press box suggested the Dodgers should have brought in seven of the ticket scalpers outside the gates to establish a new record.

The grand-slammer was Cey's third of the year, but the first ever in N.L. Playoff history. Only other slammer in the playoffs was by Minnesota's Cesar Tovar in 1970.

Both managers denied charges that they stayed with their starters too long, but neither John nor Carlton appeared to be in top form. Both had control problems from the outset.

Garvey continued his fine post-season play for L.A. The first baseman, who was a standout in the 1974 playoffs and World Series, was three-for-four Tuesday and Bowa took another hit away from him on a nice play in the hole between short and third.

Oddly enough, Tuesday's loser, Sosa, had hurled 12 straight innings without allowing an earned run going into the playoffs, and had surrendered only one earned run in his last 14 appearances.

Dodgers now face pressure

For the first time in 1977, we'll find out tonight what the Dodgers are like when they have their back against the wall.

It was all so easy during the regular season as the Dodgers just blew away any opposition in building a commanding lead in April and May which enabled them to coast home in the Western Division.

Rookie manager Tommy Lasorda was able to display his optimistic energy all season long comfortable with a safeproof margin.

Now, the pressure is on after Tuesday's 7-5 loss to the Phillies in the opener of the National League playoffs at Dodger Stadium.

The Dodgers MUST win tonight.

It's as simple as that.

Winning three in a row at Philadelphia would be an almost impossible task. It's going to be tough enough now anyway since L.A. has to win at least two in Philly to advance to the World Series.

For the first time in 1977, the Dodgers face a "must win" situation.

It will be interesting how they react to it.

Pitching advantage

The Dodgers will have the pitching advantage tonight (5:15 p.m.) with Don Sutton going against Jim Lonborg, who had many shaky moments during the season.

And L.A. figures to also have the edge Friday afternoon in Philadelphia when Burt Hooton faces Larry Christenson.

Starting pitching is a big plus for L.A. but the Phils have the advantage in the bullpen and it showed Tuesday night.

The Dodgers had all the momentum when Ron Cey belted his electrifying grand slam homer in the seventh inning to gain a 5-5 tie.

Steve Garvey followed with a single to knock out Phils' starter Steve Carlton, baseball's winningest pitcher this year.

But Gene Garber came out of the bullpen to quiet the Dodger bats, retiring four straight batters to get out of the seventh and through the eighth.

After the Phils went ahead in the top of the ninth, southpaw Tug McGraw retired the Dodgers in order in the bottom half of the inning.

Relief depth

The Phils' stronger and deeper bullpen is a big weapon in a short series like this.

In contrast, Charlie Hough gave up a run in his two innings of work and Elias Sosa got knocked around for three hits and committed a balk to allow the Phils' winning runs in the ninth.

The bullpen is the one flaw in the Dodger camp and something which needs to be improved in the off-season.

Fielding was the other big difference Tuesday.

While two errors by Dodger shortstop Bill Russell led to four unearned runs charged to starter Tommy John, the Phils were perfect in the field as their infield played with the poise and confidence you would expect from a championship team.

One thing the Dodgers should have learned Tuesday is the fact the Phillies probably won't beat themselves.

PLAYOFF HAPPENINGS — As you would expect from having the second largest crowd in Dodger Stadium history, the traffic was something else. As one observer quipped, "Bill Russell must be directing traffic."

Why did Frank Sinatra sit behind the Phils' dugout? Lasorda's close friend was cheering for Dodger Blue however.

A plane flew over Dodger Stadium with the message "Go Phillies Go". It's a wonder the pilot survived.

Former Dodger manager Walter Alston will throw out the first ball tonight and Sue Raney will sing the National Anthem. The Wilson High Band will entertain before the game.

The win was only the Phils' first victory in post-season competition since Oct. 8, 1915 when they won the first game of the World Series against the Red Sox. They were swept by the Yankees in the 1950 World Series and by the Reds in last year's playoffs. It's safe to say they were due.

Ready for second game

Russell dismisses bad day

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Dodgers shortstop Bill Russell summed up his team's feeling after Los Angeles had lost 7-5 to the Philadelphia Phillies in the opening game of the National League Championship series.

"I've played this game long enough to realize that you have some good games and you have some bad games," said Russell, who made two errors that led to four Phillies' runs Tuesday night.

"Now all I'm thinking about is Wednesday's game."

"We had a rough day," said Dodgers first baseman Steve Garvey, who had three singles in the loss. "But I think we will bounce right back. We'll turn it around."

Philadelphia third baseman Mike Schmidt, who singled in the winning run, said he knew exactly how the Dodgers felt.

"I'm sure the Dodgers are sitting in their clubhouse saying this game is over and they'll have to come and get us tomorrow," Schmidt said. "We would say the same thing in that situation.

"They're a good enough team to come back and get us. We've got to take the second game just as seriously as we did the first. They proved they won't give up."

Los Angeles' Ron Cey, whose grand-slam home run tied the game 5-5 in the seventh inning before the Phils went on to win with two ninth-inning tallies, said the Dodgers just had an off day.

"It was very sad the way we played," the third baseman said. "To get into the playoffs and play as fundamentally bad as that ... We just have to get them Wednesday night."

Russell, although the "goat" of the game, did not seem particularly upset, but instead took his mistakes in stride.

"Usually if I make a mistake, we get out of an inning," he remarked. "But not tonight. You saw what happened out there. I messed up."

Russell's first error came in the opening inning, when he threw high to first on Schmidt's grounder that would have been the third out. Greg Luzinski followed with a homer that made it 2-0.

In the fifth inning, Russell took second baseman Dave Lopes' throw to second on a forceout, but missed the bag and the runner was safe. Russell was charged with an error, and Philadelphia added two runs before their half of the inning was over.

The Phillies, while taking nothing for granted, were extremely happy they started the playoffs with a victory.

"We really felt we were going to win the game," said Philadelphia shortstop Larry Bowa. "The guys were jumping up and down and screaming and saying, 'Let's get them,' after they tied it up.

"Even Danny Ozark was jumping up and down, and he rarely shows emotion. That really helped."

Lasorda brothers eat crow after Tom loses

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The Lasorda brothers — Eddy, Harry, Morris and "Smokey Joe" — ate crow Tuesday night.

They were so sure brother, Tom, who manages the Los Angeles Dodgers, would win the first game of the National League playoffs against the Philadelphia Phillies, that they promised the mostly pro-Phillies crowd at their Exton tavern free drinks.

The promise fell through, however, when the Phils won 7-5.

"We're Dodger blue," said Eddy Lasorda, 53, who owns and operates the Marchwood Tavern in Chester County with his three brothers.

"We're just down on the first game, we're not down on the series. I still think it's going to be the Dodgers in four. They're going to be there (in the World Series) because of Tommy's determination. He talks to God. He's speaking to the big Dodger in the sky."

Actually, it's surprising the Lasordas are only "Dodger blue" and not Dodger "black and blue."

About 200 Phillies fans showed up at their tavern, which they call the "Eastern home of the Los Angeles Dodgers," to root for the Phils in the best-of-five series.

And the Lasordas — well, blood is thicker than beer — were solidly behind brother Tom's team.

Eddy Lasorda said he more or less expected a big Phillies crowd at the tavern, where the game was televised in color on a seven-foot screen.

"I'll tell you there are so many bars in this area and people come from 20 miles away just to argue back and forth with us. But they're great customers.

"We've got pictures of the Dodgers on the wall and the Phillies fans come in here and say, 'Whoa. We want equal time. We'll fix these Lasordas. We'll bring Phillies banners in here.' But they love us and we love them," he said.

Mom offers no support

KANSAS CITY (AP) — When Paul Splittorff learned he would be Kansas City's starting pitcher for the first game of the American League playoffs against New York, he called his parents with the exciting news.

"He can't start the first game," said his mother, Bettye Splittorff. "His record's not good enough."

"She's a terrific mom," said Splittorff, whose 16-6 record was second best on the Royals' staff. "But she doesn't know a thing about baseball."

Sosa sure it wasn't balk

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Los Angeles relief pitcher Elias Sosa said Tuesday night he broke no rule when he was charged with a balk that allowed a Philadelphia runner to score in the ninth inning of the National League playoff opener.

"There is no question that I didn't balk," the losing Sosa said after the Dodgers' 7-5 defeat. "It was a late call. I had definitely stepped off the rubber towards first base before any call was made. The umpire didn't see it."

The run balked in was the Phils' second run of the ninth inning.

Phillies Manager Danny Ozark said, "There is no question that he balked. He didn't step off the rubber before he made his move."

Four Lakers still face cuts

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Los Angeles Lakers' Coach Jerry West faces a very difficult decision — who to cut from his roster to the reach the required 11 players before the 1977-78 National Basketball Association season begins.

The Lakers, who open the season at Milwaukee Oct. 18 against the Bucks, currently have 15 players in camp, meaning that four have to go. The roster limit is currently 11 instead of the previous 12.

The team is so deep, at least on paper, that three starters from the team that finished first in the Pacific Division last year and had the most victories in the NBA don't figure to start this season. In fact, forwards Cazzie Russell and Don Ford and guard Don Chaney may not make the club.

A fourth starter last year, guard Lucius Allen, was traded to Kansas City in the offseason.

Like most teams in the league, the Lakers reportedly have two-thirds of their players signed to no-cut contracts. This means players with such agreements are paid even if they don't make the team.

Others on the roster include forward Jamaal Wilkes, signed as a free agent this year after playing out his option with the Golden State Warriors; highly touted rookie forward Kenny Carr, first-year guards Norm Nixon, Brad Davis and Tony Robertson, rookie center James Edwards, veteran swingmen Lou Hudson and Earl Tatum, forwards Kermit Washington and Tom Abernethy and guard Ernie DiGregorio, who signed with Los Angeles last month after four years at Buffalo.

Carr, Nixon and Davis were all picked in the first round of last spring's draft of collegiate players. Robertson has been extremely impressive in preseason drills, as has Edwards.

Of course, there's center Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, who's spot on the roster is as secure as the daily rising of the sun.

"I rank our players every day after practice," said West. "I've changed my mind since the day before yesterday, again."

Recently, West said: "At this point, it's absolutely impossible to cut this squad."

The Lakers play their annual intrasquad scrimmage at their Loyola-Marymount training camp in Los Angeles tonight. West said he hopes to make at least one personnel move this week.

Chino's offensive line does job

By MIKE BROSSART
PB Staff Writer

When Chino High's football team beat Garey, 20-12, last week, it was the first time in 13 games that the Vikings had surrendered more than 14 points.

The Cowboys rushed for over 280 yards against the Vikings, a team that prides itself on its defense.

Running back Mike Bertschinger went over 200 yards for the second time in three games, but of course in football a performance like that is never really an individual accomplishment.

Bertschinger runs behind a huge offensive line that is rapidly building a reputation as the best in the San Antonio League.

Garey's Lawson Bush made that assessment after Friday's game, and Ganesha's Garry Norvell concurs.

"They have the most efficient offensive line I've seen yet this year," he said after viewing films of Chino, the Giants' opponent Friday night at Cal Poly. "They carry out their blocking assignments very well."

Cowboy coach Jim Rawls agrees that his line is the best around — and there can be no doubt that it's the largest in the SAL.

Chino's six-man offensive line (including 215-pound tight end Keith Smith) averages 206 pounds per man. That's a pound per player heavier than Ganesha's defensive line, among the largest in the league.

Chino guard Sam Beebe weighs 225 pounds, tackles Gary Niekirk and Ben Kramer weigh 210 and 200, respectively, center Hector Martinez goes 205 and guard Lyle Pelletier is the "little guy" — at 180 pounds.

"They've all grown quite a bit since last year," said Rawls, noting that Beebe was the only one to tip the scales at 200 pounds during the 1976 season. But they may have quite a bit of growing left to do, since four of the five down linemen on offense are juniors.

Niekirk is the only senior among them, and Beebe is the only one who started at the varsity level last year. The other three — Martinez, Kramer and Pelletier — all came from Chino's 1976 sophomore team, which won the SAL title.

College stars

BACK — I.M. Hipp, running back, Nebraska, carried 28 times and set a school rushing record of 254 yards in the Cornhuskers' 31-13 victory over Indiana, shattering the mark of 211 set last year by Richard Berns. "Certainly Isaiah had a great day," said Coach Tom Osborne. Hipp did not score any touchdowns but ran for a two-point conversion.

LINEMAN — Robert Dugas, offensive tackle, Louisiana State, graded out at 92 per cent as LSU rushed for 385 yards in a 36-14 rout of Florida. According to Coach Charlie McClendon, Dugas "never missed a block at the point of attack and we ran in his direction about 75 per cent of the time. When you take a guy with his size (6-4, 261) and intelligence (3.6 pre-med student), the ingredients are there for an outstanding offensive lineman."

AVOIDING FEAR OR ANGER AFTER A BAD MISHIT OR MISJUDGEMENT IS MAYBE GOLF'S SINGLE GREATEST CHALLENGE.
ONE TECHNIQUE I'VE FOUND SUCCESSFUL IS TO FORCE THE ERROR OUT OF MIND BY MAKING MYSELF IMMEDIATELY FOCUS VERY HARD ON THE NEXT SHOT IT REQUIRES ME TO PLAY.
IF A SWING FLAW RATHER THAN A JUDGEMENT CALL WAS THE PROBLEM, I DO MY BEST TO THINK POSITIVELY IN SEEKING A SOLUTION. FOR INSTANCE, IF TOO MUCH TENSION IN THE RIGHT ARM WOULD SEEM TO HAVE CAUSED THE MISHIT, I'LL TRY TO OFFSET IT WITH FIRMER LEFT-ARM OR LEFT-SIDE CONTROL ON THE UPCOMING SHOTS.
IN OTHER WORDS, I LIKE TO FOCUS ON REMEDIES, NOT ON FAULTS.

Owner blasts Martin

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent

Billy Martin said he was only half-kidding, but it wasn't funny to his boss, George Steinbrenner.

"What's Billy doing coming up with something like this at this time?" the owner of the New York Yankees fumed after reading the morning paper headlines that his manager planned to demand a new contract if his team should win the American League baseball playoffs and the World Series.

"We're facing a hell of a fight with Kansas City. This is a tough team we're going against. Whitey Herzog has done an outstanding job putting this club together. It's a smooth unit without many weaknesses. We'll have to bust our necks getting through this series.

"That's what Billy ought to be concentrating on. This kind of talk at this stage is absolutely ridiculous. If he thinks he is going to intimidate me or intimidate Gabe Paul (Yankees' president) he's got another think coming."

Brash Billy has done it again.

Just when it appeared the Yankees had weathered their intramural problems—inflated egos, sniping and clubhouse bickering—the feisty little skipper with the self-destruct complex throws another monkey wrench into the big, pin-striped machine.

Now there are serious doubts that Martin can survive his $100,000 per year post with the freeest spending franchise in the sport even if he manages to take the Yankees all the way.

He continues to dig his own managerial grave. He seems bent on maintaining an adversary relationship with management just as he did with Minnesota, Detroit and Texas after skillfully turning losers into winners at all three places.

At four specific junctures during the regular season, he was on the verge of getting the Steinbrenner axe. Each time he survived, largely through intervention of influential friends at a higher level and a player with whom he had feuded, Reggie Jackson.

Steinbrenner's patience reportedly is wearing thin. But the Yankees' boss insists that no decision on Martin will be made until the end of the playoffs, or World Series, then the final judgment will be left to Gabe Paul.

Martin is finishing the first year of a three-year contract. It was while discussing this contract at a leisurely talk session in his office that he dropped the current bombshell.

"If we win everything," Martin said, "I think it's a must for George to come up with another contract. If he doesn't, I would have to seriously think about asking permission to talk to other clubs."

If Martin was partially kidding, as he said later, the jest did not penetrate his listeners. The New York papers greeted the comment with such an arresting headline as: "Martin Will Demand New Pact If Yanks Win."

Steinbrenner reacted as if he had a gun pressed against his temple. Billy said he didn't mean for it to sound so strong.

"I just noted that Don Zimmer (Boston) and Earl Weaver (Baltimore) had gotten new contracts and suggested I deserved one, too, if we won," Billy said.

Tension still crackles in the Yankees' clubhouse despite outward appearances of calm. The impression is that this calm is preserved only by the team's winning surge and might snap the moment it ends. It continues to be a team in inner turmoil.

Egos abound. Personality clashes and petty jealousies dull the team spirit. The clubhouse still is split by factions arising from Reggie Jackson's feuds with Thurman Munson and Martin.

Fingers wins honor as top relief ace

NEW YORK (AP) — San Diego's Rollie Fingers, the Upland High product, who compiled the most saves in the major leagues since John Hiller's record 38 in 1973, is the National League's top reliever in competition for 1977.

With an 8-9 win-loss record and 35 saves, Fingers tallied 77 points in this, the second year of the competition initiated in 1976 to reward baseball's top bullpen pitchers. The top relievers in each league and one each team are awarded on the basis of a point system which credits two points for each win and each save and subtracts one point for each loss.

The 31-year-old Fingers, who finished second in the American League race while with Oakland last season, out-distanced runner-up Bruce Sutter of Chicago by four points. Sutter, who missed five weeks during the season with a back injury, was 7-3 with 31 saves for 73 points.

Rich Gossage of Pittsburgh, Pedro Borbon of Cincinnati and Philadelphia's Gene Garber round out the top five.

Other team winners include Rick Camp of Atlanta, Ken Forsch of Houston, Charlie Hough of Los Angeles, Don Stanhouse of Montreal, Skip Lockwood of New York, Al Hrabowsky of St. Louis and Gary Lavelle of San Francisco.

As the NL's No. 1 reliever, Fingers was presented a sterling silver fireman's cap prior to Tuesday's league championship game in Los Angeles.

The competition is sponsored by Rolaids.

Sports briefs

McCovey gets comeback award

SAN FRANCISCO — First baseman Willie McCovey, released by two teams a year ago, has been named winner of the National League Comeback of the Year award.

The 39-year-old McCovey, a 19-year veteran, hit .280, with 28 home runs and drove in 86 runs for the San Francisco Giants, leading the team in home runs and RBI.

McCovey set a new National League grand slam record, hitting two for a career total of 18, moved into a tie for 12th on the all-time home run list with 493 and went over the 2,000 career hit mark.

Houston on probation

KANSAS CITY — The National Collegiate Athletic Association's Committee on Infractions placed the University of Houston on a one-year probation in football, banning the Cougars from post-season games this season and from television next year.

The NCAA committee said it found violations in recruiting inducements, excessive recruiting contacts and improper transportation.

The committee's statement said the violations "resulted in the University of Houston enjoying a distinct competitive advantage in recruitment of a young man considered by many observers to be one of the top football prospects in the country."

Jackson sued for $2 million

NEW YORK (AP) — An attorney for a 13-year-old boy, who allegedly was kicked by Reggie Jackson, announced Tuesday that the star outfielder of the New York Yankees will be served with court papers in connection with a $2 million law suit.

Nicholas Arena, attorney for Chris Howe, who claimed Jackson kicked him following the July 19 baseball All-Star Game at Yankee Stadium, said the suit would be filed in Bronx Supreme Court. Arena said the youngster required psychiatric treatment and suffered permanent injury as a result of the incident.

Jackson has denied kicking Howe.

Managers tab Weaver

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Baltimore Orioles manager Earl Weaver has been named Major League Manager of the Year in a poll conducted by The Sporting News.

The St. Louis-based publication said that other managers picked Weaver for doing the best job under the most trying circumstances. Because of the new free-agency rule in baseball, Weaver lost several starting players during the offseason, including outfielder Reggie Jackson, pitcher Wayne Garland and second baseman Bobby Grich.

Despite those losses, the Orioles were in the American League's Eastern Division championship race until the last three days of the season.

Other managers receiving votes were Whitey Herzog of the Kansas City Royals, Bob Lemon of the Chicago White Sox, Herman Franks of the Chicago Cubs, Tom Lasorda of the Los Angeles Dodgers, Billy Martin of the New York Yankees and Gene Mauch of the Minnesota Twins.

Evert advances

ATLANTA — Top-seed Chris Evert ousted Brigitte Cuypers of South Africa 6-1, 6-1 in the first round of the $75,000 Women's Tennis Classic.

In other first round matches No. 8 seed Billie Jean King struggled past 17-year-old Zenda Liess of Daytona Beach, Fla., 7-5, 6-4 and third-seeded Virginia Wade of Great Britian, last year's tournament champion, easily beat Laura DuPont of Charlotte, N.C., 6-2, 6-0.

Okker edges Cox

AMSTERDAM — Tom Okker of The Netherlands defeated Mark Cox of Great Britain 6-7, 6-4, 7-6 to advance to the semifinals in a $100,000 tennis tournament.

Cowboys controlling ball on the ground

Niekirk, who carries his 210 pounds on a 6-foot-3 frame, has been named offensive lineman of the week by the Chino coaches after all three games this year.

The Cowboys were able to play the way Rawls wants them to against Garey — when they rushed for 286 yards and passed for 84.

"That's the way we want to do it," said Rawls. "We want to control the game on the ground." Chino did just that, with 57 running plays.

"Ganesha has a good front five (on defense)," Rawls said. "They've managed to control the ball pretty well so far — and all the teams they've played have been running teams."

Norvell agrees that his defensive line — led by 232-pound tackle J.W. Melton — has performed well, but is concerned about his offensive linemen.

"We've just got to get some enthusiasm in our offensive line," he said. "That's been lacking so far. But Arnold Neri, a 5-6, 160 pounder, started for us at guard against Claremont and did a good job, and (center) Charles Lundstrum has played well."

Norvell is also concerned about one Cowboy defender in particular — Alton Rivera.

"They've got one great linebacker," Norvell said. "He covers a lot of the field. He's tough against the run and tough against the pass."

Rawls hopes that fumble problems will continue to plague the Giants. "We hit pretty hard," he said, "and we're hoping they'll cough it up a couple of times."

"The funny thing about our fumbles," said Norvell, "is that they're not coming at the exchange, like you'd expect with a Veer offense. We're fumbling the ball downfield at the end of runs."

Chino's Bertschinger hasn't had any problems holding onto the ball, but he can't seem to keep his contacts in his eyes. He lost four contacts against Garey after dropping one against Burroughs and two against Santa Ana Valley.

"He's going to bring six pairs to the game from now on," said Rawls. "We couldn't pitch out to him at the end of the game last week because he couldn't see."

Friday night's game between the Cowboys and Giants will be played at Cal Poly.

"I think the winner of this game might turn out to be the league champion," Rawls said. "At least that's the way we're looking at it."

Montclair will be at Damien Friday, but the other two SAL contests will be played Thursday night, when Upland will meet Garey at Bonita High and Pomona will host Claremont at Mt. San Antonio College.

Strangely, the four teams scheduled to play Thursday all lost their league openers last week while the four teams that will play Friday were all victorious.

Spinkses to box on TV

LAS VEGAS (AP) — Olympic gold medal winners Leon and Michael Spinks of St. Louis will put their unbeaten records on the line in a nationally-televised boxing card from the Aladdin Hotel on Oct. 22, it was announced Monday.

The Spinks brothers will be fighting in featured eight-round preliminaries before the day's main event, which will feature 10th-ranked heavyweight contender Bernardo Mercado. The bouts will be televised live by CBS.

Leon, the heavyweight Spinks who is 5-0, will fight Scott LeDoux of Minneapolis, while young brother, Michael, a light-heavy with an identical record, will face either Gary Summerhayes of Canada or New Jersey's Christy Elliott.

The Spinks brothers won gold medals in the 1976 Olympics in Montreal.

Michael Spinks comes off a swift knockout over Ray Elson. A recent injury forced Leon to pull out of a scheduled fight with ninth-ranked Alfio Righetti of Italy.

The hard punching Mercado, a 24-year-old Colombian, has kayoed 16 opponents en route to an 18-0 record. He will go against Greg Johnson of New York in a 10-rounder.

Johnson, 7-5, was decisioned in his most recent outing. He lost on points to unbeaten Leroy Jones here on Sept. 14.

Mercado's last fight ended at 1:17 of the first round of a scheduled six-rounder when he floored Roger Russell for the count last Thursday in one of the preliminaries for the Muhammad Ali-Earnie Shavers heavyweight title bout at Madison Square Garden.

In another bout on the Oct. 22 card, Olympian "Big John" Tate, another unbeaten pro, will face Lou Esa, 15-2-1, of Miami Beach, in a six-rounder.

MSAC gets 12-8 victory

Sophomore Dave Earwood, a graduate of Chaffey High, scored seven goals Tuesday to lead Mt. San Antonio College to a 12-8 win over Santa Ana in the South Coast Conference opener in water polo.

Richard Carlton scored three goals and Dave Norman and Rudy Madrid one apiece as the Mounties evened their season record at 4-4.

MSAC has a key game Friday when Grossmont comes in.

Knox says Namath can run

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Los Angeles Rams' Coach Chuck Knox says it doesn't bother him if 34-year-old quarterback Joe Namath runs with the football — as long as it's the last option available.

"You do whatever you have to do to win," Knox said Tuesday at his weekly media breakfast, referring to Namath's seven-yard scramble against the San Francisco 49ers.

Namath, who has undergone five knee operations, kept a scoring drive alive with his run.

"We came closer to playing the kind of football we have to play," Knox said in reference to the 34-14 victory over the 49ers. "We stayed out of sack situations, third and nine, third and 10. The best way to avoid those sack situations is to run the football and we did that."

A year ago in the Coliseum, the 49ers threw Rams' quarterbacks for losses 10 times in a 16-0 victory. On Sunday, Namath was sacked only twice as the Rams raised their NFL record to 2-1. The 49ers dropped to 0-3.

Knox also said turnovers were playing an important part in the Rams' improved play.

"We're on the plus side of turnovers," Knox said. "After the first game, we had three more turnovers than the opposition and now we have one less. If you don't turn the ball over, you're always going to be in the game and have a chance to win. We forced two turnovers against the 49ers and we didn't turn the ball over once."

Bob Brudzinski, the Rams' starting left linebacker, has two interceptions in his starts against Philadelphia and San Francisco, and Knox thinks the rookie from Ohio State is improving.

"He's making a lot of progress," Knox said. "He should get better with experience, he's still adjusting to our system. He can run, he's got good size and he gives us a chance to come up with some big plays."

With wide receiver Ron Jessie out for the season with torn ligaments in his right knee, Knox said his spot will be filled by Dwight Scales and rookie Billy Waddy.

The Rams return to action next Monday night at Chicago against the Bears, who are 1-2, in a nationally televised game.

"Walter Payton is just fantastic," said Knox, referring to the Bears' fine running back. "He won't always go to the hole; if he sees daylight somewhere he's off."

Last year against the Rams Payton carried 27 times for 145 yards. He currently leads the National Football Conference in scoring with 30 points and rushing with 336 yards.

Nastase banned from Davis Cup

LONDON (AP) — Ilie Nastase, the controversial Romanian tennis star, was banned from the 1978 Davis Cup today because of his court behavior.

The decision was announced by the Davis Cup committee in London, following a report by Spanish referee Jaime Bartroli on Nastase's antics during the Romania-Britain match in Bucharest last June.

Soccer tryouts set in D.B.

Tryouts for the Diamond Bar-Walnut Soccer Club's Jaguars Pacific Soccer League Division 2 team will be held Friday at Chapparal Junior High in Diamond Bar.

The team is for boys ages 14 and 15 who will not be 16 prior to Jan. 1, 1978.

Any boys interested in joining the team should attend the tryouts at Chapparal School at 5:30 p.m. Friday afternoon or phone coach Garland Wilson at 595-8130.

Kings tie Canucks

VICTORIA, British Columbia (AP) — Don Kozak scored at 15:39 of the third period to give the Los Angeles Kings a 2-2 tie with the Vancouver Canucks Tuesday night in a National Hockey League exhibition game played before 4,752 fans.

Vic Venasky won a draw in the Canuck zone and slipped the puck to Kozak, who beat goalkeeper Cesare Maniago high to the glove side.

Dave Hutchison scored the 40 minutes. Los Angeles has three wins and two ties in pre-season play while Vancouver has a 1-4-2 record.

The Canucks scored their goals in a 17-second burst in the first period. Ron Sedlbauer completed a fine three-way passing play with Don Lever and Dennis Ververgaert on a powerplay and Lever got a shot past goalkeeper Gary Simmons, who misjudged the bounce of the puck.

Rogatien Vachon played the final 30 minutes for Los Angeles and made 18 of the 32 saves in his team's goal. Maniago blocked 30 for the Canucks.

The Kings drew four of six minor penalties in the cleanly-played game.

The teams meet again Wednesday night in Vancouver.

WINNINGEST — Granada Hills' Don Prudhomme, winningest driver in drag racing, heads the Funny Car lineup in the 13th annual NHRA World Final Drag Races at Ontario Motor Speedway this weekend.

World Dragster Finals at OMS

Auto racing

Between the Dodgers' bid for a World Series berth and the repetitive hype about some independent production billed as "The Last Drag Race," one would almost have to psychic to know that Ontario Motor Speedway is even open for business this weekend.

After all, it IS football season, it IS the climactic end of the baseball season and it IS the start of training camps for the giants of professional basketball. And, true, Los Angeles love its Rams, Dodgers, Lakers, Bruins and Trojans.

But if you're not into stick-and-ball sports that much or if you're very much into auto racing, it might be worth mentioning that the sport's ultimate performance vent — the Winston World Drag Racing Finals — is scheduled Friday through Sunday at OMS.

The 13th annual Finals, concluding event in a $4 million National Hot Rod Association - produced series that began back in February, does not lay claim to the title "ultimate performance event" without some pretty solid credentials.

It's the event that two years ago produced auto racing's first record 250 mile an hour speed, an accomplishment even more impressive when one considers that the car involved — a hybrid, 2,000 horsepower dragster driven by Don Garlits of Seffner, Fla. — attended that speed (150.69 mph) in only a quarter mile and from a dead stop.

The G-force involved in that kind of acceleration — zero to 60 in one second — should qualify Garlits and some of the sport's other stars for a spot in the space program.

However, speed is only one measure of drag racing performance — and not the most important. To the drag racer, the critical measure is elapsed time (ET) — how long it takes to accelerate from a standing start through a quarter mile.

Garlits set the all-time standard during the 1975 World Finals when he covered the distance in 5.63 seconds, something a lot of aerospace engineers still claim is impossible in a piston-driven car.

Breaking 6.00 seconds has always been the drag racing equivalent of the four-minute mile and the Finals, run on what is generally conceded to be drag racing's fastest track, has always produced a record number of "fives."

It is interesting to note that the '75 Finals was the only event in history in which an entire 16-car field qualified at less than 6.00 seconds.

To put those figures in perspective, only 19 cars have broken six seconds in eight previous NHRA national events contested this year. At Indianapolis, the Mecca of modern automobile racing, only nine of the 32 drivers qualified for drag racing's oldest and largest event — the Labor Day U.S. Nationals — managed to dip into the fives.

Still, the World Finals is run each year at a time when everything from football to arm wrestling is vying for a share of the spotlight, the result being what NHRA officials have termed "a frustrating lack of attention."

The race does offer a posted cash and contingency awards purse of $249,000, has attracted 300 entrants from 32 states and Canada and will end the 1977 championship season for racers in eight different categories of competition.

Moreover, it features a strong female contingent led by Shirley Muldowney, the defending Top Fuel champion who has posted a quarter mile speed of 253.52 miles per hour. Shirley and her male rivals will qualify all day Friday and Saturday with single elimination finals beginning at noon on Sunday.

Southland racing

ONTARIO — the 13th annual NHRA Winston World Finals of drag racing will be held Friday, Saturday and Sunday at OMS. Qualifying will be held from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Friday and Saturday with final eliminations set for Sunday at noon.

CORONA — Super Stocks, street stocks, figure 8's and powder puff racing is slated Saturday at Corona Raceway. First event in the 14-car program starts at 7:30 p.m.

GARDENA — A Camel Pro Series national doubleheader is set for Ascot Park Friday and Saturday nights. A 25-lap TT steeplechase, rescheduled from Peoria, Ill., is slated Friday night at 8 p.m.

A 20-lap national half-mile race is on tap Saturday night at 8 p.m. Posted prize money for the two nights comes close to $40,000.

SAUGUS — More than 80 cars are entered in the third annual Saugus 330 Saturday at Saugus Speedway. The first race is 110-lap consolation race for cars that do not make the main event.

The main event consists of two 110-lap "rounds" with a 30-minute pit stop halfway through. The first race begins at 7 p.m.

Nicki Lauda to pull out?

TORONTO (AP) — World driving champion Nicki Lauda is threatening to withdraw from Sunday's Canadian Grand Prix at Mosport.

Latest dispute between Lauda, who will leave the Ferrari racing team for Alfa-Brabham next year, and Ferrari apparently arose because the Italian firm fired chief mechanic Ermanno Cuoghi last week just prior to the U.S. Grand Prix.

"Without Ermanno Cuoghi, the crew that will be here will function at only one-quarter of what it should," said Lauda.

Lauda said he will end his four-year association with Ferrari as early as Saturday if he does not feel his car is getting the mechanical work necessary to make it competitive.

Cuoghi was fired when it was learned he was planning to join Lauda at Alfa-Brabham next season.

Cale Yarborough edging closer to NASCAR title

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Cale Yarborough is edging closer to his second consecutive Grand National stock car racing championship as time runs out on his challengers.

Yarborough finished second in the Wilkes 400 race at North Wilkesboro, N.C., Sunday while his closest points-race pursuer, Richard Petty, wrecked and got 24th place.

This put Yarborough 293 points ahead of six-time champion Petty with four races left this year. Yarborough has 4,330 and Petty 4,037.

Benny Parsons, who finished fifth at North Wilkesboro, remained third in the point standings at 3,942 and moved within $6,927 of the elite class of $1 million career winners in National Association for Stock Car Auto Racing competition.

Darrell Waltrip, whose victory in the Wilkes race was his fifth of the year, remained fourth in total points with 3,907.

Tnen come Buddy Baker 3,414; Richard Brooks 3,230; Richard Childress 3,005; James Hylton 3,003; Cecil Gordon 2,978, and Bobby Allison 2,943.

The top 10 money winners for the year to date are Yarborough $350,101; Petty $281,925; Parsons $225,371; Waltrip $215,843; Baker $157,701; David Pearson $141,726; Brooks $105,005; Donnie Allison $87,220; Neil Bonnett $77,630 and Hylton $74,655.

The drivers will race Sunday in the National 500 at Charlotte.

No pressure on Robinson

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Coach John Robinson of the University of Southern California says his team's No. 1 ranking in the country "doesn't put any pressure on us because we know it doesn't mean anything now.

"We were voted No. 1 with no sense of clarity of what's going on," Robinson told members of the media Tuesday. "It won't be remembered who was No. 1 now, unlike in January. It's nice, though.

"One of the problems of a young team like ours is you can be great one week and lousy the next," continued Robinson. "The problem is, can we get better? We could not win a bowl game with our team at this point, just like I think no team in the nation is at its peak now. You play the whole season to be good by the end."

Robinson acknowledged that the Trojans were very good last Friday in their 41-7 victory over Washington State.

"It was our best offensive performance of the year," said Robinson. "We did not turn over the ball. Our offensive line played very well. Washington State found it difficult to focus on anything."

Robinson also said he was pleased with his team's defensive play against the Cougars.

"Our biggest attribute is we don't make a lot of errors. We appear to be very efficient."

The Trojans, who are 4-0, face Alabama Saturday in a nationally-televised contest. The Crimson Tide is 3-1 and tied for seventh nationally with Arkansas.

Concerning the Alabama wishbone formation, Robinson said, "it's as opposite a type of attack as there is from what we faced last week from Washington State.

"It's a total new preparation for us," added Robinson. "Alabama has as imaginative an offense as you can have. They try to come up with some new wrinkles each week that their opponent has not seen.

"We must make constant adjustment to their changes on offense and that can cause breakdowns. You tend to want to play them straight up for fear you may be caught in the wrong defense where they can make a big gain."

Robinson said the Alabama offensive line is the best he's seen this year, and that the defense has improved since the Nebraska game. Nebraska handed Alabama its only loss thus far in 1977, 31-24 on Sept. 17.

"They have the ability to control the ball with Johnny Davis running at fullback and the offensive line," said Robinson. "And (wide receiver) Ozzie Newsome is a great player. He is very physical for a receiver, kind of like Otis Taylor was."

Robinson referred to the former Kansas City Chiefs' standout.

Starting inside linebacker Clay Matthews, who has missed the last three games with a sprained ankle, will see some action Saturday, Robinson said. Defensive tackle Vinny Van Dyke, who has also missed the last three games, may also see action against Alabama.

Starting rover Willie Crawford, who missed the Washington State game with a sprained ankle, is listed as a starter for Saturday's game.

Hannah, Gray return to Patriots' camp

FOXBORO, Mass. (AP) — The New England Patriots' two All-Pro offensive linemen have called off their bitter 24-day strike against the team, but none too eagerly.

Guard John Hannah and tackle Leon Gray marched separately and solemnly into the Patriots' offices Tuesday, meeting a 5 p.m. deadline set by the National Football League for returning or "retiring."

The players will take up their separate contract squabbles with team owner William H. Sullivan Jr. after the season.

"I was very, very, very close to give up football," Hannah said at a hastily arranged news conference.

"I was three minutes away possibly from not playing football," said Gray.

The two walked out Sept. 11 before the final exhibition game. The Patriots, expected to be a powerhouse this season, have stumbled to a 1-2 record, losing two consecutive games by 30-27 scores.

A grim General Manager-Coach Chuck Fairbanks said, "I am pleased they are coming back, for their welfare and for the welfare of the ball club. At the end of the season we will negotiate in good faith."

Hannah said he expects "satisfactory (contract) extensions ... can be worked out." Gray issued an apology to Pats fans for "bad feelings" created by the walkout, and he urged them to support the team.

Sullivan was absent Tuesday, but his effervescent son Chuck, a Patriots lawyer, said he was "delighted" with the return of Hannah and Gray.

Gray is under contract through 1979, and Hannah through 1980.

The two claim former assistant General Manager Peter Hadhazy promised new contracts if they made All-Pro, but Sullivan denied it.

The walkout was said to have been staged by the players' agent, Los Angeles attorney Howard Slusher. He also was absent Tuesday, but Hannah and Gray said Slusher told them to make their own decisions.

Last week, the NFL's committee of owners and players representatives ruled that Hannah and Gray should honor their contracts. But the players were undecided until hours— even minutes— before the deadline.

"I didn't make up my mind until late (Monday) night," said Hannah. Then, he nearly was unable to get a flight from Alabama to Boston.

Hannah arrived at the Patriots' offices at 4:27 p.m., carrying a green duffle bag and accompanied by a friend. Gray actually missed the 5 p.m. deadline, arriving alone at 5:04 p.m.

Gray apparently was unsure of his future until he spoke with Fairbanks. He said he had maintained a day-long vigil, "I'm just going in to see what the story is."

The walkout had been debated within the team for weeks, but none of the other players were present Tuesday, because no practice was scheduled.

Hannah was asked if the walkout would have a lasting effect on the team. "I'll wait and see," he said.

Chino A.Y.S.O. begins play at three locations

The 1977-78 Chino A.Y.S.O. soccer season gets underway Saturday at 9 a.m. at three different locations.

Fifth Division boys (ages 9 and 10) play on two fields at Chino High.

Boys Division three (13-14), and four (11-12) and Girls Division two (13, 14 and 15) will play on two fields at Magnolia Junior High.

Don Lugo High will host Boys Division six (7-8) and Girls Divisions three (10, 11 and 12 years) and four 7-8 years) on three fields.

Cincy signs Geronimo

CINCINNATI (AP) — Cincinnati Reds outfielder Cesar Geronimo has signed a four-year contract that extends through the 1981 season.

The 29-year-old Geronimo has won a Gold Glove, emblematic of fielding excellence, for each of the last three years.

He was charged with only two errors in 147 games this season and batted .265.

Kickers set for twinbill

The Diamond Bar Kickers have two games coming up this weekend.

The Kickers travel to North Torrance Saturday to play the Manhattan Beach Hurricanes at 3 p.m. and then are home Sunday to host the Torrance United Soccer Club at Noon.

In their last outing, the Kickers (2-0-1) routed the Palos Verdes Panthers, 9-2.

Paul Caligiuri scored three goals to spark the Kickers. Tony DelaRambelje scored two and Jeff Ratajczak, Rusty Lansford, Mike Brocki and Rocky Crisp had one each.

'Pack wins in volleyball

Claremont High remained undefeated in girls' volleyball Tuesday.

The Wolfpack defeated Ganesha, at Ganesha, 15-10, 15-10, in varsity to go 3-0 in San Antonio League competition and 8-2 overall.

Upland improved its record to 2-1 at Pomona. The Highlanders came back from a 15-12 loss to win, 15-13, 15-13.

Claremont has a nonleague game at La Quinta Friday. Upland hosts Ganesha Thursday while Pomona (0-3) takes on Montclair at Pomona.

FOOTNOTES

Composite tables include trades from eight markets identified by last price indicators for markets other than NYSE as: a-Amex; b-Boston; c-Cincinnati; g-Nasd; k-Instinet block trading system used by institutions; p-Pacific; u-Mid west; x-Philadelphia.

DIVIDENDS: Annual rate unless otherwise identified: (a) plus extra; (b) paid so far in 1977, no regular rate; (c) payment on accumulated dividends; (d) paid in 1976; (e) cash plus stock paid in 1976; (f) cash plus stock paid in 1977; (g) annual rate plus stock dividend; (h) paid in 1977—latest dividend omitted; (i) per cent in stock paid in 1976; (j) per cent in stock paid in 1977—latest dividend omitted; (k) per cent in stock paid in 1977; (q) in bankruptcy-receivership or reorganization; (s) capital distribution; (wi) when issued; (wt) warrants; (x) ex-dividend.

SALES: In hundreds (00) omitted except for those designated (z) which are traded in 10 share lots and carried in full.

P-E ratio: The price of a stock as a multiple of pershare earnings—derived by dividing the latest 12-month earnings figure into last sale price.

Airlines good inflation fighters

LOS ANGELES (BW) — The record shows that the airlines are pretty good inflation fighters, William T. Seawell, chairman and chief executive officer of Pan American World Airways, said.

Speaking before the Town Hall of California, Seawell said, "In March you will be able to fly Pan Am non-stop from Los Angeles to London and back again in a $40 million airplane for as little as $500.

"That is about the tab for dinner for eight at one of the better restaurants, or less than the price of an expensive television set, or, for that matter, less than you would pay for an automatic electric crepe maker for home use."

The airline industry, he said, has been subject to the same inflationary pressure that has plagued all industry. But by heavy investment in efficient equipment and facilities, Seawell said, the airlines have been able to resist those pressures better than the rest of the economy.

Market activity

NEW YORK (UPI) — The stock market, disturbed by a hike in the prime lending rate, headed lower Wednesday, although bluechip issues trimmed earlier losses. Trading was fairly active.

The Dow Jones industrial average, down nearly five points at the outset, was off 2.95 points to 839.05 shortly before noon EDT. The closely watched average plunged 9.96 points Tuesday, after having risen 17.24 the previous three sessions.

Analysts said the market was being helped somewhat by short covering, the replacing of borrowed shares sold earlier.

Early selling was a carryover from Tuesday's rout that was triggered by the decision of Wells Fargo, the nation's 11th largest bank, to boost its prime rate a quarter point to 7½ per cent. The prevailing rate is 7¼ per cent. Other banks are expected to follow suit soon.

The rise, which put the prime at its highest rate since November, 1975, could hinder business by making money tougher to obtain. The prime hike clouded a brightening economic picture shown in a rise in the government's leading economic indicators and durable goods orders.

Against this background, declines outnumbered advances, 608 to 379, among the 1,548 issues crossing the tape. The 561 unchanged issues reflected considerable investor uncertainty about the course of the market and the economy.

New York Stock Exchange turnover at the two-hour mark amounted to about 8,000,000 shares, compared with 9,510,000 traded during the comparable period Tuesday.

Sony Corp. was the most active NYSE issue, up ⅛ to 8 following two block trades of 100,000 shares each at 8. Sony signed a contract to provide RCA with certain technology and equipment.

International Telephone & Telegraph was the second most active issue, off ¼ to 31⅝ and ITT preferred N stock was third, off ¼ to 39⅜.

Centex was ahead ¾. The company said the Murchison family of Dallas, which owns 50.4 per cent of the firm, has offered to swap 3.25 million shares for $52 million Centex 6 per cent subordinated debentures.

Singer Co. was off 1½ in active trading even though the company said Tuesday it expected to report strong third-quarter and overall 1977 earnings.

Prices were lower in moderate trading of American Stock Exchange issues.

V-8 engine said on way out

BEVERLY HILLS (BW) — The V-8 engine will soon be a thing of the past, predicts J.G. Barrier, president of Ajax Rent A Car, America's largest and fastest-growing independent car rental system.

"General Motors already has made six-cylinder engines standard on most of its cars and Ford has made eight-cylinder engines optional rather than standard in most of its vehicles as well. American Motors and most other automakers already have begun to favor smaller engines."

Over-the-counter stock prices

Los Angeles (UPI) Over-the-counter quotations supplied by the National Association of Securities Dealers, are bids and offers quoted by over-the-counter dealers to each other; the quotations do not include retail markup, mark down or commission; and do not represent actual transactions.

Carter fails on report card

NEW YORK (AP) — Tired of mere lip service, an association of independent business people last year decided to keep a report card on the promises by the two major presidential candidates.

The group, the National Small Business Association, persistently extracted from each candidate his views on small-business issues, such as correcting what was felt to be unequal treatment versus big business.

The first report card, on Jimmy Carter of course, is in, and it appears the President didn't pass. "No substantial progress" was marked beside 7 of 11 issues measured.

The 50,000-member organization concedes the President has three years in which to pull his marks up to a graduation level, but they want him to know they are watching him — and Congress too.

Feeling that the very largest corporations, unions and big government have grown at the expense of the independent sector, the association sought from Carter last October a promise that the growth of small business would be pushed.

Carter responded with this message: "It will be the goal of my administration to have the growth rate of small business exceed the growth rate of big business and government." The organization was elated.

It now reports: "No substantial progress."

Carter also promised that "As president, I would introduce and support concrete programs which would have as high priority the expansion of the independent small business sector of the economy." Again, "No substantial progress.

And so it goes through the first four categories before the President receives a favorable notation.

The commitment: "As president, I will see that small business has a strong voice in the White House. ... My objective is to establish closer ties with small business."

The accomplishment: "Substantial progress. Good lines of communication have been established with the President and his staff. March meeting between President, key aides and small business reps have been followed up with on-going meetings at high levels."

The administration also was credited with some progress in correcting inequities in government procurement, on freeing business people from routine record-keeping by a regulatory agency, and on minimizing the impact of an antiprice maintenance report.

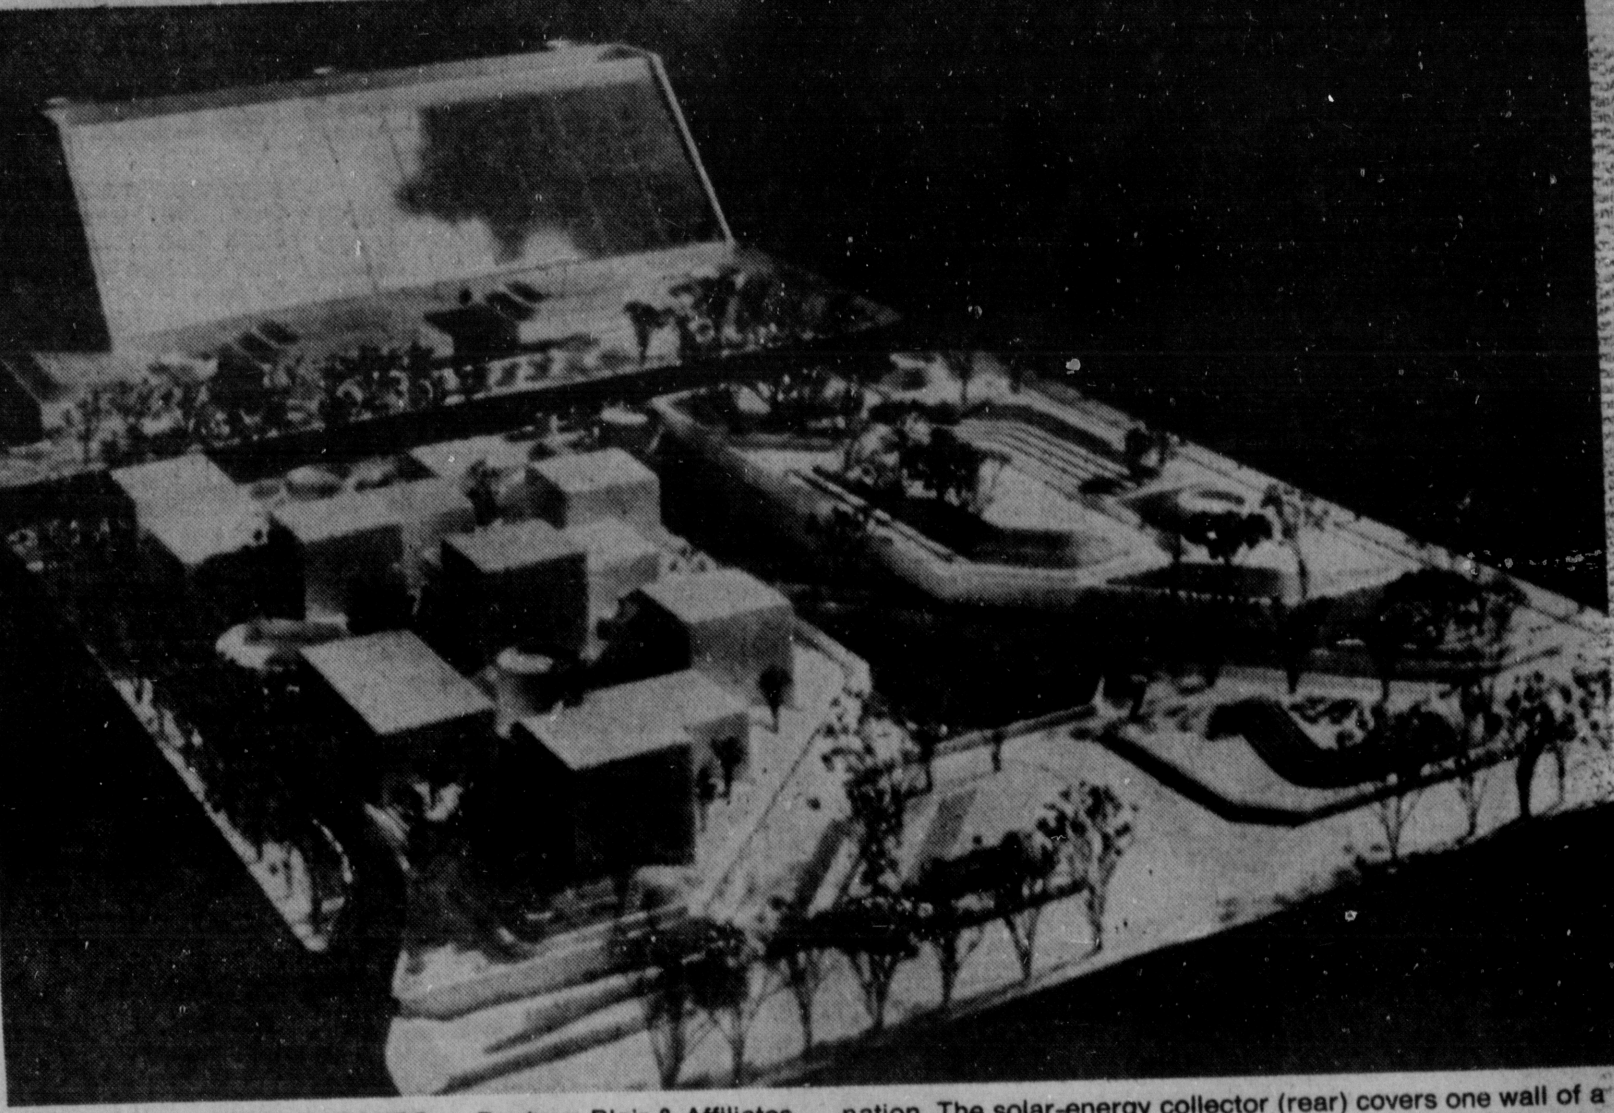
But that ubiquitious "no substantial progress" was recorded against his promise to involve small business in science and innovation, on his promise to develop yardsticks to measure small business growth, on Federal reorganization, on his promise of a better climate for raising capital, and on tax reform.

On the latter, the independent business people conceded that the President's tax reform proposals might change their estimate, but not in time for the first year's report card.

Bargain fares asked

LOS ANGELES (BW) — Seeking air fare discounts up to 40 percent, Air Canada has renewed its application to the Civil Aeronautics Board for bargain air fares between Los Angeles and eastern Canada.

Available for travel beginning Nov. 1, the airline's bargain fares proposal includes: Los Angeles/Toronto return transportation Monday through Thursday for $222, Friday through Sunday for $245. Bargain fares for Montreal or Ottawa would be $245 weekdays and $275 weekends.



WINS SOLAR SWEEPSTAKES — Benham Blair & Affiliates of Los Angeles won a major architectural competition in Sacramento with this design that will give California's capital one of the most extreme energy-saving office buildings in the nation. The solar-energy collector (rear) covers one wall of a six-story segment of the complex, half of which will be underground giving room for a park.

Steel firm seeking relief

United States Steel Corp. has filed a petition with the U.S. Treasury Department seeking relief from the dumping of certain carbon steel products into the United States by Japan.

In filing the petition, U.S. Steel emphasized the lost employment to steelworkers and the continuing severe impact on the American steel industry caused by these imports. The petition seeks relief under an existing antidumping statute by imposing special dumping duties on certain Japanese steel products: structurals, plate, hot and cold rolled sheet, galvanized sheet and welded standard pipe.

The petition was filed in the midst of employee layoffs and facility shutdowns currently being announced by some domestic steel producers.

In commenting, U.S. Steel chairman E.B. Speer said, "imported steel has been pouring into this country at a rate of about 20 million tons a year. If that rate continues," he warned, "it will set a new record for steel imports, in a year that will be far from a record for domestic steel consumption." It has been estimated that 20 million tons of steel is the equivalent of more than 100,000 jobs.

"It will mean that one out of every five tons of steel used in this country in 1977 will have been produced overseas," he said. "This results in a substantial loss to the American economy in jobs, in consumer spending, in related products bought and sold, in tax revenues and all the rest."

Continuing, he said that the American steel industry is the "low-cost producer of steel for sale in our own domestic markets . . . foreign producers, however, in cooperation with their governments, are selling steel in this country below their full production and transportation costs.

"They're doing it to maintain good levels of employement in their own countries — with no regard for the unemployment it generates here. They're doing it to boost their own economies — with no regard for what these unfair trade practices are doing now and will do in the future to the American economy.

"Our Government," he said, "is helping foreign industries at the expense of steel companies and steel employees here at home by ignoring the fact that most of this steel trade is unfair and illegal. It can also lead to dangerous consequences if this situation continues unabated and makes our economy dependent on foreign steel. The steel shortage of 1974-75 gives testimony to this intolerable, very real possibility," he said.

There is no new water; only water that has been reused

SAN FRANCISCO (BW) — There's a good chance that Cleopatra swam in your morning coffee. Or that your last rinse at the dentist's office may have once helped keep Noah's Ark afloat.

"There is no new water, only old water reused," said Joseph Rossillon Ph.D., Monday to members of the dental profession at the 1977 San Francisco scientific session of the California Dental Association.

"In 15 years Americans will be using seven times more water than is available from underground sources, therefore we will need to recycle our water continually," said the director of the Freshwater Biological Institute, located in Minnesota.

Since the creation of the earth, our world has the same number of drops of water, said Rissillon. Only 1 percent of all the water in the universe is freshwater, and only one-tenth of this is in lakes and streams. Underground supplies contain six-tenths of the available freshwater; however, 80 percent of this is inaccessible to man.

"Man is responsible for the problems which are threatening our freshwater supply," he claims. "Each year we use more and more and don't return it in the same state that we found it and used it.

"Remember two key points," said Rossillon. "Our surface water is already contaminated and you cannot clean water, you can only purify it and thereby alter the quality of the water, leaving behind a residue, smell or taste. Water is purified through the addition of chemicals or boiling."

"The major question in recycling water then is not the quantity you can recycle, but rather the quality of the water after the procedure. There is almost no water anymore that is fit to drink without purifying it."

"Some kind of conservation or preservation is necessary," said Rossillon. Also needed are a correction effort to dissipate whatever pollutants we now have in our water, an effort to keep the problem from occuring again and a reversal of our current practices which will involve going back and getting rid of the residue left over from previous practices.

"We are convinced that the current administration in Washington will be the first to put money into fundamental research to learn and identify the freshwater problem," he continued.

"We don't have a freshwater crisis in the United States," he said. But we are heading for one in the near future, said Rossillon.

"We need to get a basic understanding of not only water, but all the things in water. Everyone is involved in the subject of water, because nobody can live more than three days without it," he said.

Critical of lobbyists

Carter in harsh response to attacks on energy plan

By BROOKS JACKSON
AND
EVANS WITT
Associated Press Writers

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senators and members of their staffs streamed in and out of the ornate anteroom near the Senate floor last week, huddling with lobbyists waiting there for a brief moment's conversation.

Although the lobbyists represented diverse interests, they repeated a remarkably consistent plea: President Carter's plan for higher, but still regulated, natural gas prices is a bad idea.

The representatives of the natural gas industry argued against Carter's plan, saying federal price controls should be removed — and prices allowed to rise — to encourage new production.

But consumer advocates said the energy prices in his package are too high, not too low.

And a myriad of other groups — from florists to papermakers — have tried to make their objections to the President's plan heard as the Senate has struggled through day after day and night after night of debate on regulating natural gas prices.

The opposition from this broad range of groups was a major reason that last week was not a good one for Carter's energy package.

And the President responded with harsh criticism of the lobbyists.

"I call on the Senate to act responsibly in the interests of the great majority of Americans to reject narrow special interest attacks on all segments of the national energy plan," Carter said. "The lobbying efforts of the oil and gas industry on deregulation itself show how the special interests are trying to block enactment of the entire energy program."

The industry has been lobbying hard against many parts of Carter's plan. And their efforts have been influential in some areas.

But the consumer groups, some unions and various industrial associations have also been fighting segments of Carter's energy package, particularly where it would raise fuel prices for consumers and industry.

On the other side, of course, has been the President and his allies.

Carter and Vice President Walter F. Mondale have telephoned and met with many members of the Senate on the energy package in the last two weeks.

And Energy Secretary James R. Scheslinger was a familiar figure in the halls of the Capitol as he went from meeting to meeting with senators.

Among the diverse groups opposing the President on natural gas pricing there have been no coalitions — not even informal ones — or other coordination of effort.

"They (the natural gas producers) don't even want the same thing we do," said Ellen Berman, head of the Consumer Federation's energy policy task force. "They want deregulation and higher prices. We are against deregulation."

But there have been at least four meetings since Aug. 11 among groups that usually oppose each other to talk about fighting another part of Carter's energy package, the tax on domestic crude oil.

Joining representatives of at least two major oil companies, Mobil and Gulf, were lobbyists for the Teamsters union, the Consumer Federation, the cotton growers, the airlines and a dozen other farm, labor and business groups.

All feared the oil tax, but each for their own reasons.

This opposition has put the tax in trouble, with it losing a narrow initial vote in the Senate Finance Committee.

The lobbying on natural gas pricing has been intense. And the result has been a stalemate that has left the Senate paralyzed.

"The natural gas lobby has been everywhere," said Sen. Henry Jacks, D-Wash., a key Carter ally in the battle. "They worked every angle. They are doing an efficient job."

When the Senate spent all of Tuesday night trying to untangle the situation, the Natural Gas Supply Committee had its people standing in the Senate's public anteroom, waiting to help. They stacked position papers and documents on one of the padded benches, ready to provide anyone who asked with information.

As opponents of deregulation proposed amendment after amendment, the staffs of senators favoring deregulation — such as Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, and Sen. James Pearson, R-Kan. — constantly sought information from the lobbyists.

The natural gas committee even had a computer terminal set up in their downtown office to analyze the effects of the opponents' amendments. These "instant economic displays" were then rushed to the Capitol.

This help from lobbyists sparked a sharp exchange between Sen. James Abourezk, D-S.D., and Sen. James A. McClure, R-Ida.

"Your side isn't helped much by the story ... of lobbyists' waiting outside, feeding information," said Abourezk, one of the leaders of the filibuster against deregulation last week.

"It helps to have facts to argue with," retorted McClure. "My friend from South Dakota has never been burdened by the need for facts."

Some of the deregulation proposal's opponents have been sharply critical of the producers' tactics.

"The oil and gas lobby has been unbelievably successful in scaring this body into thinking that there will be a gas shortage next winter" without deregulation, said Sen. Dale Bumpers, D-Ark.

But the major natural gas producers have not been the only group lobbying for deregulation.

The small, independent producers have been pushing for deregulation only for their part of the industry, saying it is the only competitive sector left.

And a wide range of farm and business groups who believe deregulation would assure them of needed energy supplies are also pushing for removal of federal controls.

A group of 30 farm organizations, including the American Farm Bureau Federation, the National Grange, the International Apple Institute and the Society of American Florists and Horticulturists, recently signed a letter supporting deregulation.

Many industrial users of natural gas also are pushing for an end to government controls over newly discovered gas.

But if the natural gas lobby has been evident during the debates, so has the administration.

"I've been called by the administration several times," said Sen. John Melcher of Idaho. "And I've seen Dr. Scheslinger.

Johnny Wonder's QUESTION CORNER
Q. "HOW DID THE BUMBLEBEE GET ITS NAME?"
TERISA TRIBBLE JAMAICA, NY
A. THE BUMBLEBEE'S NAME COMES FROM THE OLD WORD "BUMBLEN," MEANING "HUMMING," BECAUSE OF THE LOUD HUMMING SOUND IT MAKES WHEN FLYING
© 1977 by NEA Inc. T.M. Reg U.S. Pat. Off
DICK ROSSENO 10/5

The bumblebee is a large, fuzzy, black and yellow bee that buzzes loudly when it flies.

The bumblebee gets its name from the old English word "bumblen," meaning "huming," because of the humming sound it makes.

Bumblebees live in most countries of the world, and may be seen flying from blossom to blossom during the summer.

Like the honeybee, bumblebees are social insects. This means they live in colonies (groups).

But bumblebee nests are very different from those of honeybees. They do not build hives of honeycombs. They make their nests in a hole in the ground, a thick tuft of grass, or even in a deserted mouse nest.

Bumblebees also make honey, but it is not used by people. Bumblebee honey is stored in waxen cells called "honeypots." It is almost as thin as nectar and will sour in a short time.

Bumblebees help pollinate many plants which are important as food for farmers' livestock.

WARDS ADVERTISING POLICY: If your Wards store should run out of any advertised items during the sale period, or should an item not arrive due to production or transportation problems, Wards will offer the item to you at the sale price when it is restocked. This does not apply to "Clearance" and "Closeout" sales or "Special Buys" where available quantities are necessarily limited to stock available on hand.

WARDS PRICING POLICY: If an item is not described as a reduction or as a "Special Buy" it is at its regular price. A "Special Buy", though not reduced is an outstanding value. In this ad some regular prices may vary by geographic area. If you have a question concerning any Wards advertisement please call the manager of your nearest Wards store
